

TO NAME M'KINLEY BY ACCLAMATION

Enthusiastic Endorsement of the President's Course—Vice Presidential Uncertainty—Roosevelt Leads.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 20.—The Republican national convention will today renominate by acclamation Wm. McKinley for President of the United States. The second day of the convention opens with the prospect that the renomination of the President, with the bursts of fervid oratory it will evoke, will be the chief event of the gathering. But there is the ever-present apprehension on the part of many leaders that this second day may be like the climax of a great drama and may have in store some coup d'état, some crisis or stampee, which will be the signal for a general stampede, and that the most careful precautions have been taken to guard against any such contingency, and to prevent the convention from being swept from its feet by a chance tidal wave of popular favor, yet the vague feeling exists that it will not be well to count upon the day's developments until all is over.

AN IDEAL DAY.
A cool and bracing northeasterly breeze, moderate temperatures and cloudless sky afforded ideal conditions for the work and excitement of the day. Again the crowds were astir early, the streets were filled with the hosts of visitors, marching clubs and shouting vendors of badges. It was noticeable, however, that the white and blue plug hats and red, white and blue umbrellas were thinning out and that a part of the demonstrative tide of travel was setting away from the convention city. After the experience of yesterday, the officials of handling the crowds without a hitch, and the early drills were dispensed with. Perfect order prevailed, and all the arrangements tended to the ease and comfort of the visitors.

PROGRAM IS SIMPLE.
The program of today is comparatively simple. The various committees practically have completed their work, and the morning sessions make everything in readiness for prompt reports. Although a contest on credentials is expected. With this routine of the day, the nominations for the presidency will be in order, and then will come a carnival of eloquence such as has not been heard in recent days. The strong voiced and popular will make the nominating speech, with seconding speeches from Thurston of Nebraska with his hallooing voice, and then less plans are changed from motives of expediency from the man towards whom all eyes are turned, Gov. Roosevelt of New York. It will be his first word to the convention, his formal dedication to the cause, and there are boundless possibilities of such an appearance. It may be, however, that the governor may desire, in the exigency of present conditions, to avoid the slightest pretense of flattery the New York delegation, to support the nomination to that polished and graceful orator, Chauncey M. Depew.

CROWDS WANT ROOSEVELT.
The crowds want to hear Roosevelt, however, and they may demand him. With the speeches concluded, the nomination will be made by acclamation, with an outburst of enthusiasm and devotion to the President. This will come the presentation of the platform, which is now complete, save in some minor particulars. Its ringing sentences, read by the chairman of the platform committee, Senator Fairbanks, of Indiana, will afford another opportunity for expression of party fealty.

VICE PRESIDENTIAL PUZZLE.
The vice presidential situation continues to be the absorbing topic with the leaders, the delegates and the anxious, expectant crowd. While many of the conditions have been defined with clearness there is far from a clear and final understanding which all accept by common consent. The action of the New York caucus late last night in unanimously agreeing to support Woodruff is not accepted as permanent, by retiring Roosevelt from the field. Kansas and many other States are insistent still that he shall be nominated, without reference to his own wishes or the wishes of the New York delegation. In some quarters it is intimated that this is but an adroit stroke on the part of Mr. Platt to show that it is from without that the demand for Roosevelt comes. The governor himself is congratulating Mr. Woodruff as though he were to be the nominee. But the general impression prevails that the time has gone by when New York can deliver the vice presidential nomination to any one of its choice. Moreover, Mr. Hanna and the administration forces continue to look to Long or Dilliver, and are not deeply impressed with the New York endorsement of Woodruff.

HANNA CHILLS WOODRUFF.
It was observed that another significant by-play occurred in the breakfast room of the Walton this morning. Mr. Hanna was taking his breakfast, when Mr. Woodruff, faultlessly groomed and happy with the New York endorsement, entered the room and seeing Mr. Hanna started towards the national chairman. But, the latter, glancing over his eyes, appeared disinclined to join in congratulations or a discussion of endorsement, and picking up his morning paper became absorbed in it. That Mr. Woodruff passed on without a word of exchange. Later, however, the lieutenant governor joined Mr. Hanna at his table and the two had a short talk.

The friends of Secretary Long are according to sincere assurances that Roosevelt will not stand, and they are elated with the progress made within the last few hours.

LONG AND DILLIVER.
The action of Long in coming out flatly for Secretary McKinley, as California stands well to the top alphabetically and will give an early impetus to the Long movement in the roll of States is called. New England is practically united with seventy-eight votes for Long, although the Connecticut people are wavering. New Jersey adds her strength to Long, and these acquisitions have started a strong current towards Long in the western delegations, although the Roosevelt shadow still stands in the way of formal action for the Massachusetts man.

