EDITORIAL NOTES.

Horace Greeley is credited with the saying that the day a young man finds out how he can get a dollar without honestly earning it, is the worst day he ever saw.

The Roseman Aerial Courier says that if Montana had the proper facilities for making her resources known to the world, people would never have settled down in the sage brush of Utah, but would have sought more desirable homes in Montana. Who hinders?

J. Boyle O'Reilly is said to be connected with Archbishop Williams and the purchase of the Boston Pilot and the repayment to those poor people who lost so heavily through Patrick Donohue's default. Donohue is said also to cooperate with Williams and O'Reilly.

The times are out of joint for ecclesiastical unity. It is stated that the joint committee of the Reformed and the Northern Presbyterian churches on the matter of closer co-operation have harmoniously agreed to keep on differing, as they considered it not wise to prosecute the closer co-operation subject any further.

An exchange says there has lately been an epidemic of suicide among the wives of New England clergymen, and would like to know what is the matter with them, suggesting the following as an explanation—"As a rule, as soon as a New England clergyman gets his license to preach, he marries a healthy and fertile young woman, and the rapidly with which they raise up children unto Abraham is a caution to Mormons. The career of a large and increasing family, in connection with the stated income of the average New England clergyman, are enough to craze a woman whose mind is not unusually strong, and may account for an occasional suicide. New England Pharisees should see to it that their clergymen's incomes are inflated as their families increase."

Last Night's Dispatches.

An old man who acted as deputy, and being blind with cords was placed on the floor and together with the other prisoners effected their escape. The men who have been arrested are the jailer; one was under sentence for five years in the penitentiary for burglary.

FOREIGN.

GREAT BRITAIN. Wants to Fight the British.

LONDON, 30.—Advice from Cape Coast Castle report that the king of Dahomey has refused to pay the fine recently imposed on him for mistreating a British subject, and has sent an insolent message to the British commander, inviting him to visit Dahomey, when he promises to pay the fine in gold powder and bullets.

A Continental Yacht Seized.

The Clementina, a combing vessel, was recently seized at Malaga by a Spanish revenue officer; the crew were ordered to be put on shore. A sailor belonging to Gibraltar, and a British subject, was shot and wounded, and left without help for three hours, so that he died of death. Great indignation is felt by the English residents. The matter is in the hands of the British minister.

ITALY. Dead.

FLORENCE, 30.—J. I. Grafani, consul of the United States, is dead.

The "Mary Merritt" Case.

WASHINGTON, 1.—The committee on expenditures in the treasury department, to-day, examined Webster Elmscher, a clerk in the office of the Solicitor of the Treasury, who testified that he had charge of all the papers in the Mary Merritt case, and that he wrote a letter recommending the remission of the forfeiture of the vessel. It is never Secretary Bristow in relation to this case, by conversation or otherwise, and no influence whatsoever was exercised by any person in the department in favor of the remission. The case was considered in the regular course of business, under the direction of Solicitor Wilson. In the opinion of the witness the vessel was not legally seized, and she had a British register, and was not guilty of fraud or other negligence.

General Bristow said that after he became Secretary of the Treasury, he desired to have any case referred to him by the Secretary of the Treasury, and that he had no objection to the case being referred to him, and that he had no objection to the case being referred to him, and that he had no objection to the case being referred to him.

GERMANY. Terrible Boister Explained.

RUDESDERF, 1.—The boiler of a steam ferry boat plying between this place and Bineg, on the left bank of the Rhine, exploded yesterday, and it is believed that thirty persons were killed.

OUR COUNTRY CONTEMPORARIES.

Ogden Junction, April 29.—The morning a boy, who was out cow hunting in the western part of the city, discovered the body of a new born infant which, to all appearances, had recently been killed in a rabbit hole in the edge of a slough. The head of the child seemed to have been broken. The coroner has summoned a jury and will hold an inquest this afternoon.

The bridge over Ogden river, on the State Road is thought to be in danger of being carried away by the high water. We believe that the bridge has already ceased to cross it with safety.

Rauford Bingham, of Riverdale, called at the election office this morning; yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock, a portion of the wagon bridge spanning the river, near that place, went downstream, in consequence of defective piling. The bridge has been considered in danger for some time, and efforts were being taken to prevent the accident which has befallen it, but the movement was not made quite soon enough, it would seem. There is a gap of about fifty feet in the bridge, though we believe a portion of the materials were saved. It is feared that further damage may be sustained, as the west end of the bridge is not considered beyond danger. It is very unfortunate that this bridge has been rendered unusable in consequence of high water. The bridge is a fine structure, and the late election of a new directory for the company proposing to erect a new bridge in this city, something will come of this hazardous undertaking.

Farmer-Mining-The St. George Temple.

LEEDS, April 12, 1876.

Editor Deseret News.

The Spring season is upon us, after varied changes of weather, and farmers are planting and seeding down the fields and pruning up the trees preparing for the abundant harvest.

The mines in this part are opening up with good prospects. Several companies have commenced to ship their ores to market, some to Pioche, some to Salt Lake, J. P. Padlock & Co. have secured an arastra that is proving a success on the Sussex mine, situated in the Grapevine Wash, about a mile and half west of Leeds. The mine on Saturday, April 8, was over $125 in pure silver, accompanied by the labors of four hands. This mine is one of the paying mines on the Eastburg district, and in the hands of stirring workers that mean business. The W. F. Barber mines are opening with the most encouraging prospects, producing an excellent quality of ore. J. M. Coschena, Ferris & Co. are working on the Bonanza mine, which is proving to be one of the best mines in the district. They have shipped thirteen tons of ore to Pioche and the mine has been in operation for some time. This mine, from present appearances, may have a mill of its own in the near future, unless hindrance comes from the various parties are trying to claim the same location. Ferris is one of the first locators, and claims that he has the right to the mine, and is trying to bring it out of his lawful rights, and through false statements by the antagonists of the party, against him to cause him to abandon the mine, but he intends to hold his lawful rights or die on the ground. There are several good prospects in the Eastburg district, and other small streams, which will open the coming season with some considerable interest. The world renowned Deseret mine, which has not yet been found. Though many have labored in vain, prospectors will still follow up reported workings.

The St. George temple looks splendid, whitened to the ground, and is the chief object of attraction to the tops of the surrounding mountains.

WRATTLER.

The monstrous accumulation of scoundrels since the investigating committee was appointed, is producing a temper of the public mind of which nobody can yet see the ultimate effect. Everybody is either a victim or a perpetrator, but nobody can forestall with any precision when the final crash comes, but everybody is preparing for it. The South occupied public attention without any apparent effect on political parties, and the North is now in a state of excitement, and the tide is sweeping down all obstacles. There is something similar in the terrible operations of nature, called at the election office this morning; yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock, a portion of the wagon bridge spanning the river, near that place, went downstream, in consequence of defective piling. The bridge has been considered in danger for some time, and efforts were being taken to prevent the accident which has befallen it, but the movement was not made quite soon enough, it would seem. The Water and the Canal.

SALT LAKE CITY, May 1st, 1876.

Editor Deseret News.

The great topic of conversation at the present time is about the foundation of the lower part of this city, permit me to speak my mind upon this subject, having resided in the fifth ward for the last six years. I find it impossible to control the water in the canal that runs down the mountain, and it is with the canal and the water rushing down from the mountain. Only think for a moment, there is Red Butte, Emigration and Parkway Park waters running into a canal 22 feet wide, with the exception of a little that is allowed to run down what is called the Roper Ditch, and several times when the canal banks and breaking through the sides, the water has been running down the mountain, and it is with the canal and the water rushing down from the mountain.
