Bold Highway Robbery in Los Cerrillos Section of New Mexico.

DESTRUCTIVE FOREST FIRES.

An Insane Hotel Guest—Love Laughs at Lock-smith's—The Hop Crop.

Kittie Robins, one of the demimondes of Aspen, Colo., suicided on Monday afternoon, taking the morphine route. Nonesuch has relatives living in Bordentown, N.J. No notice is given for the woman's act.

Patsy Burns, the young Pitkin creek (Colo.) Lochinvar, who ran off with Fanny Orton some time ago, but who was ingloriously brought back and locked up in jail, having been finally turned out, has now run off with her again.

The Fort Collins (Wyo.) Express says that gardens who are beating vegetables in Windsor improve and barely making expenses. The home market, having for object to secure points, promises to be excellent this fall.

On Monday a forest fire started on Owl creek about five miles west of Aspen, Colo. It turned slowly at first, but gradually grew into proportions which threatened the property of many ranchmen who are in the vicinity. The place of Frank Main, one of the finest ranches on the western slope, has already suffered to a considerable extent. Nearly ten cubic yards of the fence which inclosed his ranch to the north has been fire-proof. The ranchmen are much indebted, as they believe the fire is the work of an incendiary.

The Visalia, Cal., Times says that Harry Quin, of Pojoar, last week purchased six sheep at Exeter and that cost him $700. They are the right-bred French merino bucks. Their wool is as fine as silk and their horns are so perfectly moulded as though turned out by a lathe. He brought them to his sheep camp in the Cottonwood country and saw one day this week a band of three of them. From one he clipped twenty-six pounds of first-class wool; from another he got twenty-four pounds and the third produced eighteen pounds. This coat has grown since last May, a little over three months' growth. Mr. Quinn is the largest sheep owner in Tulare county.

In about a week, says the Santa Rosa, Cal., Republican, the big task of gathering the hop crop in Sonoma county will have been accomplished. The work of baling was checked some during the week by the hard wind that blew for a day or two. Some damage was done and there will be a few lots that will not be picked. There is no change in the market. There is a hope that the markets will issue up within the next four weeks, however. The heavy crops in Europe have reduced the demand for American hops very materially. Some of our Sonoma county hop men contracted their hop crop for five years at 15 cents per pound. The years when hops may be much higher they may think the other fellows are in luck.

Early on Monday morning James J. Weaver, a guest at the Belvidere hotel at Greeley, Colo., acting apparently under a fit of temporary insanity, rushed into the room occupied by Henry Hawes, and fired a pistol, declaring that parties were after him to kill him. He then jumped into bed for a moment, but soon got out again and began firing through the bed, shooting four times. Harmon Hobbs who roomed across the hall, hearing the shooting arose and began dressing. When a ball from the pistol passed through two doors and entered his right knee. Weaver then ran to his room and locked himself in, where he was foiled by officer Clamp, who burst in the door to get at him. The wounded man was placed under the influence of opiates and surgeons were pulling the injured member next day.

A young woman named Mary Holden has secured a judgment in her own name for the San Francisco Savings Union, the German Bank and the Humboldt Bank to recover $20,000 on deposit in those institutions to the credit of James Bowles. It will be remembered that Bowles was a veteran second hand bookseller, who died in San Francisco several months ago. A short time before his death he became engaged to marry Miss Holden, who was a daughter of a woman at whose house he lived. When death approached he made a gift to the young woman of all his money in bank and some other property. Miss Holden sued the banks in order to prevent the money being paid to the representative of Bowles' estate.

A curious fight took place on Tuesday evening in the county jail at San Francisco. William Ewing was arrested four days ago on a charge of counterfeiting. His brother-in-law, Thomas Johnson, was arrested on the same charge on Sunday. Each accused the other of having told on the secret. When Johnson was taken to the county jail in the evening he was put in the same cell with Ewing. A mutual desire to fight seized them, and as Johnson was sit ins into the cell the two men jumped at each other like infuriated beasts. Blows fell fast and thick and then the men clinched. A lively rough-and-tumble fight followed. The men rolled over and over in the cell, and cursed fiercely. The deputy sheriffs present could not separate the men, but it was a hard job. Finally Johnson was taken out and put in another cell.

On Monday afternoon one of the holdup-by-mystery stories ever known in the Los Cerrillos section of New Mexico was committed between Los Cerrillos and Waldo mines. A. L. Rogers, an employee of Arnold & Stinson, who run the only meat market, had been in Waldo collecting money due the firm for the month of August, and had collected about $400 from the miners, and when about six miles to the side of the Waldo mines two masked men covered him with revolvers and compelled him to give up the money in his possession. He was then bound and blindfolded in the road before the men left. He was then released after a short time by citizens and released. He returned to town and gave the alarm and a posse started in pursuit of the robbers at once. Both men were masked and one had on a mine vest. The blockmarks from the south mines at Santa Fe have been investigated, but were put on the backs of the robbers. It is thought that with the aid of the hounds they will be captured within a short time.
