AGRICULTURAL NOTES.

In England the fields are immense; the country is beautifully undulating; every inch of ground is well kept, and all the division lines between estates are marked by well-trimmed hedges. In all England I did not see a ragged hedge. In the most unfrequented field the hedge would be trimmed as nicely as in a gentleman's grounds. But in all farming operations the English are very clumsy, though very thorough. Their tools are heavy and awkwardly made, but last through generations.

An English paper says: The guinea pig is extensively used in Peru as an article of food, not merely by the higher classes as a delicacy, but mainly by the poor, from its cheapness and abundance. It is an entirely herbivorous animal, and clean feeder, being there chiefly maintained on green lucerne or trefoil, but it would, doubtless, thrive equally well on cabbage or lettuce leaves and most sorts of green garden stuff; in short, on the same food as the rabbit, to which it has many points of similarity. Its only similitude to the rat is that after the hair has been scalded off it presents an appearance not unlike what a large rat might do if similarly treated—minus the tail. For cooking, it is not skinned, but the hair being scalded off, it is split open and cleaned, and is generally fried entire in a frying pan, or sometimes grilled over the coals. Thus prepared, it is savory and delicate, the flesh being white, succulent and nutritious, very superior to the rabbit, and it makes a most excellent dish. The cost of rearing and keeping them is next to nothing, and their introduction into this country as an article of food would prove an inexpensive addition to our materials for the breakfast or dinner table.

Farmers do not live up to their privileges. They may have as good a living as those in towns who expend three or five thousand annually for that purpose. Their tables may be better supplied, the articles of much better quality, as fresh vegetables, butter, milk, cream, eggs and fruit; a horse and carriage; more leisure. Reckoning the articles consumed by the farmer's family at the price his city friend is forced to pay, we shall not find as much difference as one would suppose. It would be found more apparent than real. It is the few in any occupation that acquire fortunes. Where one succeeds, multitudes fail. Perhaps as large a proportion of farmers grow wealthy as in any other class of equal means. If people would live as economically as formerly, probably as much money could be laid up as at any time. Habits of extravagance have done much to bring the business into disrepute. And it is visible in almost everything. Houses and furniture, clothing, horses, carriages, harness. A stable-keeper recently informed me that it formerly he found a ready sale among farmers for his second-hand carriages, after running them for a year or two. Now there was no demand from that quarter. The best was none too good for them. So in almost every thing else the farmer vies with others for the best; hence so long as the desire to make a show and outdo others is the leading idea, money must be scarce and the cry of hard times will be heard. If people would study comfort and not seek to follow the fashions, much useless expense would be avoided. A great reform in public opinion is needed. Rural life should be made more popular, and domestic service more respectable. Nothing but mistaken ideas have produced the clamor that farming does not pay, and that it is an unworthy occupation. With all the drawbacks many do make and are making money by farming; and time only is needed to show the truth of what I have written. In the meantime let us go on and trust mother earth, knowing that in the end we shall come out all right.—W. Brown in German-town Telegraph.

There are many things which seem to be advantageous over general practices, wh ch are often strongly urged, and which seem to be backed by the most unanswerable arguments, and yet in spite of all their promising features, never seem to make their way to public confidence. We have, for instance, during a long life in connection with our editorial career, noted, seemingly at set times, a sort of excitement go through the whole agricultural press in regard to the great value of mules and oxen on the farm. There is nothing too good to be said about them. The mule is a very strong animal, he will live and grow fat on food that any good-mannered horse would sicken on. He will live longer as well as work harder, and as a general thing his first cost is less than the first cost of a good horse. Then they are bright and easily taught, and indeed will do many things that are quite incomprehensible to the spirit of a horse. This is something like what these periodical articles read. And as for the oxen, they are patient, strong, enduring, moderate feeders, and then their flesh is eatable, and a dead ox is often worth more than a live horse. Time and again we have read these arguments, and time on time we have known of periods when people, convinced by them, purchased and worked with them. But in time both ox and mule get their discharge and the good old-fashioned horse takes their places. Just now we see symptoms of a breaking-out of the periodical talk about them. We are prepared at once to agree with all that is to be said in their favor; but yet we are sure that all who buy them for general farm purposes will in time sell them again, and go on as before. The fact is the horse can do all that the others can do as a general rule, and a great deal more in some others; and where there is general work to be done, one thing that will do the most of them tolerably, is better than a great many tools, each well-adapted to its particular end.—Germantown Telegraph.

