Parties from the Snake River valley continue to report the increase in production of the potato crop, which is a fact phenomenal; and this is surprising for the fact that a new flouring mill plant of 100 barrels a day capacity is soon to be placed in commission at the present mill plant at Blackfoot, which can not supply the growing demand.

Boulder Report: It must be, indeed, a source of gratification to the publishers of the Desert News, to receive such universal praise and commendation, as they are now receiving with regard to the Christmas News, just issued by them. Each year they have done themselves proud, but this edition is the best of all. Rich in color, perfect typography, and from a literary point of view it is a veritable encyclopedia.

Five hundred members of the Commercial club and their invited friends enjoyed the good cheer of the club yesterday afternoon and evening, when the "switching hour of midnight arrived." The scholars' magnificent gastronomic layout looked like Fort Arthur after the surrender. The decorations in the parlors and corridors were of potted plants that made the place seem like a conservatory.

The University clubmen were at home yesterday afternoon and evening, and the members of the club with their lady and gentlemen friends managed to spend a very pleasant New Year. Elegant refreshments were served. The other clubs also had their own parties, and in many of the city homes the ladies received. The theaters and private parties and socials were well attended, and the dance at Christening's drew a large crowd.

Some unknown person yesterday threw an empty bottle from one of the upper floors of the McCormick building, down through the skylight of Carstenen's and Anson's piano establishment next door. The bottle crashed through the glass and struck a piano on the ground floor, where one of the employees of the firm was repairing his friends with a performance. The action of the instrument was badly damaged, and had the bottle hit any person instead of the piano, a fractured skull would have resulted. The police investigated, but the fellow who did the damage had fled.

THE DEATH OF COLONEL FERRY.

Recent Nominee for Governor of Utah Passed Quietly Away At Park City.

MAN OF MUCH PROMINENCE.

Served With Distinction as a Soldier And Made a Success of Mining and Other Matters.

Died, Monday, at 2 o'clock, at his home in North Park, near Park City, Col. William Montague Ferry, of old age. His end had not been foreseen by even his intimates, although some warning of it had been given a few weeks before when an illness threatened to prove fatal. From this attack he had, however, apparently recovered and until two days before his death was not considered to be in immediate danger.

Col. Ferry has lived in Utah since 1878, and has been prominently connected with the mining interests of Park City, where he came from his home in Michigan to represent the owners of the Quincy mine, a one-time famous producer which has "died" of its ore. His life has been a long and useful one. He served through the war of the Rebellion, and in the recent campaign in Utah he came prominently before the people as a candidate for governor on the American party ticket.

Col. Ferry was born at Michilimackinac, Michigan, July 8, 1824. His father was William M. Ferry, a Presbyterian clergyman. At the age of 10 Col. Ferry moved with the family to Grand Haven, Michigan, where he remained until coming to Utah in 1878.

MANHOOD'S ESTATE.

The first employment of the young man was as apprentice in a machine shop. Here he showed capability as an inventor and draftsman, and in 1847 he started the Ottawa Iron works. He was now becoming a prominent man, but his connection with business life was cut off by his enlistment for the war of the Rebellion in 1862 in the Fourteenth Michigan regiment. Rapidly he rose through the ranks to the position of captain and commissary of subsistence.

HIS MILITARY RISE.

A year after the war had started he was given a staff appointment by Gen. James B. McPherson. While he had been commissary of subsistence he had been a volunteer in the army, and his military career was not without distinction. He was now becoming a prominent man, but his connection with business life was cut off by his enlistment for the war of the Rebellion in 1862 in the Fourteenth Michigan regiment. Rapidly he rose through the ranks to the position of captain and commissary of subsistence.

RETURNED HOME.

When the war closed Col. Ferry returned to his home in Grand Haven. He then went into politics for the first time, running for the position of representative to Congress on the Democratic ticket. The year after this he served as member of a commission to revise the constitution of Michigan. His career in Michigan ended with a term as mayor of the town of Grand Haven, he leaving for Utah at the conclusion of his term of office.

DEMOCRATIC POLITICIAN.

In 1872, at a Democratic national convention in Louisville he served as secretary, and the same year was for the first time elected to the House of Representatives. On the Democratic ticket he ran for the position against a victorious Republican. The year after this he served as member of a commission to revise the constitution of Michigan. His career in Michigan ended with a term as mayor of the town of Grand Haven, he leaving for Utah at the conclusion of his term of office.

AS A UTAH MINER.

Once here he was not slow to see the great resources of the state, and to begin upon a career as a mine operator. He brought with him wealth and success. His venture in politics in Michigan was soon followed by his entry into that field in Utah.

