The jury was kept out of the room while the argument as to the admis-sibility of O'Nell's conviction was in progress. There was also an ex-tended debate on the subject of ad-missibility of the papers committing John D. Elliott, a witness for the de-fense, to the insane asylum. The at-torneys for the defense argued that the witness had admitted he had been committed and the papers of commit-ment were immaterial. Judge Wood said he would not pass upon the mat-ter until Monday morning. After the jury had returned, Mr. Hawley read the papers in the O'Nelli case. He was charged with the killing of Daniel Faivey, and upon being con-victed, was sentenced to one year and six months in the penitentiary. To contradict the statement of "Big Bill" Davis for the defense that he was in Gem, Ida. the day of the Bun-ker Hill and Sullivan mill explosion, the state put on E. L. Hale, master mechanic of the Idaho Mine and Smelling company. Hale said he was in Gem the day of the explosion and that he saw only two other men in hown that day. There was only one saloon open and he was in it. On cross-examination Hale said he was downtown only about 10 minutes. Davis also stated when on the stand for the defense that he did not go to Wardner the day of the Bunker Hill explosion and knew nothin- about it. Following Hale, the state called this afternoon William Dewey, a miner in the Vindicator mine at Cripple Creek. Dewey said he was in Gem, Ida., the day the mea started for Wardner. At that time he was a member of the Western Federation of Miners. He attended the meeting the morn-ing of the explosion and saw "Big Bill" Davis there. "What was he doing that attracted your attention?" asked Atty. Hawley. caped. Scarcely had he done so before the passenger crashed into the light en-gine with fearful force. This lucky escape. The attempts on the life of President Fallieres probably will strengthen the government's intention to put a stop to government's intention to put a stop to the anti-militarists propaganda, which is already demoralizing the army and becoming a menace to the republic. Thirty-nine ringleaders were arrested today for hissing soldiers who were re-turning from the review. Other ar-rests were made at the Place de la Concorde, where the league of patriots held their annual ceremony. Outside of Paris the anti-militarist plans for a general demonstration to-day were a dismal failure, but colli-sions between the police and the work-men at Toulon and Montpeller were directly due to their 'inspiration. At Brest the police were forced to occupy the labor exchange in order to prevent trouble.

As no newspapers were published in Paris this afternoon, the attempt on the life of President Fallieres was not generally known, and the festivities were not interrupted. The theaters gave their usual free performances and there were concerts in the parks and a bal-loon ascension at the Tullerles. To-night there was a nautical fete on the Seine and magnificent displays of fire-works at the Place du Trocadero, and works at the Place du Trocadero, and many other public places. At midnight fife city was brilliantly illuminated and street balls again were in full swing. Many towns in the south of France refused to celebrate today, in accord-ance with a decision not to participate in any civic function until the griev-ances of the people were redressed.

"I know Goldensmith, but I never heard him called Davis. He was about six feet tall and very skinder." Dewey said he remained at Coeur C'Alene several months after the Bun-ker Hill explosion. He was never ar-rested or put in the bull pen. When the strike was declared in Cripple Creek he deserted the union. Dewey was closely questioned by Richardson as to how he came to ap-pear as a witness. He said the fore-man of the mine told him to go to the Pinkerton office in Denver. He did so and was given $50.
