

GALA DAY FOR CITY CLUB WOMEN

Members of Ladies' Literary Club Indulge in a Delightful Function.

TOASTS, MUSIC AND FEAST.

Mellange of Dainty Spring Gowns, Flowered Hats, Bright Epigram And Real Oratory.

The Ladies' Literary club has had so many red letter events that the term in regard to it is becoming trite. Yesterday's celebration of its thirtieth birthday can only be described in superlative terms. From beginning to end the function was memorable.

At high noon the reception halls at the Main building were thronged with intellectual femininity, whose dainty spring gowns and flowered hats made the place like a garden. When, after the hour's informal reception, the signal was given to repair to the dining hall, the scene with its picture panels of tables draped in snowy linen and bright with baskets of jonquills, and plumosa above which chandeliers smothered in feathery green hung like large hognets, while green shaded candles lent a pretty glow to the darkened room, it was one not soon to be forgotten. While the daintiest of music was served, an orchestra of three pieces, violin, mandolin and harp, rendered a program of beautiful music, and when at 4 o'clock the feast ended, all were in delightful condition to enjoy the intellectual feast which followed.

It is doubtful if any toastmaster ever presided with more grace and adaptability than Mrs. W. F. Adams, who did honor to yesterday's occasion by presiding. Self-possessed and with a remarkably clear and telling voice she gave greeting and introduced her followers in clever and appropriate verse, each one of her many good works accomplished by the club and said she had hoped it would continue in enterprises of both public and private good.

CLUB PREDICTIONS.

Miss Ethel Paul, the club president, met the toast, "Club Predictions," in her usual clever and felicitous style. She alluded to the title of the club and its past aims as being among the "Three B's." No longer are self-improvement and self-culture fashionable, she said. "All those things are but a means to the omnipresent altruistic end. Purpose above all things, is the note of today, and our sole aim is to apply literature to life." Miss Paul recited an inspiring vision in prediction of what might be the club's future. One of its incidents was a more commodious house in which the annual club breakfast might be given and other desirable things done. She made a witty allusion to the fact that the golden rule in time becoming the common rule of conduct, and ended by saying that her prophetic spirit convinced her of the vanity of her wishes by assuring her that the millennium was at hand.

Mrs. W. H. Blintz responded to the topic, "Our Friends the Critics," with pathos and pathos. She said that the club, which really made the critic's position seem almost unnecessary. There were times when material, enunciation and even grammar had been objects of the critic's wrath, but those subjects were becoming obsolete and left the critic nothing to do. She read some witty verse on her theme, asking first that the doors might be closed so that none could escape.

FALLACY EXPLODED.

Mrs. C. S. Kinsley's topic was "The Club Woman's Goal," and she sometimes wondered what indeed it was. There had been an idea one time prevalent that to be a club woman meant to be an indifferent housekeeper, wife and mother. But time and experience has wiped out that fallacy. If the club does not improve a woman in all these capacities it misses its purpose. The ideal club makes the average woman better and wiser, more capable of meeting the serious questions of life. It puts her in a position to aid more effectively in great reforms without herself becoming a professional reformer. "Club Friends," was the topic of Kinsley's subject and was treated in a thorough manner, with original ideas upon the ideal friendship, and illustrated with quotations from Emerson, Mrs. Browning, Charles Kingsley, and from many of the famous friendships of history—Ruth and Naomi, Damon and Pythias, Penelope and Arthur Hallam. She paid a tribute to the club women as a fair type of the ideal woman to whom ideal friendships were possible.

MISS JESSUP.

Miss Jessup told "How to be Happy Though a Club Member," taking some of her theme from the topic verse in the program:

"Her's not to make reply,
Her's not to reason why,

In a more serious vein Miss Jessup read from Seneca's "Moralis On A Happy Life," giving the ancient philosopher's recipe in comparison with sample of modern advice as contained in the Ladies' Home Journal.

"FIRST AIDS."

Mrs. H. S. Stowe's toast was "First Aid to the Topic Giver," and she spoke of anticipative wounds, abrasions, accidents of all kinds, that might attack the victim, and suggested as the first great aid a visit to the shops, and the antiseptic application of a good new gown for the occasion. Then in a manner deeply deprecating Mrs. Stowe announced that she too "had a home made poem" and ended her entertaining address with a most delightful parody on Poe's Raven, in which suggestions were contributed in the way of "first aids." The chief note being that "Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these." The president then asked the members to join her in the club song set to the music of "Lullaby" and the delightful affair was at an end.