The Dilliver forces have not abated their confidence, directing most of their energies to securing assurances of support in case that Roosevelt movement should disappear.

HANNA FIGHTING AGAINST ROOSEVELT.
There was a rather unsatisfactory lack of knowledge as to the absolute condition of the vice presidential boom the Ohio senator, having heard of Wisconsin's vote to support Roosevelt, showed signs of weakness. He is reported to have almost as soon as the vice presidential matter was mentioned.

"Gentlemen, we do not want to lose sight of the fact that this Roosevelt sentiment is much greater than the combination of Quay and Platt for it. The West and South are likely to force it, and I do not feel that their wishes should be combated too fiercely."

This statement was conformant with the one made to Mr. Woodruff in the early morning. The conference declared that they arrived at no conclusions, and the fact that Mr. Hanna seemingly was not so enthusiastic in his work against the Roosevelt boom would indicate that Mr. Roosevelt is again the prominent candidate for Vice President. Roosevelt should be nominated, the endorsement of Woodruff made by the New York delegation last night would be used to force Woodruff a nomination for governor of New York.

RECEIVE CERTIFICATES

Students of St. Mary's Exhibit Their Work in Art.
The certificates won by students of the various classes of St. Mary's academy were distributed yesterday afternoon. In connection with the distribution of the certificates there was rendered an excellent program, and the large audience was also shown the art and class work exhibit, representing the students who may be justly proud of their work. The art includes oil crayon, pastel water colors, and china painting, the class work consists of maps, essays, herbariums, etc., also a number of creditable specimens of sculpture. Among the young artists most worthy of mention are Misses J. Keene, Bessie Gridley, Saddle Colvert, Annie O'Brien, Mary Kinney, Bertha Ehret, Gertrude Hansen, Hazel Youngs, Dora Burton and Mrs. McChrystal. Master J. Miller, 11 years old, executed a study of dogs, which was very fine.

PAYNE PREDICTS ROOSEVELT.

At 11 o'clock and before Gov. Roosevelt had arrived at his room, the joy over Missouri's action was overwhelmed by a rushing blow at Henry C. Payne, and the Wisconsin delegation. Wisconsin had a meeting and hardly were the doors closed when Mr. Payne arose and in a vehement speech declared that Roosevelt would be the nominee of the convention.

"It is time this factional business in New York State should be settled from the outside," he said. "This is a national, not a State gathering. We are here to nominate a national ticket, not a party ticket. (Applause.) Let us raise his hand he said in an impressive and impassioned manner. "Before Wisconsin is reported on the roll call, willing or unwilling, Theo. Roosevelt will have received seventy-five per cent of the votes of the convention. I move that Wisconsin join the popular column and vote for, not New York's son, but the American son, Theo. Roosevelt." The amendment was adopted by a unanimous vote.

PAYNE AGAINST HANNA.

Mr. Payne, when spoken to after the meeting, said:

"I believe that everything points to Roosevelt's nomination and I don't think he dares refuse it."

At Governor Roosevelt's headquarters it was said that Mr. Payne's action was expected, and that he was simply Mr. Hanna's nomination because Mr. Hanna was against it.

Senator Hanna is by no means assured that the Roosevelt candidacy is ended. When seen today he said significantly: "It all depends upon the man upstairs."

NO COUNCIL MEETING.

Eight City Solons Meet and Adjourn Until This Evening.
There was no meeting of the City Council last evening, an adjournment having been taken until tonight. At five minutes past eight there were seven members present; the roll was called and it was found that there was "no quorum present," whereupon Robertson moved an adjournment until this evening. While the vote on adjournment was being taken Hartenstein put in an appearance. When his name was reached he asked for an explanation and Robertson said, "It is to teach those that are in the habit of coming late that 8 o'clock and not half-past is the hour set for our Council meetings to be held."

"I don't wish to be contrary," replied Hartenstein, "and shall therefore vote 'yes.'"

President Buckle said he wanted to be "contrary" and would therefore vote "no."

The vote to adjourn stood as follows: Ayes—Farnstrom, Gemmell, Hartenstein, Howe (C.R.), Reid and Robertson—6. Nays—Hewlett and Buckle—2.

