NEW METHODS OPEN OLD CAMPS.

Mines Abandoned in Years Gone By, Made to Pay by Modern Treatment.

UTAH AND NEVADA EXAMPLES

Large Bodies of Low Grade Ore No Longer Overlooked but Chanced to Bonanzas in Short Order.

One of the most interesting features in mining in the western states at the present time is the rejuvenation of many of the famous old camps, some of which had been entirely abandoned, says the Engineering and Mining Journal. This has been due to several causes, the chief of which are improved methods in mining and smelting, the greater appreciation of the value of possession of the raw materials as a basis of industrial undertakings, and in some cases the reconciliation of previously inharmonious interests; the last is to a large extent a natural sequence of the first two reasons.

In districts, for example, where profitable mining was dependent upon combined action in the pumping of water, a common source of disagreement, appreciation of the increased profit to be realized by modern methods of mining has led to consolidation of previously conflicting interests, as at Tombstone, Arizona, and resumption of operations with the aid of fresh capital.

The mines of Bingham canyon, in Utah, were among the earliest worked of the base-metal mines west of the Rocky mountains, their active exploitation having begun immediately after the completion of the Pacific railroad. They were operated originally as silver-lead mines, but while they still produce lead ore, their present great value is derived from their resources in copper.

The occurrence of the latter was not a new discovery, but its ore, of which there are two kinds, was so low in grade as to be for a long time considered valueless. Improved methods in mining and smelting enabled the mine to be worked profitably, and recently the exploitation of the lower-grade disseminated ore has been undertaken with great promise of success.

Leadville never became a dormant camp, but there was a time when its productivity fell off heavily. In respect to tonnage it is now as large as if not larger than at any time in its history. This is due in no small degree to improvements in mining and smelting methods, which have restored several important properties to the ranks of dividend payers.

Leadville's famous predecessor—Borax, Nevada—was a declining little, when Leadville was waxing to its zenith and for the last ten years has been apparently dead, is now to be reopened in a tentative way under a management which has brought together the old Borek and Richmond interests.

We are prone to consider our great mining districts as short-lived in comparison with the historic mining districts of Europe, like Freiberg, Clausthal, and others, but in spite of our intense exploitation further have been worked to the end of their resources than has been supposed. Our early mining in the west, before extraction and transportation facilities were as economical as they are now, was extremely wasteful. In robbing the mines of their richest ore and then promptly abandoning them, many were ruined that would be profitable today. It does not often pay to work over a mine that has been robbed. The treatment of our mineral resources has been, however, only on a par with that of other of our natural resources of development of our great Western domain. A different era, with different conditions, has now arrived.

Lower Mammoth was also firm and sold at $5, while Star Con. was a little weaker at $2.50. Mercury was held firm at $10, and Uncle Sam Con. closed at $2.50 bid, with $4 asked. Boston Con. fell off slightly and was offered at $15, with Beck Tunnel still coming up, being held at $5, with no bid.

UNCLE SAM DIVIDEND.

Company Will Resume Monthly Payments During December.

The month of December will see the resumption of dividends by the Uncle Sam Consolidated Mining Company.

At the monthly directors' meeting held yesterday, Supt. C. C. Griggs stated that the mine was never in as good a shape since his connection with the property, and it is known that the strong box contains a sum which would warrant a dividend this month.

The directors, however, thought that it would be best to let the treasury grow a little stronger. This was done for the purpose of making assurance doubly sure, that when payments were resumed no unforeseen circumstances could come to make a dividend pass. The stockholders will doubtless approve of the action taken.

COAL CRUSHER READY.

Will be Put in Commission in a Few Days.

The coke coal crusher at the Sunnyside mine will be put into commission today or tomorrow and an output of two-thirds the normal capacity will be reached in a few days. This was done for the purpose of making assurance doubly sure, that when payments were resumed no unforeseen circumstances could come to make a dividend pass. The stockholders will doubtless approve of the action taken.

URGENT NEEDS OF DEEP CREEK MINES

Gardiner Points out that Action On Part of Mine Owners is Necessary.

MANY MINES READY TO SHIP.

Intense Activity Will Obtain When Line of Railroad Has Been Definitely Settled.

J. P. Gardner, the Salt Lake clothing man, who is deeply interested in Deep Creek mines returned to the city this morning. In speaking of the Deep Creek mines he said that while there was considerable activity in the country and the hills full of prospectors that the big mines were only working half the force that they should be. What is needed is some knowledge of where the new line of railroad would come. Action will be taken by the mine owners to the end that the railroad men will give out some definite information. Three surveys have been made, and three lines run. These vary from 5 to 40 miles away from Dutch mountain, which is the first big Deep Creek camp. The difficulty is the mining men do not know just what to do. Large bodies of low grade ore are uncovered which could be handled with the railroad 5 miles away, which could not be touched with a 20 or 40 mile haul. Until the line is settled one and for all, the miners will not know just what class of ore to develop.

Speaking of Dutch mountain Mr. Gardner said that at the Garrison they had great bodies of ore which could be handled at once, but that nothing was being done with them. All the ore taken out in development had washed down the mountain and was lost. Development in the mine has gone about as far as possible until a means to reach the ore is found. In other properties, Mr. Gardner said, the same thing held good. Of those ready to ship and continue shipments for a long time may be mentioned the following mines: Atlantic, Columbia, Confederate, Priest Wing, Herat, Juniper, Lucy L. Red Jacket, Bonanza King, Gold Hill and a dozen other mines of a like character, all producing ore which would be a godsend to the smelters. It is to be hoped that the railroad people will settle the question in the near future. If this is done there will be a wonderful revival in this far-off district.

Ore and Bullion.

The ore and bullion settlements reported by Mesquite yesterday amounted in all to $57,300, divided as follows: Gold, silver, lead and copper ore, $47,400; base bullion, $26,700; gold bars, $13,200.

Utah Dividend.

The directors of the Utah Mining Co. met yesterday afternoon and posted another dividend. The amount is $1,000. The manager's report shows the mine to be in excellent condition.

Solon Spiro has returned from his trip to the Silver King Con. at Park City. He reports work moving finely at the mine.

Manager Rood of the Ontario is still at the mine. Advances from the Park say that the mine is still pouring out water in great volume.

The Taylor and Branton sampler reports the following receipts of ore this morning: Nine Tintic, one Idaho, one Nevada and two Bingham.

Wallace W. Wait, one of the eastern holders of Continental Alta, who has been examining the mine, will leave for his home in Kansas City tomorrow.

Walter James of the Black Rock Mining company, who is in the city for a few days, says the company is developing a bonanza in its Beaver county property.

John Frels, president and general manager of the Heland Consolidated Gold Mining & Milling company leaves shortly for the mine at San Diego, Cal. The mine is owned by Salt Lake parties.

A very encouraging letter was received at the local office of the Utah Mining company this morning. The letter is from Foreman Sutton of the mine and says the ore body lately discovered is holding out finely.

Col. Geo. F. Timms, who engineered the passage of the Florence mining concession through Congress, by which the big company gained 400 acres of land on the Utah reservation, has received his reward by a deed of 213 acres of the same ground.
