

There is no Substitute for

ROYAL

BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

It is a Matter of Health

A "GRANDFATHER'S CLOCK"

Beautiful Time-Piece Imported from Italy Presented to University Club.

A very handsome and appropriate present to be given the University club by the J. H. Leyson Jewelry company, is on exhibition in the latter's establishment on East Temple street, where it is attracting considerable complimentary attention. The present consists of a "Grandfather's clock," of walnut, Florentine style, hand carved, nine feet in height, and the general design of the case harmonizes very well with the style of the interior of the club house. The case is wax finish, instead of being varnished, which ensures a richer hue as the age of the case increases. It was made in Italy and imported by Messrs. Borsari at a cost of nearly a year, as it is required that time to carve and make up the case. The works of the clock were imported from Germany, and contain musical quarter notes, chimes, and a rich sounding hour song, and the glass work in the case is of the best French plate cut and beveled in this city. The clock is a beautiful piece of work, and the University club will be proud of the gift. It is valued at $400, and is a present to the club from the Leyson Jewelry company.

GERMAN SYRUP.

We want to impress on our readers that Bosche's German Syrup is positively the only preparation on the market today that does relieve and cure consumption. It contains the specific, such as pure tar, extracts of gums, etc., which have been so highly commended for the cure of coughs, colds and consumption by the great medical congresses. The consumptive, whether his disease is in the throat or lungs, must have rest at night, and be free from the spasms of dry and racking cough in the morning. The diseased parts want rest, healing and soothing treatment, and the patient needs fresh air, good food, etc. German Syrup will give free and easy expectoration in the morning with speedy and permanent relief. Small bottles, 25 cents; regular size, containing nearly four times as much, 75 cents. At all drug stores.

G. G. GREEN, Woodbury, N. J.

DOORS TO BE CHANGED.

New Fire Ordinance Will Necessitate Some Extensive Alterations.

When the new fire ordinance, proposed by Councilman Hartenstein, goes into effect it will be necessary for changes to be made in the entrances to a large number of buildings in the city. The ordinance provides that the doors to all large public buildings shall open outward, and as a number of doors in the large structures swing inward it will be necessary for them to be changed. Councilman Hartenstein has received a complaint in regard to the doors at the postoffice, the inner doors of which open inward and the outer doors outward. Following is a part of the letter received by the councilman in regard to the matter:

"Your action looking to the safety of the public during a panic must meet with the hearty approval of the citizens of the city. And while this matter is being looked into, I would respectfully call your attention to the menace to life and limb that confronts the public daily, but more especially on a Sunday, when several hundred people are crowded into the vestibule of the postoffice, in the Dooley block, the entrance to which is provided with two sets of doors, the inner set of which opens inward (instead of outward), and if from any cause the crowd would attempt to leave the building in haste, the doors would be blocked by the rush to get out, and many injured, if not killed. If these doors were changed to open outward (or discarded altogether) there would be one less source of public danger in the city."

TO FREE HUSBANDS.

Wives of Utah Convicts Go to Work in Coal Mines.

At the meeting of the state board of pardons, March 19 next, clemency will be asked for William Watson and Robert Lister, two young Englishmen now doing five years in the Utah state prison for highway robbery in Ogden. As the wives of these young men in England heard of their escape and imprisonment, the women went to work in a neighboring coal mine, to earn money to secure a new trial for their husbands, and after raising 100 shillings, sent them to Atty. Lister in Ogden. He was unable to secure a new trial, but he, with Sheriff Bailey of Weber county, assisted by Atty. A. B. Irvine of this city, will present the cases of Watson and Lister to the board to see what can be done.

MARCH WEATHER.

What the Month Has Shown Meteorologically for 29 Years.

The following data, covering a period of 29 years, have been compiled from the weather bureau records at Salt Lake City, Utah. They are issued to show the conditions that have prevailed during the month in question for the above period of years, but must not be construed as a forecast of the weather conditions for the coming month.

Month March for 29 years.

TEMPERATURE.

Mean or normal temperature, 41 degrees.