The program was daintily done in the club colors, white and green, and the menu was as follows:

- Lead Fruit
- Olives
- Stuffed Bass
- Wine Sauce
- Snowflake Potatoes
- Oyster Patties
- Chicken a la Maryland
- Potatoes Maitre D'Hotel

SALT LAKE GETS BIG COMPLIMENT

"Only City in State With Knowledge of Water Supply," Says C. Tanner.

MUNICIPAL LEAGUE MEETS.

E. W. Robinson of Logan is Made President and Other Officers Selected at Second Session.

The Municipal League of Utah held its closing session in the juvenile court room today and adopted a constitution. The principal speaker at the morning session was State Engineer Caleb Tanner, and his subject was "Water Supplies of the State." He declared that only one city in the state can figure out definitely just the amount of water it can handle and where it can get an increase in its supply. That city is Salt Lake. He complimented the city very highly on securing water and knowing how to handle it. He recently had a request from the government for statistics as to the supplies of the cities of the state and Salt Lake was the only one which could give the necessary information.

HOW TO BE MEMBERS.

F. Bower of Springfield made an interesting talk on Municipal Ownership of Public Utilities. The discussion of the subject was led by Mayor Christensen of Bingham. A resolution was adopted recommending that the legislature pass a measure relative to the juvenile court which would advance the best interests of the children. The constitution adopted today provides for the payment of a membership fee of 50 cents by each member to defray the expenses until the next meeting. All officers of any city, town or village in the state may become members of paying this fee.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The officers chosen for the ensuing year are: President, E. W. Robinson of Logan; first vice president, E. M. Conroy of Ogden; second vice president, J. H. Frisby of Provo; and secretary and treasurer, Thomas McMaster of Brigham City. At the session yesterday afternoon Judge Willis Brown made a talk on juvenile court work, and City Engineer Caleb Tanner delivered a very interesting address on street paving and improvements.

LIVELY RUNAWAY.

Many Narrow Escapes But no Casualties—R. C. Whitney Laid to Rest.

Murray, Feb. 16.—A lively runaway occurred on Main street yesterday afternoon. The advance agent of the Ward minstrel show secured an outfit of the Midway livery stable, in which he drove through the county putting out his horses. On returning to the city he noticed by his time he was late getting in. To urge his horse he brought the whip down with force upon the animal which with a corresponding force separated the shafts from the buggy and made a wild dash up the street.

At the establishment of Gilbert & Christensen the horse turned on to the sidewalk, breaking a show window. With no less speed it continued up the sidewalk until it reached the stable from which it was secured. That no casualties occurred is a miracle, as the sidewalk was lined with school children. One little girl was knocked over, but received no injuries. The show man paid all damages and congratulated himself upon learning that nothing serious happened.

R. C. WHITNEY LAID TO REST.

The burial of R. C. Whitney of Butteville, who died Wednesday of general debility, occurred today, in the South Cottonwood cemetery. No funeral services were held by request of the deceased. He belonged to no church, but was a member of the order of Free Masons. It is thought that he had a family somewhere in Canada, but that opinion is not verified. Nothing of them is known, and it is said that he has not communicated with them. He has been a resident here for 30 years, and has been connected with a number of mining propositions of the state, and was still holding some good interests in mining property. The deceased was 55 years of age.

NEWS BRIEFS.

The clerks and merchants here have been endeavoring for some time to fix the time at 6 o'clock for the closing of business. The proposition was about to be adopted when one of the leading merchandise establishments refused to agree to it.

A concert and ball will be given in the Murray Opera House Thursday, Feb. 21. The Murray volunteer fire department will make a thorough test of its fire apparatus tomorrow afternoon. The water system is not in commission after 6 p. m. and as a number of the boys belong to the association, are working week days the test must necessarily be made tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Granter left Friday evening for Mexico for the benefit of Mr. Granter's health.

Washington's birthday will be a gala day at South Cottonwood. An excellent program has been arranged for the forenoon, and in the afternoon the old folks will indulge in a good old time dance; in the evening a ball will be given the young people.
