Many of the presents were accom-panied by oral or written expressions of the deep and sincere regard in which the bride is held by persons of all classes, not only in her own coun-try but throughout the world.

NO OFFICIAL GIFTS.

Weeks, ago, on behalf of their daughter, the president and Mrs. Roosevelt let it be known that certain proferred gifts could not be accepted. It was their desire that the wedding, so far as the presents were concerned, at least, should be stripped of official at least, should be stripped of official character. An initimation was con-veyed through diplomatic channels that it was the desire of the president that no gifts should be made to Miss Roosevelt on behalf of foreign gov-ernments; that presents of such nature properly could be received only from the executives of the governments through the ambasadors or ministers accredited to the American sovernaccredited to the American govern-ment. The only present, therefore, which may be said comes directly from a nation is that of the Cuban republic. It was provided for prior to the receipt of the president's delicate intimation, and in the peculiar circum-stances could not be declined.

PREVIOUS REMEMBRANCES.

During the past week hundreds of remembrances, so particularly precious in the eyes of a bride, have arrived at the White House for Miss Roosevell. By far the greater number of them came from personal friends and acquaint-ances. Her joy was clouded, in a measure, by the receipt of presents from people of whom she never had heard, who followed the gifts immediately will requests for invitations to the wedding. Some of the gifts were cost-by, but those which so evidently were sent with the idea thereby of obtaining an invitation to the wedding were returned instantly to the senders.

VALUE EKAGGERATED.

It can be said with perfect confidence in the accuracy of the statement that while many of the presents received by the bride are very valuable, some of them being particularly so by reason of the circumstances surrounding them the bride are very valuable, some of them being particularly so by reason of the circumstances surrounding them, the value of the gifts has been greatly exaggerated. Many of those who re-membered Miss Roosevelt with pres-ents are by no means wealthy, and it is quite certain they could not afford to make such presents as they have been credited with having given. The definite announcement of the presi-dent and Mrs. Roosevelt that no list of the bridel gifts would be made pubof the bridal girs. Roosevelt that no list of the bridal girts would be made pub-lle was approved cordially by triends of the families of both the bride and bridegroom, but it has placed a pre-mium on the exaggeration so greatly deprecated by the president himself.

ANNOYED BY BEGGARS.

So remarkable have some of the accounts of the presents been that their publication has brought to Miss Roose-velt an unfortunate annoyance. Her mail for many days has been flooded with letters, from women and men in all parts of the country, urging her to give to them from her plentiful store of duplicate gifts, one thing or another Some of the stories of suffering and privation they told really were pitiful. Even in the time of her life's greatest happiness Miss Roosevelt was made sorrowful by some of the appeals to her generosity. Of course, she was unable to gratify the writers of the letshe was ters, because primarily they had been misled by publications which were quite inaccurate.

MENACING LETTERS.

In addition to appeals for charity, Miss Roosevelt received, as a result of the exaggerated reports of the value of presents, letters, unsigned as a rule, menacing in their tone. No actual threats were made, but the letters contained sinister initmations of furture trouble, perhaps for the country through the presentation to the daughter of an American president of gifts so costly as to be merely a display of the wealth of the givers,

VALUABLE GIFTS.

Few brides, not of so-called royal birth have been the recipients of so-many and such valuable gifts as were received by Miss Roosevelt. For weeks these tributes of love and affection have been pouring in to the White House. The bride and the members of her family were almost over House. The bride and the memory of her family were almost over-whelmed by the number and character of the presents. It was not that they were so valuable, intrinsically, although, in the aggregate they repre-sent a great sum, but it was the spirit which animated the givers which ap-pealed strongly to Miss Roosevelt.

GOWNS AND HATS OF WOMEN and it is known that all have not yet arrived. The display consists prin-cipally of jewelry and rare bric-a-brac. There are necklaces, brooches, rings, bracelets, fans of unique design, OUESTS.

No social event in recent years in America has induced so many elaborate and beautiful tollets as the wedding of Miss Roosevelt and Mr. Longworth. The gowns and hats of the ladles prescloaks, watches, vases, loving cups, punch bowls, pictures, rare laces, ex-quisite silks and embrolderies from the ent were in keeping with the romantic importance of the event. While the display of jewels was not so great as it orient, delicate carvings in fvory and the precious metals, handsome rugs and tapestries, rare silver and china might have been had the wedding been an evening affair it nevertheless was notable. Many of the women present table services, most of them manufac-tured from special designs and every other gift which possibly could make glad the heart of a bride. Among the notable. Many of the women present wore jewels, which matched in color their gowns, or, if they did not match they entered harmoniously into the color scheme of the toilets.
