THE PERILS OF THE RE-

PUBLIC.

In the year 1857 the famous historian Macaulay wrote a letter to an American author, Mr. Heary T. Randall, which attracted much attention at the time, and has since been repeatedly published. It is again brought before the public, as its prescience is made apparent by the developments of the times. And we copy here a portion of it as the prediction of a great thinker and writer which foreshadows a probable prolific evil in this country. Said Mr. Macanlay:

"The day will come when, in the State of New York, a multitude of peo-ple, none of whom has had more than half a breakfast, or expects to have more than half a dinner, will choose a legislature. Is it possible to doubt what sort of a legislature will be chosen? On one side is a statesman preaching patience, respect for vested rights, strict observance of public faith. On the other is a demagogue ranting about the tyranny of capitalists and usurers, and asking why anybody should be permitted to drink champagne and to ride in a carriage while thousands of honest folks are in want of necessaries. Which of the two candidates is likely to b : preferred by the workingman who hears his children cry for more bread? I seriously apprehend that you will, in some such season of adversity as I have described, do things which will prevent prosperity from returning that you would actilke people would in a year of scarcity-devour all seed-corn, and thus make the next, year, a year not of scarcity, but of absolute famine. This will be, I fear, spoliation. The spoliation will increase the distress. This distress will produce fresh spoliation. There is nothing to stay it. Your Constitution is all sail

There is a very serious side to the question of coal shortages, in which the consumer is interested to as great an extent, although in a different di-rection, as the retail dealer. When a "ton of coal" is delivered, the purchaser has to take for granted that the amount dumped into his coal-bonse or cellar is correctly charged up of conduct, but also mental or spiritual errors had to be put aside, that men might be prepared to receive to them; so that, so far as possible, only the pure and faithful might be ad-Occasionally a murmur was mitted. heard in relation to these precautions, one of the greatest gifts vouchsated to but it never came from the lips of the faithful. The servants of God could not be too strict in preserving those places from pollution: for it was as much their duty to keep them pure, as it was for the people to here their ccal merchants of Salt Lake are bon-est. We would not intimate otherwise for a moment. What we are about to relate, illustrates the honor of coal dealers in the east. "Present com-pany," it is understood, "is always excepted." it was for the people to keep their bodies free from all defilement. If the relate, illustrates the honor of coal dealers in the cast. So eighty-two arranged to have each ton of coal purchased, weighed by sworn officials engaged in was the work of God. The Boston Globe of March 10th contained a long dispatch from Henry G. Trickey, one of its correspondents sent here to write up Utah affairs, in which the "Mormon" side of the test oath question is fairly given by copious ex- divisity tracts from the DESERET NEWS. The other side is also given with a leaning of the Holy Ghost. If they had not to it on the part of the correspondent, the power when they claimed it, it

We do not share the opinion that the Constitution of our country is "all sail and no anchor." We look upon it as an anchor itself. And the danger to our government is the increasing disposition to dispense with the anchor the balances they will be still "found and let the wind of popular clamor drive | wanting." the ship of state whither, it will. There are few English statesmen or political writers who have carefully studied

While the Constitution is preserved intact there is no danger of too much sail or too much force behind it. Cast aside the Con stitution, and the bark will be indeed in peril of being dashed upon the rocks.

But the growing distinction of classes is an element of great danger. The aggregations of capital and the increasing ranks of the hungry and unemployed, foreseen by the eminent writer, are facts that stare the country in the face. And the tendency to demagogism is painfully apparent. Few public men care for the inherent, presiding. rightfulness or mischief of a public measure, the prime question is, usually,