Canning was in the ante-room when the clock struck eight, holding a conference with Charlie Gulbransen. He was a very much surprised man when he entered the Council chamber and found the place deserted. He asked of Chief Janitor Johnson:

"Oh, the boys thought they would like to take in the bicycle races at the Salt Palace," replied Peter; and it is said that is where the majority of the members went.

It was rumored today that a petition would be presented to the Salt Palace management in the near future by thirteen members of the Council asking that the bicycle races be changed from Tuesday to either Monday or Wednesday evening. Manager Max A. Peters regards thirteen as an unlucky number, and may therefore take a notion into his head to deny the petition.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Marriage licenses were this afternoon issued to Archie Coates, 40, of Bingham, and Emma J. Jenkins, 25, of West Jordan; James V. Stirling, 24, and Florence V. Miles, 20, both of this city.

BIG DAY FOR THE UNIVERSITY.

Thirty-First Annual Commencement Held at the Theatre.

EXERCISES AND GRADUATES

Some Very Excellent Thoughts Suggested—Oratorical, Vaudeville and Presentation of Diplomas.

The thirty-first annual commencement of the University of Utah was held at the Salt Lake Theatre today under circumstances of the most auspicious character. It was an event long to be remembered and one that marked a red letter period in the careers of the lives of the graduates of whom there were many who received the degree of Bachelor of Arts, two who were given degrees of Bachelor of Science and fifty who had completed their courses in the normal school and three who earned certificates from the kindergarten department.

The grand old Theatre presented an animated and picturesque scene, with its hundreds of students, proud parents and admiring friends, who had assembled to do honor to the occasion made brilliant by the excellent character of the exercises, the beautiful floral display and other graduating accessories.

THE PROCEEDINGS.

The stage was occupied by the graduates, members of the faculty, the board of regents and many other prominent educators both in the city and from other sections of the State.

The interesting exercises were opened with prayer by Elder Reed Smoot, of the Apostolic quorum. The orchestra followed with a rendition of "Hearts and Flowers."

CLASS ORATION.

Oscar William Carlson representing the normal class then delivered the oration. His theme was "Education the Safeguard of Democracy." The effort was a most creditable one, evincing clear thought and mature ideas. He stated that there was in the heart of every man a disposition to rise to the position of less dependence to be free and independent. The progress of mankind has tended to individual expansion.

The fundamental principle underlying aristocracy is selfishness. The speaker entered into a discussion of the methods employed by the aristocracy in continuing the people in bondage in the early centuries. At that period there was class education, children were inculcated with prejudices instead of being taught to love mankind. But there were a few writers, poets, philosophers, above their abject condition and gradually the forces of darkness, ignorance, bribery and superstition began to break, and a desire for higher education seized hold of the people. Man must move along the lines of least resistance, and since freedom is the goal to which mankind is traveling, democracy is the only hope through which it can be attained. The will must be trained, the moral attributes cultivated by those who are not using their talents for mere pecuniary profit, but for the love of humanity, love of freedom and love of truth. This can be accomplished when the public schools is made a home and a haven for the child.

THE VALEDICTORY.

The next feature was the valedictory by Miss Estella Kate Watson, whose theme was "The Ultimate Victory." It was a well written, thoughtful paper, and reflects great credit upon the author as it does also on the University. The nature of the effort was the description of a man's career, beginning with his first day at school as a child, whence he has emerged, and the path upon his home and learns to depend upon himself. His career is traced through the public school, through college, when he is launched into the world to begin a struggle for wealth, and when his mind is filled with utopian schemes and exalted ambitions. The speaker proceeded to follow him as a sordid man who strives for wealth, he is then considered as a scholar in search of knowledge, of the rarest of all things, and he has not been unfolded to the vulgar gaze. But, concluded the speaker, whichever path a man has followed, if he has made true and earnest endeavor, joy is his at last. Although in the lapse of years, he sees the great truth of the matter, the horizon fades, yet, as ambition and illusion, hand in hand at last, slowly disappear down the vista of his declining years, heaven smiles upon him and the sky is overspread with the soft and mellow content of a soft sunset, and a calm and peaceful joy, which is a benediction indeed, is shed upon his chastened but yet striving soul.

ADDRESS BY SENATOR HIDEOUT.

Hon. David O. Rideout, Jr., followed in a very felicitous address to the graduates.

To the public school system he attributed the marvelous growth of this country, which is greater than that of Athens or Rome. Thirty years ago the negro was not admitted into the University; 200 years ago the white woman was not admitted into the university, and now two-thirds of the graduates of the college are of the gentler sex. The graduates were admonished to improve every moment. Napoleon marched from a humble cottage to the throne of France by never losing a moment; Waterloo was the result and the content of a soft sunset, and a calm and peaceful joy, which is a benediction indeed, is shed upon his chastened but yet striving soul.

