

OGDEN.

OGDEN, UTAH, JULY 14, 1905.

Several papers at Salt Lake indicate that the Ogden branch of the Deseret Evening News is to be discontinued at the end of the month, and the paper is to be moved to Denver at that time.

OGDEN BANK EMBEZZLEMENT.

Oscar E. Hill, Secretary-Honorary of the Utah National Bank, has been arrested at Salt Lake City, where he was found by the police.

OGDEN, July 14, 1905.—The name of Oscar E. Hill has been before the public very much during the last week, but it now seems to drop into oblivion.

Until about two weeks ago, when he was arrested, he was the subject of much talk in the city. He was the subject of much talk in the city. He was the subject of much talk in the city.

When all things are over, the hope of the Utah National Bank, Hill still remained, and victory crowned his efforts. The bank people are still at work trying to straighten out matters, but a great amount of labor has been done, and the bank is now in a position to resume business.

Twenty-five street still presents a desolate appearance. The laying of the gas mains will be completed today, and when the sewer construction is all made there will be nothing to prevent the street from being done at a lively rate.

Contrary to expectation, the trouble between Carson & Baughman, contractors on the Southern Pacific bridge, and the bridge employees, was not settled, therefore the work "hangs fire."

The Ahern habeas corpus case was yesterday decided by Judge Miller. The custody of the four minor children was given to Mrs. Ahern, and the petition for a writ of habeas corpus was denied.

The divorce case of Allen P. Burk vs. C. L. Burk, decided by the court yesterday. The divorce was granted, and the custody of the four minor children was given to Mrs. Burk.

Senator Peffer passed through Ogden yesterday on his way to Salt Lake. Mayor Lundy yesterday returned from a business trip to Colorado.

Howard H. Henshaw of San Francisco, assistant engineer of the electric power plant in Ogden, yesterday on important business for his company, the nature of which he would not disclose.

A speech by Frederick Douglass. There has always been a lack of the heart of Frederick Douglass in particular, and a lack of a personal nature. He has had ambition for his race and given his life to help them. During the war he went to the front and ministered to the families of soldiers who were in the army. The fame he has won as orator and public official has been quite as much attention to him in account of his race as on his own account. But there remained the one ambition that he cherished in his own mind, and nobody can blame him who knows what that was. It was that he should see his work well done in his life, and go back to the land of his birth in Maryland, in which he was born and reared, a slave boy of the plantation and slaveholder plantations there and his days as one of the first citizens.

His wish is to be gratified. He has been notified for the purchase of one of the finest estates in Talbot county, Md. Recently while on his way to the Villa, which is the home of his wife, he died at the age of 70, and was buried in the city of Washington.

His death was a great loss to the world. He was a man of great courage and a man of great faith. He was a man of great courage and a man of great faith. He was a man of great courage and a man of great faith.

an attempt and even a closer attempt to a system that is still the victim in France. This is saying, "Life is out of sight." If you are extremely fortunate and happy, what more natural than that you are to be covered with gold? But to be out of sight, or with misfortune in the same way, would the contrary be the case?

It is true that one would hardly say any of the above phrases in a formal sermon or a college commencement oration. But worse phrases than they have become to time gold, chaste English. We would not wish to be understood as recommending for common use, however, the expression, "Life is talking through his hat."

Perhaps before the Cleveland administration ends we shall have an Indian state where the Indian Territory now is. A bill to this effect has been introduced, and it has been favorably reported, authorizing Chief Harris to appoint five commissioners to a conference which will consider the forming of one of the regular states of this Union from the Indian Territory. There are five civilized tribes in the territory—the Choctaw, Chickasaw, Cherokee, Creek and Seminole. It is proposed that each of these shall appoint five commissioners to meet at the conference and discuss the question of forming under one state government. The United States government has made a proposition to the civilized tribes living in this country.

The faculty for the formation of Cradock to Antelope ought to get after that Chicago scheme which will try to make the inhabitants of his famous village by themselves in making during all the last week of the World's fair. If the established viewpoint is the correct one, the last under which that scheme makes his business easier is nothing to the local temperature he himself will be called on to secure one of these days.

The British house of lords cannot certainly last much longer. The rising tide of democracy will rise and overwhelm them. They have lately made themselves more than ever obnoxious to the people by voting down a bill providing that where there was no will addition to Great Britain should share equally in the real estate of their empire. This would be a modified degree of the right of primogeniture, which has lasted so many centuries in Great Britain. The oldest son would inherit his title, but nothing to maintain his state. The law of lords evidently follows the dictum of the old English proverb that "the poor man's son is the best son of his father."

Why the Deseret News should be subscribed for in preference to any other paper.

It is the organ of the Church as Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, and the authorized medium through which the views and instructions of the Church authorities are expressed and given to the people.

It is the only paper in the world that is devoted to the interests of the Latter-day Saints, and has been from the beginning, and will continue to be, the only paper in the world that is devoted to the interests of the Latter-day Saints.
