PRETTIEST GIRL IN NEW YORK.

The prettiest girl ever came to town—a beauty whose features and complexion fix a standard difficult to surpass and provide a type the Gibson girl school cannot equal. That describes Miss Molly Brady, of Connemara, Ireland, who was the most attractive feature of the Irish exposition at Madison Square Garden, New York. She was attached to the Irish fisheries exhibit, and in her red jacket and blue skirt of old-fashioned cut she presented charms which have captivated all the visitors.

Miss Brady is just a plain fisher maiden. She came to this country with Mrs. O'Reilly Neville, to interest the Irish-Americans in a movement to build up the Irish fisheries. Mrs. Neville is the author of the book "Father Tom, of Connemara," a story of the fisherfolk of Ireland.