PRESENTATION OF DIPLOMAS.

In a few well-chosen remarks, J. T. Kingsbury, presented the diplomas to the college graduates and the certificates to those who completed the normal and kindergarten courses.

After the benediction, which was pronounced by Rev. George Bailey, the flowers were banked at the feet of the graduates by a number of the students of the University.

TAXES ON POWER PLANT.

Effort to Increase Salt Lake Electrical Power Co's Assessment.

The time of the county board of equalization was taken up yesterday afternoon listening to arguments upon the valuation placed on the property of Salt Lake City Water & Electrical Power Company by Assessor Quinn. The company's assessed valuation is placed at $39,200 and it was required to show cause, upon the board's citation, why the valuation should not be raised to $100,000. Judge Street, who appeared for the company, admitted that there had been $250,000, invested by his company in the plant at the Jordan Narrows, but he said that a great part of the investment was in "dead" property, and he, therefore, protested against the proposed raise. His company was willing to pay taxes on all its improvements, but did not propose to on improvements that returned no income on the investment. The board took the matter under advisement.

Nervous Prostration

—from whatever cause—overwork, distillation, insomnia, care, worry—tends directly to permanent invalidism or the insane hospital. It is the bane of the present age and of the American people. In the mad pursuit of money, men forget health, happiness, everything but business and the accumulation of wealth, which, if secured, becomes valueless, because they have no health with which to enjoy it. The happy possessor of a healthy body never knows he has a body because of any ache or pain, and with systematic, reasonable attention to business, inviolable rest and recreation, plain, nourishing diet, almost anyone can be well. There are times, however, when there is an unavoidable strain. Use a few doses of to tide over the emergency. It will assist to maintain the well body at its normal standard, and for nothing will do better for the nervous system.

LORD ROBERTS HEARD FROM

He Says Methuen Routed Boers Under Dewet.

Two Guns Captured from the Transvaalers—Johannesburg is Quiet.

London, June 20.—Lord Roberts this afternoon reported that General Hunter had occupied Krugersdorp (west of Johannesburg) without opposition, and that Gen. Methuen June 19 routed a Boer force which was opposing his entry into Heilbron and the Orange River colony.

The silence of Lord Roberts since June 19 had disposed some quarters to believe that his line of communication had again been cut, especially as according to advices from the Orange River colony, the Boers were known to be still hovering about the railroad north of Kroonstad.

A Compromise Verdict.

The jury in the case of William J. Crouther vs. John Mattox, a suit brought to replevin a horse and col valued at $85, found that the animal belonged to plaintiff, but he was instructed to pay the defendant $7. The verdict introduced at the hearing was a very conflicting kind, so much so that the jury was at a loss as to what to do in the premises.

Will Recommend Divorce.

Deputy Clerk Fred W. Little took testimony yesterday afternoon in the divorce case of Emma Edmonds vs. I. M. Edmonds, and will recommend to Judge Hiles the granting of a decree in favor of plaintiff, but he was instructed to pay the defendant $7. Continued for the Term.

Three more State prisoners, Henry Wright, Hank Riddle and Frank Lyons, were brought down from the "pen" yesterday for trial on the charge of grand larceny. It was discovered that a majority of the present panel of jurors were disqualified by the fact that they had sat on some other cases involving almost the same state of facts. In view of these circumstances the case against the defendants was continued for the term.

DAMAGE SUIT ON TRIAL.

Case of Nicholls vs. O. S. L. Ry. Co. before Judge Booth and Jury.

The case of George Nicholls against the Oregon Short Line Railway Company is on trial in the law department of the Third district court, before Judge Booth and a jury. John M. Cannon and H. L. Tanner appear for plaintiff and P. L. Williams and George Smith for the defendant company.

The action is to recover the sum of $2,431.68 damages for an alleged breach of contract. Plaintiff, in his complaint, alleges that he lost the amount sued for by reason of the defendant company's failure to furnish him with cars for the shipment of 3,370 head of sheep from Soda Springs, Idaho, to Omaha, within a specified time. The sheep, it is alleged, were ready for shipment on the morning of October 5, 1899, but were not transported until ten days later. Because of defendant's failure, it is alleged, plaintiff lost 1,137 wethers and over 2,000 lambs, on account of the storms and lack of feed. The defense is a general denial and the trial had not concluded when this report closed.