The warmest month was that of 1873, with an average of 49 degrees. The coldest month was that of 1897, with an average of 34 degrees. The highest temperature was 77 degrees on March 30, 1873. The lowest temperature was zero on March 30, 1890. The earliest date on which first "killing" frost occurred in autumn, Sept. 22. The latest date on which last "killing" frost occurred in spring, April 23. The latest date on which last "killing" frost occurred in spring, June 18. PRECIPITATION (RAIN OR MELTED SNOW).

Average for the month, 1.92 inch. Average number of days with .01 of an inch or more, 10. The greatest monthly precipitation was 4.66 inches in 1871. The least monthly precipitation was .33 inches in 1900. The greatest amount of precipitation recorded in any 24 consecutive hours was 1.17 inches on March 20, 1874. The greatest amount of snowfall recorded in any 24 consecutive hours (record extending to winter of 1884-85 only) was 8 inches on March 20, 1884.

CLOUDS AND WEATHER.

Average number of clear days, 10; partly cloudy days, 16; cloudy days, 11.

WIND.

The prevailing winds have been from the northwest.

The average hourly velocity of the wind is 6.4 miles per hour.

The highest velocity of the wind was 45 miles, from the west on March 7, 1877.

Station: Salt Lake City, Utah.
Date of issue: Feb. 26, 1904.
R. J. HYATT,
Local Forecaster, Weather Bureau.

SHERIFF EMERY SUE.

"Hello Bill" Manager Believes That His Reputation Has Been Damaged.

Melville Kellogg, manager of the "Hello Bill" company, which disbanded in this city several weeks ago, has filed a $3,000 damage suit in the district court against Sheriff C. Frank Emery and his surety, the United States Fidelity & Guarantee company, for alleged wrongful imprisonment and damages to his standing in the theatrical world because of such imprisonment. The company was disbanded by Kellogg on Jan. 16, without giving the members of the company the usual 30 days' notice or transportation back to their homes. On Jan. 17, Kellogg attempted to leave the city but was arrested by Sheriff Emery at the Oregon Short Line Depot. The arrest was made at the instigation of four members of the company. Kellogg alleges that his arrest was without legal authority and that he was unlawfully deprived of his liberty for more than 24 hours and was compelled to pay $100 attorney's fees to gain his liberty. Because of all the said actions on the part of defendants he seeks judgment in the sum of $5,000 and costs of suit.

KICKS UP

No Matter How Hard the Work.

A young man who works his way through college is generally made of the right kind of stuff but there are times when he needs all his pluck and determination. A young man at Stanford University, Calif., says:

"Near the beginning of last term I obtained permission from the faculty to take examinations in several subjects for advanced credit.

"Here was my chance to gain a semester by taking 4 or 5 examinations so I studied until I could not sleep nights, was nervous and excited and 'blued' my weight went down to 122 pounds. My breakfasts at the Inn consisted of fried potatoes, hash, oatmeal or wheat mush, hot cakes with syrup and coffee, making me dizzy all morning and I had sour stomach all day, but a friend of mine, an assistant in the chemistry department, told me that when he was studying hard last year he used the food Grape-Nuts with wonderful results explaining to me that in this food the starches are changed into Dextrose and Grape-Sugar by heating.

"That's all right," said I, but Grape-Nuts make me sick.

"I gave it a try and it was delicious but I could not eat anything for three meals afterwards."

"How much did you eat?" said my friend and I had to confess a bad eaten once and then it was delicious but I could not eat anything for three meals afterwards."

"You over ate enough for a dozen people," was his comment. Try it again but follow directions."

"Well I left off eating at the Inn except for supper and at a grocery store in Palo Alto I bought several packages of Grape-Nuts and ordered the milkman to leave half a pint of cream every morning.

"For breakfast I had four teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts with half the cream and some fruit. For dinner I had the same with occasional extras. The result was that at the beginning of the Christmas vacation I weighed 142 pounds, as is proved by the gymnasium records. I passed all my examinations with a clear head, slept well and I had a feeling that I went to bed in the morning. When I went home for Christmas everybody remarked how well I looked and I had been studying 14 hours a day.

