ed that he is already in negotiation for the purchase of arms, and all the funds comeatable are to be used in securing them. They boast down there that they don't want the troops to interfere, and they assert that if might makes right they have the might. Our citizens should be prepared for the turning loose on the streets of a gang of ignorant negroes, led by bad men, for that is now evidently the policy of Packard. The situation is assuming much more of a warlike attitude than ever before since Jan. 9th, and than ever before since Jan. 9th, and the responsibility of the matter will of refusal, to shoot him. McComb knocked him down, chastised him severely, took away his pistol, and took him to the station-house, where the charge of assault with a deadly weapon was entered against him. The affair seems likely to prove more serious than at first supposed. Hayes indicates his intention of following up his purpose, and killing McComb, and a strong effort will be made to procure the expulsion of the former from the expulsion of the former from the bar. The press animadvert severe-ly on Hayes' action, and seem dis-posed to make it a test case.

The Cabinet and the Southern Question.

It is learned at the Executive Mansion that there is no probability of a decision being reached to morrow concerning the southern question, although it will then doubles be brought before the Cabinet and its formal consideration commenced. There will be at least one other session of the Cabinet and its formal consideration commenced. There will be at least one other session of the Cabinet and its formal consideration commenced. There will be at least one other session of the Cabinet able to approve of any of the plans which have been suggested to obviate the apparent necessity of an extra session. He, however, shares the general desire to discover some means by which the army can be sustained without calling an extra session. He will not finally decide the matter until after further consultation with the members of the Cabinet.
