

Negroes' Habitation Once Scene
Of Romance of Jefferson Davis.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—A one story frame house, occupied by negro servants, that stands behind a modern residence in Crescent Hill, and a record in the Jefferson County court are about the only re-miners of a romance of nearly seventy years ago that involves famous names. It was in this house that Jefferson Davis, on June 17, 1835, married Miss Knox Taylor, daughter of General Zachary Taylor.

Davis at that time was a young soldier with nothing to indicate the mournful career that lay before him. He and Miss Taylor were deeply in love and plighted their troth. General Taylor was made aware that there was more than friendship between them, and that his consent to their marriage was desired. He at once made decided objections. He had nothing against the young soldier, but he did not wish his daughter exposed to the hardships which might befall a soldier's wife, with which he was acquainted. So he refused to consent to the marriage.

Miss Taylor was willing to favor any future with Davis, but she was an obedient daughter, so instead of planning to elope she set about winning her father. Despite her entreaties, the future conqueror of Mexico and President could not see good reason for his daughter to marry Davis. He stubbornly refused.

Miss Taylor did not give up. She had one ally, her aunt, Elizabeth Taylor, who had married a gentleman of her own name and lived near Louisville. Miss Taylor went to visit her, and at the same time Davis came to Louisville.

Elizabeth Taylor was a great favorite with her brother, Zachary. She was fond of her niece and sympathized with the young people, who were so very much in love.

Neglected Colds.

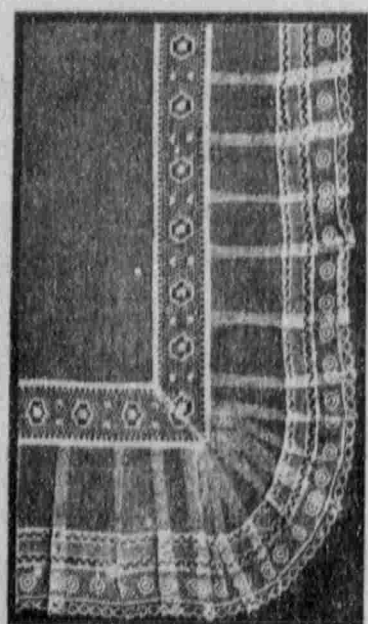

Every part of the mucous membrane, the nose, throat, ears, head and lungs, etc., are subjected to disease and blight from neglected colds. Ballard's Horehound Syrup is a pleasant and effective remedy, 25c, 50c, $1.00. W. Alonzo, Valley Mills, Texas, writes: "I have coughs and throat troubles; it is a pleasant and most effective remedy." Sold by Z. C. M. I. Drug Dept.

THIS CURTAIN MESSAGE

concerns offerings that should command your attention. If you are looking for real Bargains in Curtains, you will find them here in this Sale. It is impossible to make this news too emphatic.
