AMUSEMENTS.

Salt Lake Theater-Most refreshing was the rendition of FLittle Johnny Jones" at the Theater last night. It is so much of a rarety to see a musi-cal comedy with brains behind the plot, and with actors employed who plot, and with actors employed who know how to act, that last night's audience indulged in any number of gasps of surprise as "Little Johnny Jones" unfolded. It is without doubt the biggest and best thing on that es-pecial order that we have had for many a long night past, and the man-agement will no doubt regret that the season has to be curtailed to two nights and a matinee.

nights and a matinee. The entire performance scintillates with so much cleverness and it con-tains so many individual bits of bright action that it is hard to tell where to begin mention. From the standpoint of "chicness" and cleverness of imitation, Miss Stella Tracy in her three roles takes the pain. Her imitation of Anna Held was admirable. For clean cut and quiet acting of a decidedly artistic sort—a sort that suggested Frank Daniels continually—Mr. Tom Lewis stands foremost. His character Lewis stands foremost. His character was deliciously portrayed from first to last. Mr. Ryan was thoroughly good in the part of the New York politician. Bobbie Barry gave the rare spectacle of a central figure who does not monopolize the stage, and he was ex-cellent in all he had to do. Miss Bafter in the part of the lady reporter was statuesque, charming and tuneful throughout.

DYNAMITE USED.

Serious Clash Between Hill and Harriman Forces in Washington.

Portland, Or., Apell 10.—The Oregon-ian will tomorrow print an article to the effect that on Monday the Hill and Harriman forces met in a serious clash near La Camas.

The Oregonian says that according to the version of the Columbia Valley railroad men, they stole a march on their opponents, the Portland & Seattle railroad forces, and occupied a deep cut hear La Camas, where they began dig-ging to lower the Portland & Seattle grade. The article goes on to say that in order to frighten away the Harriman forces the Portland and Seattle grad-ers dropped dynamite into the cut. The first few sticks, it states, were not lighted. Then several came down with lighted fuses which were promptly pulled out by Chief Engineer Wise, Seeing that their ruse did not frighten away the Harriman graders, the Hill forces are alleged to have dropped down some sticks with such short fuses that it was foolhardy to try and them out, and both crews of railro ers ran away, leaving the dynamite to explode harmlessly. The Portland & Seattle officials deny any knowledge of dynamite throwing, by their construction gaugs.

STUDENTS PREPARING.

Met at University This Morning-Planned For Arbor Day.

Arbor day is to be celebrated at the University of Utah this spring with more preparedness than for many years past, in fact since the year the University first obtained the tract of land, on which the campus has been built, and Prof. Cummings led an expedition of students up to the hill to put out the first trees. Today at the University the weekly policy was given over to talking and planning for Arbor day, and a definite policy was agreed upon. Profs. Allen, Wilson, Bennion, and Cummings were named as a committee of the faculty to supervise whatever work is undertaken. The student body will turn out on Ar-bor day, for at least half of the holiday allowed, and they will have a general cleanup of the campus, remaking ditches and drains, planting trees, and shaping up the class groves, which are to be permanently a feature of the campus. At noon luncheon will be served to the toilers by the girls of the University, under the direction of Miss

Wheeler. The University is to receive outside Arbor day help this year, if present plans mature, as the women's clubs of Salt Lake are preparing to put in an avenue of trees across the campus, bor-dering one of the main driveways. The generally awakened interest in a beau-