Organ Contest!

An Account of the Contest of Organs from Mr. C. Sansome, Secretary for the Committee:

FIREMEN'S HALL,
Salt Lake City,
June 2nd, 1873.

Messrs. Daynes & Son:

I am authorized by the committee chosen by the Fire Brigade to test the various Organs placed in the Fireman's Hall for competition, to inform you that in the recent test or trial on the following points of excellence, namely:

1st—Greatest Volume of Tone.
2nd—Softest and Sweetest Tone.
3rd—Variety of Effects.
4th—Durability of Workmanship and its non-liability to get out of order.

That after a fair and impartial trial, conducted on the most approved plan, it was decided that the Prince Organ carried all of the above points!

And on a final vote being taken of the whole it was UNANIMOUS IN FAVOR OF THE PRINCE ORGAN, with only one dissenting vote. The committee consisted of thirteen men, including a chairman and secretary; the whole of them musicians of more or less pretensions. The performer on the instruments at the trial was a lady music teacher, chosen on account of her being free from prejudice in relation to either of the instruments.

Signed on behalf of the committee,
JAMES R. RIGGS, Chairman.
CHAS. SANSOME, Secretary.

☞ The Organs tested were:

PRINCE STYLE, 14, price	$170.00
MASON & HAMLIN, 24, "	182.50
ESTEY STYLE, 17, "	185.00

Showing that the PRINCE ORGANS are not only the best, but are much lower in price.

EYE AND CANCER DOCTRESS.

Who resides and has established her infirmary at the Old Fourteenth Ward Store, west of the assembly rooms, would inform the public that she intends continuing in this location during the next six months, and refers all who wish information regarding her skill to the following affidavits.—

TERRITORY OF UTAH, } S.S.
County of Salt Lake, }

Mrs. Elizabeth H. Grundy, of Minersville, Beaver County, Utah, being sworn, says that prior to the 9th day of December, 1872, at which time she placed herself under the treatment of Mrs. M. J. Clay, Doctress, in the City of Salt Lake, she had been afflicted with a granulation of the eye-lids with films over the eye-balls to such an extent as to be unable to walk alone, read, or sew; that within seven weeks after the commencement of such treatment, her sight was restored, so as to enable her to both read and sew without trouble.

Isaac N. J. Clay, Doctress, in the City of Salt Lake, and that after her treatment of certain medicinal applications for the period of six weeks, a perfect cure was affected, the cancer and the roots thereof being completely removed, the cancer being nearly the size of a hen's egg at the time of its removal.

Albine Beckstead being duly sworn, deposes and says: For the past seven years she has been afflicted with blindness, the cause of it being the granulation of the lids, and felons over the balls of the eyes, to such an extent as only to observe a very strong sunlight, without the ability to read or sew. That on the 10th day of December last, I placed myself under the treatment of Mrs. M. Clay, Eye Doctress, in the City of Salt Lake, and that under her treatment this deponent's sight was so fully restored on the twenty-fifth day of January following, that she has since been able to read common printed matter and do plain sewing.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ennis, of Draperville, Salt Lake County, Utah, being duly sworn says, that prior to the 1st of November, 1872, for the period of nearly one year she was entirely entirely blind, unable to walk alone, from the granulation of the eye lids and films over the eye balls; that she placed herself under the treatment of Mrs. M. J. Clay, Doctress, Salt Lake City, Utah, on the foregoing mentioned date, and that within two months thereafter her eye sight was so fully restored as to enable her since to walk alone, and readily read and write.

Mrs. Fanny Thatcher, being duly sworn on her oath says, she resides in Salt Lake City; that for eighteen months previous to Sept. 1st, 1872, she had been suffering from granulated lids and a felon over the ball of one eye, so that during that period affiant was unable to use her eyes, and could hardly see. Affiant's eyes were pronounced by the doctors whom she consulted, incurables; that about Sept. 1st, 1872, affiant commenced treatment under Mrs. M. J. Clay, doctress, and continued the same with great relief to affiant for eight weeks. In the course of three months affiant's eyesight was so fully restored as to enable her to read coarse print, and her eyes have been continuously gaining strength, and she is now able to read fine print. Affiant has since Sept. 1st, 1872, been following Mrs. Clay's directions in the treatment of her eyes.
