

criminate some more and keep on hauling coal."

Everybody laughed and made for the elevator and the second chapter in the big sensation closed.

OTHER INDICTMENTS.

As mentioned in the "News," yesterday, two indictments were returned by the grand jury against persons accused of having perjured themselves before that body. The names were not available yesterday, owing to the fact that the men had not been arrested. It turned out that they were Thomas A. Moore and Theodore Schulte, and each, after arrest, was placed under $2,500 bonds. The amount of bail was fixed by U. S. Commissioner Baldwin, and the sureties in each case were Rodney Badger, of McCormick's bank, and George W. Morgan, proprietor of the Vienna cafe.

Moore is employed in the office of the county recorder, being an abstractor by profession. He is said to have entered coal lands, which were turned over to the Utah Fuel company's agents. He was called upon to testify before the grand jury, and it is alleged that he there did not "tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth," hence the indictment upon a charge of perjury.

MISTAKE IN NAMES.

In the information given out yesterday concerning the report made by the grand jury, a mistake was made in the name of one of the men indicted. It was given as W. R. Foster, when it should have been W. D. Foster. The young man is private secretary to Robert Forrester, while W. R. Foster is a different person. The "News" published the name exactly as given to the afternoon press, and the information in that particular was inadvertently misleading.

FIRE DESTROYS AUTO.

Two Boys Touched Match to Leaking Gasoline Tank.

The automobile belonging to Walter Fitch was almost totally destroyed yesterday afternoon. Two men running the machine had stopped at a shop on Second South, between Second and Third West, for repairs. The auto was left outside. Two small boys bent on having some fun saw this and running up touched a match to the leaking gasoline tank. In an instant the machine was enveloped in flames. A large crowd soon gathered and put out the blaze while the boys made their getaway. The machine was completely destroyed before the flames could be extinguished. The police are looking for the boys.

AMUSEMENTS.

Theater.—Mr. Harry Beresford, who had almost added hope-faced a good sized audience at the theater last night and heartily entertained the last particular part of it with his play of "The Woman Hater." Mr. Beresford has fallen heir to the line of comedies, one more properly-faced of the two Roland Reed, and his individual talents in interpreting the special sort of parts made famous by that actor, are of the most laughable sort. The play of "The Woman Hater" is of all things light-hearted the most light in water, and if one were inclined to be particular as to plot, probability, or reason for being, he would not get much satisfaction out of "The Woman Hater." But last night's audience was not inclined to be over critical and the hilarity was unbounded.

As stated above, Mr. Beresford is a great laugh creator, and his company belongs on the average grade, so that all the parts were capably filled. The same bill runs this afternoon and evening.

TROUBLE AMONG CHINAMEN.

We Haw, a Laundryman, the Victim Murderous Assault.

We Haw, a Chinese laundryman, was the victim of a murderous assault about 2 o'clock this morning at the rear door to his laundry, 239 south State street. A Chinese merchant, with whom he had trouble while working in his native land, is accused of the deed. In the shack are three other Chinese who are working for We Haw. According to the statements of We Haw, they had set up until shortly after 12 o'clock smoking their pipes. Chin Ge and Chi Ho, a merchant and produce raiser respectively, and members of the Hong To tong, spent the early part of the evening with them. They played fan-tan and smoked until the visitors departed for their shacks. We Haw and his men then piled into their bunks in a small room in the back of the laundry.

They had only been in their bunks a short time when they heard footsteps and noises outside. Little attention was paid to these at first. All were tired and the lights had been extinguished. The sounds continued, however, and finally the window at the foot of We Haw's bed began to rattle slightly at first, but then began to slide back. We Haw scrambled out of bed, aroused the others, and each arming

Mrs. Bradley Shoots Ex-Senator Arthur Brown in Washington Hotel

Washington, Dec. 8.—Arthur Brown, who registered on Dec. 5 from Salt Lake City, Utah, at the Raleigh hotel, was discovered about 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in his room on the second floor suffering from two bullet wounds in his stomach which may prove fatal. The police have held a woman who was found with him and who refused to give her name.

The man was taken at once to the Emergency hospital.

When asked who her companion was the woman said he was an ex-senator from Utah. The police questioned her further and she replied:

"Ask Senator Sutherland about the affair."

