THE EVENING NEWS.

FAITH.

How do the rivulets find their way?
How do the flowers know the day,
And open their cups to catch the ray?

I see the germ to the sunlight reach,
And the nestlings know the old bird's speech;
I do not see who is there to teach.

I see the hare from the danger hide
And the stars through the pathless spaces ride;
I do not see that they have a guide.

He is eyes for all who is eyes for the mole,
All motion goes to the rightful goal;
Oh, God! I can trust for the human soul.

CHARLES G. AMES.

BREVITIES.

An Oshkosh judge got two bars of soap for a marriage fee.

Unpopular music—Thomas's concerts on the back yard fence.

A Chicago sausage maker advertises his wares as "dog cheap."

How to pronounce a Polish name, sneeze three times and say ski.

Ladies are not allowed to wear bonnets at the performances in Drury Lane theatre.

"I preach no narrow God who allows myriads to be damned," says Beecher.

A man in Cincinnati advertising for a situation, says: "Work is not so much an object as good wages."

This is the latest form of wedding invitations: "Come around and see me capture a mother-in-law at 8 o'clock, sharp."

"How many people," says Jeremy Taylor, "are busy in this world gathering together a handful of thorns to sit upon."

The fool seeketh to pick a fly from a mule's hind leg. The wise man letteth out the job to the lowest bidder.

Horse dealer—"I know you don't like his 'ead, and I allow he ain't got a party 'ead; but lor, now look at Gladstone, the cleverest man in all England! and look at 'is 'ead!"

The champion father lives in Carbon County, Pa. He is a German, 73 years old, and is a parent of 30 children, the youngest being only four months old.

A county treasurer in Alabama can't read or write, but he has put $7000 where no one but himself can find it. This shows that a collegiate education isn't essential to the acquirement of wealth.

The most artless fashion editor yet heard from is the young Western person who closed her remarks one day by saying that she didn't know any more then, but was going to church the next day and would learn something.

It was Josh Billings who once urged upon his readers the propriety—nay necessity of assaulting all stray hogs with clubs and rocks, because if the animals were not returning from committing mischief they were on their road to commit mischief.

A Michigan paper advises the boys to marry for love, but reminds them at the same time that it is just as easy to love a girl whose pa has a hundred thousand in bank as one whose old man sits behind a pair of half starved mules.

"Will you please insert this obituary notice?" asked an old gentleman of an editor. "I make bold to ask it, because I know the deceased had a great many friends around here who'd be glad to hear of his death.

At a dinner party recently, Senator Nye put his new silk tile carelessly upon the sofa. A few minutes after, Gen. Butler sat down upon and crushed the hat fearfully. "D—n it," roared Nye, "I could have told you it wouldn't fit before you tried it on."

A colored preacher down South took for his text the words, "Though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh I shall see God," which he divided into three parts as follows: "First, skin worms; second, what they done; third, what the man seen after he was eat up."

While dressing, Fanny Ellsler was subject to the deepest melancholy, which disappeared as though by magic, at the sound of the music. When dancing, she was, as it were, electrified by feverish delight, which sometimes became actually convulsive.

Every fashionable woman in Paris hangs to her belt an alms-bag, a fan, a card-case, a pocket-book, an umbrella, a turnip watch, a pincushion, some ivory tablets and a little mirror. And the sons of women like these are expected to knock the nonsense out of Germany some day—Louisville Courier-Journal.

They say that there wasn't a chignon, rat or friz visible at the opening of the operatic season in New York, the other evening.

In days gone by the darling girls
Wore high-necked dresses, natural curls,
Loved flannel, cakes and honey;
But now, the dresses are quite low,
False hair around their shoulders flow,
Their only love is—money.

Anthony Trollope, in one of his novels, says, very cleverly, that nothing makes a man so cross as success, or so soon turns a pleasant friend into a captious acquaintance. Your successful man eats too much, and his stomach troubles him; he drinks too much and his nose becomes blue. He wants pleasure and excitement, and roams about looking for satisfaction in places where no man ever found it. He frets himself with his banker's book, and everything tastes amiss to him that has not on it the flavor of gold. The straw of an omnibus stinks; the linings of the cabs are filthy. There are but three houses in the city at which an eatable dinner may be obtained. And yet a few years since how delicious was that cut of roast goose to be had for a shilling at the eating house near Golden square! Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Green, Mrs. Walker and all the other mistresses, are too vapid and stupid and hum-drum for endurance. The theatres are as dull as Leith, and politics have lost their salt. Success is the necessary misfortune of life, but it is only to the very unfortunate that it comes early.
