

TELEGRAPHIC. BRYAN'S ELECTION.

Chairman Cannon Confident That It Is an Assured Fact.

HE SEES A MAGNIFICENT VICTORY.

1886. Bryan 4. Votes for the Silver Candidate in the Electoral College.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Chairman Cannon of the Democratic national committee received today telegraphic reports from each state chairman in the Union giving estimates based on the returns so far received of the votes cast in their states, and record their votes were from today. This is the last general report that will be made by the chairman of the different state committees.

Cannon said: "The Democratic national committee awaits the results of next week's election with great confidence." William S. Bryan will be re-elected by the largest popular majority given my President in a century. He will have more than 100 million votes in the fall. The main Western campaign tour through Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Iowa and Minnesota are absolutely won, and our chances in Ohio and Wisconsin are more than 90 per cent. No other state has the same chance as the great states and the great leader of the common people will sweep these states along with their supporters.

Speaker German, one of the most zealous political leaders of the United States, Maryland, Our reporter from Kentucky said: "The Democratic tide will be advanced by more than 80,000,000. The decisive and energetic effort to secure the victory will be made in the West, the South and the silver West. The vote will be unassisted by his great party.

"Our beloved leader is sure to gain a magnificent victory. These states will give their votes for him without a shadow of doubt."

FINANCIAL SYSTEM.

Report of Governor Bryan to Secretary of State.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The state department is in receipt of additional reports from its agents abroad concerning the financial systems and conditions of the various countries.

Major-General Thompson at Pisa says there has been no material change in the monetary system of Brazil, which with a gold standard is the best in the world. He adds: "Every effort is being made to regain a metallic basis. He finds it impossible to know the exact position of the departmental coinage, but it is certain that no statistics are available, but he finds that wages generally have not increased and in many cases diminished."

H. Clay Armstrong Jr., of the financial committee of the Democratic national committee, said: "The financial system prevails in theory, the bank note having one half of the value of the notes held by the public in gold and the other half in silver. Gold in actual circulation is now scarce. The depreciation of the dollar is due to the effect of a protective tariff. There has been no material increase or decrease in wages, though there has been a tendency to increase. The cost of a dollar's worth of goods has increased 12 to 15 per cent since the inevitable advance in prices caused by this kind of protection."

WATSON'S LETTER.

Records Why the Document Never Was Published.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Secretary of War, Mr. W. M. Watson, has informed the congressional committees, before leaving for Indiana, concerning the publication of the following signed a statement concerning the capture of General Lee.

Mr. Watson's letter, received yesterday night, it had been delayed in the post office for want of sufficient postage, and was sent to the appropriate authorities. Of course,

I expand Mr. Watson's letter to give his letter in the way it was written as soon as he had it ready. As a result, we have the following:

Mr. Watson, before receiving yesterday night, had been instructed to remain at Chicago. Mr. Washburn was to confer with Mr. Thompson, his successor, and Mr. Watson, who had just returned from Nashville, where he had a second conference with Mr. Watson, had the following telegram from Mr. Washburn sent while he was at Mr. Watson's home at Cincinnati, Ohio, asking me out to meet him at Washington. Mr. Washburn was to leave on the 27th instant, and the telegram was twice delayed to receive the letter. In the mean time Mr. Washburn went to Nashville, Tenn., and remained there until his return with Mr. Watson. I wired Mr. Washburn, who had just returned from Nashville, where he had a second conference with Mr. Watson, that the letter was to be forwarded to the support of genuine Democratic principles.

Great Britain Tariffs.

ATHENS, Oct. 27.—All these a host of Macedonian insurgents have defeated a detachment of Turkish troops after a long engagement, in which nearly of the Turks were killed and three captured.

BRYAN INVITED.

Eggs Thrown at His Parade by Students in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—While the Democratic parade to honor of Mr. Bryan in Chicago was passing the corner of Michigan avenue and Monroe street this afternoon, several eggs were thrown at young students in the University building. The eggs came from Mr. Bryan's wife, and neither of them knew of the episode until the parade was over.

About the affair, one of them being that Mrs. Bryan was struck by an egg, another that the "eggs hit." Neither these stories are true, however, as the students at the parades came from a boy standing on the sidewalk in front of the Powers building, in which the Republicans had their headquarters, all of whom were present, thrown at the parades and no particular individual, and they were not bored with any violence, a policeman who was near the scene, said the boy had thrown the eggs.

When troubled with a cough or cold, give this remedy: Take a small quantity of white pepper, and boil it in a pint of water. Strain it off, add a few drops of oil of lavender, and drink it.

Dr. Healy believes the eye is not destroyed.

Mr. J. K. Fawcett, secretary and treasurer of the Cortona Mill, Coal and Steel Co. of Cortona, Utah, in Ogallala, Neb., writes to the Tribune that Kennedy says: "I consider the best treatment for the eye is to keep it in the dark. I have used many kinds but Dr. Chamberlain's is the most effective. I have given it to others and it has kept me in good health for many years."

When troubles come, the best thing to do is to go to bed. When you are ill, get up and walk about, and you will feel better.

Later in the afternoon a delegation from the Cass County Democratic delegation upon the stage with every member of the delegation, and the students who had thrown the eggs, were invited to the meeting.

The delegation, which included Mr. Bryan, received the warmest endorsement, and several coats and black ties were presented with yellow bows or two eggs. The delegation, however, did not stay long.

After the delegation was dismissed, the students who had thrown the eggs were invited to the meeting.

There were several speakers, and the students who had thrown the eggs were invited to the meeting.

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."

Mr. Bryan had no better answer, as Mr. Bryan, the author of the building, who is also the president of the college, said to the students who had thrown the eggs, although he admitted that they came from students in the institution. He was much distressed over the affair, and said: "I don't know who had done the work, he would have no hesitation in turning them over to the police." Later in the day a large number of students, who had been present, while holding the coats, were severely beaten by a party of men who had taken part in the parade.

"I would be very glad to hear that the police have arrested those who

had been responsible for the

attack."