AMUSEMENTS.

Theater-At the Theater last nigh there was the customary Murray & Mack show, and the customary Murray & Mack audience. This means on the stage, fun on the fast and furious or-der, not over refined, but side-splitting to those who like that sort of thing, and in front of the house, it means an audience jammed from orchestra to top le, mostly with the class of people y rarely seen within the Theater is on first nights. Those who came walls on first nights. Those who can be know just what they were going to see and they were not disappointed, for everything went with a rush, and the people on the stage gave encores galore without the asking. Murray & Mack are evidently names to conjure with to a large section of Salt Lake Theater proves expectable those attracted by vers, especially those attracted by pular prices, and the show may be field on to do heavy business for the

"The Soldier of the Emwas substituted instead and went pire" was substituted instead and went before a very light audience, the un-certainty of the production no doubt having kept many people at home. It is understood that Mr. Royle's at-torney, Mr. Critchlow, will take steps to demand from the Grand an accounting of profits which have resulted from presentations of "Her Fatal Love." The charge is made that this play is a direct steat from Mr. Royle's "Squaw Man." charge is made that this play is a direct steal from Mr. Royle's "Squaw Man," and that many of the characters and incidents are so identical that it would beabsurd to deny that one play was tak-en from the other. Those well informed who have seen both plays, say that the owners of "Her Fatal Love" manuscript who ever they may be, might as well comfors judgment, as any judge or jury in the land would render a verdict assinst them after seeing the two per-formances.
