OUT OF SALT LAKE.

The survey was adopted by resolution at the meeting of the board of di-rectors of the San Pedro at Los An-geles December 26 as "the definite location." For the major part the twenty miles of the route surveyed and redation parts the twenty miles of the route surveyed and idopted passes through unoccupied and, consequently the railroad promo ters have no fear in making the route public that they will be required to pay exhorbitant prices from private owners for their right-of-way.

terday every indication points to the fact that the route which will be finally selected will leave Salt Lake City across Cannon's farm and thence to across Cannon's farm and thence to Garfield through Tooele county to the initial point which is situated about thirteen miles east of Vernon and half a mile east of the Oregon Short Line tracks. Thence it follows the route in-dicated to Tintic. This route through Rush valley will tap the Stockton and Only mining districts in which Sona. maps are filed. It has sometimes been asserted that the road would bear sharply to the west across the desert to the Deep Creek country and the rich gold and copper deposits in the region of Ibapah to then strike southwest across Neva-da, but it seems safe to say that the San Pedro will build only a branch to tap the Deep Creek district. Indications point to the belief that

MORTENSEN IS BUSY.

Going Over His Accounts to Prove He Could Have Had the $3,800.

Today Peter Mortensen, the accused murderer of James R. Hay, has been busily engaged in poring over his accounts. Early in the day yesterday he asked for his time books and accounts and late in the day they were taken to him by his attorney. Since he received them he has done little else but go over them carefully. Among Mortensen's visitors was his sister-in-law, Mrs. Henry Mortensen. Mortensen had asked her to bring his simples from home and one or two slippers from home and one or two other articles of wearing apparel. When he showed up empty handed he asked the reason and she told him that his slippers, his best suit of clothes and numerous other articles had been stolen by curious persons who wanted a souvenir. Mortensen said not a word at this intelligence but it was quite evident that he was angry. After a while he said: "I am sorry because I have no money with which to get more."

FATAL BOILER EXPLOSION.

Three Men Perish, Being so Scalded That Flesh Fell Off.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Jan. 3 .- The boller in the South Penn Oll company pumping station at Harry Rhoden's in Doddroldge county, blew up, scalding to death Harry Rhodea, a pumper for the company: Mercick Frick, who ran a strike of well cleaning tools, and Dell Ash, his assistant. The men were in Ash, his assistant. The men were in the boller house, warming themselves when the explosion occurred. They broke open the door which had become locked and escaped to another house, a mile away. All were scalded so that flesh fell from them on the way. Af-ter reaching the other boiler house, they collopsed and in a tex hours were dead.

ing especially in the vicinity of my cabin, was hadly shallered, the main force of the collision striking her just forward of my stateroom. My bunk was struck and thrown across the room on to my lable. After the crash the vessel, which I think was a French bark, judging from the language used by her sailors, rebounded and groped alongside. I called to her to stand by. She drifted away and was lost to view. I could not tell how badly she was injured but I do not imagine she was severely hurt. She struck us how-on and though her forward rigging might have been broken, it is not likely her hull suffered materially. Those of the passengers who had not been awakrived here at 10 a. m. with 14 more passengers picked up along the coast. The vessel began to till immediately Among those saved were six women. The vessel began to till immediately and sank in thirty-five minutes. There was no confusion on board. The of-ficers and crew kept the passengers ficers and crew kept the passengers from becoming panle stricken. The crew was immediately ordered to manthe lifeboats and rafts and an effort was made to save the baggage. This was given up, however, the vessel fill-ing at such an alarming rate that no thought was given but for the safety of the passengers. I gave orders to have the port boilers blown out, it heing necessary to give the vessel a list to keep the gaping hole in her side out of the water. In a few moments all the lifeboats and rafts were out with San Francisco, Jan. 3.—The Pacific Coast Steamship Co. has issued a later statement showing that the Walia Walia carried sixty-four passengers the exception of two which were smashed. One of the boats contained nine or ten pasengers. All were thrown into the water but man-aged to board the life rait which had been launched a few minutes previous-ly. The second boat was smashed by striking a heavy object in the water, but all the passengers were rescued by another life raft. We had about 65 first and second class passengers on beard and about 160 souls all told. We had no knowledge of the approach of the vessel striking us, the weather being so thick she was not seen until we were struck. It was very dark at the time and the undertain light interfered to a great extent with the rescue of the passengers. I remained on board as-sisting them in every way possible. I went down with the ship. After I had been down I don't know how long, the social hall deck broke off and I thoated to the surface with it. Sighting a life raft I commenced swimming and suc-ceeded in reaching it after a hard struggle and was pulled on board by the other three occupants. We floated thick she was not seen until we were the other three occupants. We floated about nearly all day and early in the evening were ploked up a few miles to the north of the wrock by the steamer Dispatch, which was proceeding 19