The woman is of slight build and appears to be about 30 years of age. Her name was given by Brown as Annie M. Bradley from Salt Lake City.

The woman appeared cool and was unaffected when told that Brown might die. She had a conversation with him in a room of the Raleigh prior to the shooting. It was in that room that the shooting occurred.

When informed of the shooting affair, Senator Sutherland quickly said:

"I have known both Mrs. Bradley and ex-senator Brown quite intimately, the latter for a great many years. I saw him last Monday when he appeared in a case before the supreme court."

"He and the woman have been more or less closely associated together."

Mr. Brown was at one time United States senator from Utah, among the first after the state was admitted into the Union, but served only a short time.

The above startling message came himself with stiletto, awaited developments. The intruders had apparently heard something moving on the inside, and they also ceased their work. But this did not last long. They waited for some time, and hearing nothing, again began to work. The time, however, at the door. We Haw and his associates could see nothing. The night was dark and the electric lamps failed to send in their glare.

FIERY STRUGGLE FOR LIFE.

Finally the latch of the door gave way and in the opening stood the figure of a Chinaman.

We Haw immediately recognized him as Te Woh, his old foe, whom he thought was still in the Flowering Kingdom. The men both made a lunge at each other. We Haw, however, according to the eyewitnesses, Tim Yen, Toh Gin, and Sin Sen, was the stronger, and forced his antagonist out the door. Over and over they struggled and rolled in the mud at the rear, first one having the upper hand and then the other. Both had their long knives drawn, but were so enveloped that they were not able to use them. We Haw finally landed on his feet and began to slash at Te Woh. Several blows were landed on his shoulders and face. Te Woh, finding himself not equal to the occasion, freed himself and made way. He ran down the alley to Fourth South. The other three Mongolians were close on his heels but they were not able to keep up the chase. Te Woh ran east and darted into the rear of a feed stable, where he was completely lost in the darkness.

We Haw then returned to his bunk where his wounds were attended to. He now has a long, deep gash running down over his left eye and cheek. Another cut was made on his forehead, cutting his coat and shirt. This brings to light an old feud between the two men. It dates back 25 years, when they were rival business men in Tsing Whang Ho. We Haw came to this country 15 years ago and landed in a laundry. After the fire he started a San Francisco, where he bought out Fe Wos, who had run the stand for six or seven years.

Two Utah Boys Were in Destroyed Cornell Chapter House.

(Special to the "News.")

Inquiry of Sidney Bamberger this afternoon brought out the information that C. G. Bamberger, who is mentioned, is his cousin, and a son of J. E. Bamberger. The family have received private advices from him to the effect that he is in Cornell for several years. There are a number of members of the Chi Psi fraternity in Salt Lake who are taking action to see what can be done to assist the Cornell chapter out of its difficulty.

He told of the great aid the juvenile court law had been to the schools in helping enforce the compulsory attendance of children in the schools and heartily endorsed its operation because the law made it possible to hold the parents and employers of children responsible for their non-attendance in school.

SOVEREIGNTY OVER GAME.

Washington, Dec. 7.—The sovereignty of the state was the subject of earnest debate in the house today growing out of the consideration of a bill to establish a game preserve in the Olympic forest reserve in the state of Washington. The bill was passed without division. Mr. Mondell (Wyoming) insisted that the supreme court had ruled that a state is sovereign over its birds, game and fishes, and that to create such a game preserve and place it under national supervision was clearly an invasion of the rights of a sovereign state.

Mr. Lacey of Iowa, in charge of the measure, told of the president's interest in the matter and said the creation of such a game preserve meant the protection of the last herd of elk on the Pacific coast, some 300 splendid specimens.

SHAH OF PERSIA REPORTED DEAD

Germany Believed by England and France to be Pursuing a Mysterious Policy in His Kingdom.

AIM, TERRITORIAL ADVANTAGE

Real Object Declared to be Simply Equal Trade Privileges For All Nations.

In This Matter Russia is More Germany's Rival Than Great Britain.

London, Dec. 8.—A dispatch received here this morning from Persia announced that it was reported there that the shah of Persia was dead. Neither the Persian legation nor the Persian bank here has received anything confirmatory of the rumor.

The British foreign office also discredits the report.

GERMANY'S POLICY.