"A club of five of us boys, all too poor to pay for board, have eaten in Harvey's room for the past month and everyone of the fellows feels more reserve energy than he has before this year and all attribute it to Grape-Nuts. Of course dinner at Rev. Heber Newton's the other day. He is the pastor of the new Memorial Church and what do you think? He served Grape-Nuts! Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Look in each package for the famous little book, 'The Road to Wellville.'

A Distinguished Woman's Natal Day.

Daughters of the Pioneers to Hold Special Meeting in Honor of One Who Is "Aunt Em" to Numberless Persons Who Hold Her in Affectionate Regard.

1828—MRS. EMMELINE B. WELLS—1904

Seventy-six Years of Age And Will Celebrate Her Eighteenth Birthday on Monday.

On Monday, the 29th, the Daughters of the Utah Pioneers will hold a special meeting in honor of Mrs. Emmeline B. Wells, whose birthday anniversary occurs on that date. The occasion is a remarkable one, as the lady in a couple of days more will have passed 76 calendar years on earth, and yet has had only 18 birthdays, her natal anniversary occurring only in the leap years. In the hundredth year of each century is missing in its extra day, Mrs. Wells had no birthday in 1900, so that Monday will witness the first anniversary in eight years. Mrs. Wells being an honored member of the Daughters of Utah Pioneers, and the birthday occurring near the regular date of meeting the occasion offered an appropriate opportunity to the society to show some evidence of the honor and esteem in which she is held, and the day was therefore set aside for the special meeting, with a special program as follows:

Chapter VII. Hymn, "We'll Sing the Songs of Zion," W. G. Mills
Hymn, "O my Father," Elizabeth Stevenson Wilcox
Hymn, "O my Father," Eliza R. Snow
Pioneer Mothers.
Hymn, "Our Mountain Home So Dear," E. B. Wells
Emmeline B. Wells,
Annie Wells Cannon

STORY OF HER LIFE.

PROBABLY no Utah woman is better known today, the world over, than Mrs. Emmeline B. Wells. This is partly due to her active and long continued service as editor of the Woman's Exponent, secretary of the Relief Society, and to her connection with the National Woman's Suffrage association, of which she has been a vice president, and is still a life member; but no small share of it is the result of her personal correspondence with men and women of note, editors, poets, philanthropists, etc., many of whom she has welcomed to Utah, and some of whom she has visited in their distant homes. Her life has been a romance, almost a tragedy in some of its phases, and she has realized, during the course of it, the best and highest ideals of her Puritan ancestors, who, as noble Norman extraction and martial renown in England and other parts of Europe, came for religious liberty to the new world, and were among the founders and defenders of the great republic.

She herself was born in Westchester, Worcester county, Mass., Feb. 29, 1828. Her maiden name was Emmeline Blanche Woodward. She was a precocious child and gave early evidence of literary tendencies, loving romance, all but worshipping nature, and making rhymes even in childhood. Quick to learn, she was well schooled, graduated when very young, and at 15 taught school. Her father had been dead many years, when her mother, in 1841, became a Latter-day Saint. She was followed into the Church by several of her children, including "Emmie," who was baptized on the 1st of March, 1842. The day was very cold, and the ice had to be cut that the ordinance might be administered.

She was but 15 years and 5 months old when she was united in marriage to James Harvey Harris, son of the president of the local branch, with whom she at once set out for Nauvoo, then the gathering place of the Saints. She well remembers her first meeting with the Prophet Joseph Smith, and testifies to the wonderful power that accompanied his words and ministrations. Her first child was born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little daughters, now Mrs. Isabel M. Sears, of Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Melvina C. Woods of Wallace, Ida. Both children were born at Nauvoo, and she herself was brought near to death's door with chills and fever, from which she was miraculously healed by the power of faith, under the hands of President Brigham Young. While yet too delicate to do any work, her husband cruelly deserted her, following his parents out of the Church, and leaving Nauvoo, never to return. Some time later she married Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and in 1845 came with him and the rest of his family to Salt Lake valley. She was accompanied by her two younger sisters and a brother, her mother having died at the beginning of the exodus from Illinois. Bishop Whitney died Sept. 23, 1850. She was thus left a widow with two little