He was always a staunch Liberal, a Democrat, and this was an American. In 1888 he served as Democratic national committee man, representing Utah in that capacity until 1892. For the first time Congress he ran against John T. Caine, nominee of the People's Party, and was defeated. For the world's Columbian exposition he was appointed by President Harrison one of the commissioners representing Utah.

Before coming to Utah he had served on the board of regents of the University of Michigan. Here he served as a trustee of the Westminster academy, HEAD OF AMERICAN TICKET.

In the late campaign he re-entered state politics as a strong advocate of the American party, and his loss was considered a heavy one by his friends. Defeated on the ticket, which he died at almost the very hour when his successful opponent was taking the oath of office.

Col. Ferry was a companionable, genial man. He made many friends among those with whom he associated. In Park City he was looked upon as a prominent citizen and his death is felt keenly by the community.

DATE OF FUNERAL.

Two nephews of Col. Ferry, W. Mont Perry and E. S. Ferry, are at present out of the state having left last Saturday for the east. Arrangements for the funeral are held pending word from them. It is thought, however, that the remains will be shipped to Michigan, where Col. Ferry was one of the original white settlers of Ottawa county.

ECONOMY IS NOW THE WATCHWORD.

Republican Leaders Said to be Preaching it on Every Hand.

DEMANDS FOR APPROPRIATIONS.

Senator Allison of Iowa Has a Remarkable Record—The Non-Newspaper Ear.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 2.—Economy comes to be the watchword of the Republican leaders, and they are preaching it on every occasion. No opportunity is neglected to impress members of both houses that with the present growing deficit appropriations should be limited to necessities. At the same time that this demand for retrenchment is so pronounced there is still louder demand for increased salaries. Every department of the government asks for more clerks and for increased salaries of those already employed. Bills have been introduced to increase the salaries of president, vice president, speaker of the house, senators and representatives. Bills for all kinds of improvements have been presented, and the economy cry is met by demands for increases all along the line. Every one seems to be in favor of economy so long as it does not affect himself.

ALLISON BREAKS RECORD.

Senator Allison of Iowa has just broken the daily record in the Senate. He has now the longest continuous service of any man that ever held a seat in the United States Senate. His record to this date is 31 years and nine months, 25 days. Until two days since the late Justin Morrill, senator from Vermont, had the longest continuous service record. While Senator Allison holds his continuous service record he has not yet attained the longest actual service record, which is still held by the late John Sherman of Ohio. Sherman entered the Senate March 23, 1861. He remained until March 8, 1877, when he became secretary of the treasury. Sherman re-entered the Senate again four years later and served until March 5, 1897, when he resigned. His total service of state. His total service is therefore 31 years, 11 months and 14 days.

THE "NON-NEWSPAPER EAR."

Speaker Cannon will occasionally make a remark, tell a story, comment on the Senate or on some public question, and just as you think you have a mighty good thing, he will add, "Of course this is for your non-newspaper ear." It is the pride of Uncle Joe who has never said anything for the "non-newspaper ear" that has been put in print and attributed to him. "It seems to me," remarked a former member of the house after half an hour in the speaker's room, "that you are compelled to suppress most of the good things you hear."

SPARKS WILL FLY.

There is an expectation of a great debate when the holiday recess expires between Senators Borah and Wheeler. The statesman's bill will be under consideration and in charge of Beveridge, chairman of the committee on territories, while it is expected that Senator Bailey will be the principal opponent of the bill. In days gone by these two senators have differed, and there is not the best feeling existing between them. If they should debate the question of statesman's bill, it will be a question and answer there should be sparks flying, for both are well equipped in the matter of language, and both are recognized men of ability. When these gentlemen begin to ask questions of each other and answer them much interest is aroused.

WHITE MOUNTAIN RESERVE.

Senator Burnham of New Hampshire has prepared a very interesting report in favor of the bill introduced by Senator Gallinger for a national forest reserve in their state. Besides showing the necessity for such a reserve, Burnham's report recalls the fact that New England has a share of Indian names, and the west has no monopoly of them. Those mentioned as affected by the proposed reservation are the Connecticut, Upper and Lower Ammonoosuc, Merrimack, Winnepesaukee, Pemigewasset, Androscoggin, Migualloway, Saco and Piscataqua.

ONE OF ROBEY'S STORIES.

Delegate Robey tells a story of one of his New Mexican constituents who went with him to see a vaudeville in which there were moving pictures, one being the Empire State express. They were late in entering and stood in the middle aisle as the picture was flashed on the screen. The train began to move and was seen at a distance, but when it approached nearer and nearer and its flight seemed so realistic the constituent uttered a shriek and, grabbing Robey by the arm, threw him violently across the stage. The very hour when his successful opponent was taking the oath of office.

Col. Ferry was a companionable, genial man. He made many friends among those with whom he associated. In Park City he was looked upon as a prominent citizen and his death is felt keenly by the community.