Berlin, Dec. 8.—Although the German foreign office does not believe that the shah of Persia is so near to death as is reported from Tehran, it is well understood that his passing cannot long be delayed, as his maladies are in their final stages.

Germany is popularly supposed, in Great Britain and France especially, to be pursuing mysterious political objects with the ultimate design of acquiring territorial advantages in Persia. The German policy, the Associated Press is informed, is simply equal trade privileges in Persia for all nations. The principle of the German policy in Persia has been clearly explained to the foreign offices of Great Britain and Russia, and misunderstandings such as those which made the Moroccan question serious are not likely to arise. The offer of the banking concession by the shah was voluntary and was part of his plan to borrow money from Germany. He has already borrowed through the British-owned "Imperial Bank of Persia" and the Russian-owned Banque d'Escompte. The activity and enterprise of the German traders led the shah's advisers to suggest the establishment of a German bank in Persia. The German foreign office considered that Germany already possessed the right to form such a bank under the most favored nation clause of the treaty between Persia and Germany, and therefore the shah's offer aroused no particular feeling of gratitude. The foreign office eventually turned over the concession to a group of Berlin bankers, but they have not done anything with it as yet except to agree to send representatives to Persia some time this winter to see if any money can be made out of the concession.

Russia is more the rival of Germany for the trade in Persia than is Great Britain, possessing as she does a treaty under which the customs duties on overland imports are lower than those imposed on sea-borne imports, and both Great Britain and Germany have a community of interests in obtaining an equalization of the seaport and land frontier duties.

NOT DEAD BUT SLEEPING.

Tehran, Persia, Dec. 8, 6:40 p. m.—The health of the shah today shows that he has made a further slight improvement. He is still very weak.

At 4 o'clock this afternoon his majesty was sleeping.

RUSSIAN STEAMER BLOWN UP BY FLOATING MINE.

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 7.—Details concerning the loss of the Russian volunteer steamer Varyagin, which struck a floating mine near Vladivostok and was blown up, causing the drowning of over 200 persons, have been received from Vladivostok.

Translation from the Ussuriskaya Zhiss states the steamer was en route to Goungou bay and after leaving Vladivostok was driven north by a northwest gale. The course lay four miles north of the mine field. When about four miles off Cape Manchuria the stern struck a submerged mine. The forward part of the vessel, drawing 10 feet, passed over the mine without touching it, the mine exploding immediately upon contact and the catastrophe was so sudden that no boats could be got out or stops taken to save passengers. A panic resulted. From the moment of the explosion until the complete destruction of the vessel not more than 90 seconds elapsed. Of the entire complement of 250 passengers, 47 were saved and the remainder perished. Of the crew of 23, 14 were saved. Several Chinese junks arrived about 30 minutes after the disaster and began to rescue the half dozen people, who were floating about on wreckage over an area of 600 yards. Many families were left entirely destitute at Vladivostok because of the loss of parents in the disaster. A number of prominent Russians were among the drowned.

New Bedford, Mass., Dec. 8.—Great interest exists in all cotton mill districts of southern New England in a number of textile union meetings called for different hours here late today to consider the offer of the manufacturers to advance wages 7 per cent next Monday. The council recommended that the offer be rejected and the operatives insist on the original demand for a 10 per cent raise.

When the rate of increase here is decided upon, it will affect from 40,000 to 50,000 hands in southeastern New England outside of Fall River, as the cotton manufacturers of Rhode Island and in several places in this state have announced that they will adopt the New Bedford schedule.

QUALITY ALONE WOULD INDUCE DENVER TO SEND $75,000 TO $80,000 TO SALT LAKE FOR CHOCOLATES.

During the past year Denver demanded seven car loads of chocolates of the J. G. McDonald Candy Company amounting to $75,000.00 to $80,000.00. What a story these figures tell!

This is more than all the other houses in the country ship there.

We think of quality first—there can be no disputing the quality—Denver is a city of taste we must confess!

Then one's thoughts revert to the local industry—the push, the aggressive spirit that moves a business to attain such quality as will compare favorably with the highest grade goods of the few great candy houses, the names of which are known the world over.

The J. G. McDonald Candy Company has met that crucial test—and ranks at the top.

Quality—that's what counts in the manufacture of chocolates.

That's why McDonald's are preferred in Salt Lake.
