OLD TRADITION FAILS TO HOLD

Ogden Surprised Salt Lakers by Taking Two Graceful Defeats.

PERCENTAGE CRAWLING UP.

Hope is Now Felt That Salt Lake Will Gain Lead in Baseball League.

There is hope for Salt Lake. With nine games played, it ranks second in the state baseball league, while with six games played Ogden ranks first only by a percentage that another loss for Ogden will turn into second honors.

The first trimming Ogden received was Saturday afternoon at Walker's field, when Salt Lake's percentage shot up to 500, and the second was yesterday afternoon, when Salt Lake took another upshot to .500 and Ogden fell down from 1.000 to .667. Saturday Bluxrud was in the box for Ogden and Jensen for Salt Lake, and Sunday Hopkins and Hall held down the two places.

The game Saturday opened well for Ogden as two runs were scored in the first. Then both sides played steady ball until the ninth when Salt Lake was ahead by one run, and the score was 4 to 3. This inning became seriously important as the bases filled up for Ogden, and it looked for a time that Lobster brand would be selling high. All the bases had live men on them when Bluth struck out, sending the last man to timber, and saving the day to Salt Lake.

YESTERDAY'S GAME.

The game yesterday brought out about 1,000 fans, who saw a game well worth their money, and played up to the minute by both sides, for the Ogdenites were not strong for being back up to the woods a second time, without a hard fight. Traditionally Salt Lake ough to have lost like the good little bunch it has always been, but traditions seem to have had their day, and the team was on the win. Hall, the new pitcher for Salt Lake, allowed only four scattered singles, which fell into the hands of waiting Salt Lakers, and it was not until the ninth that Ogden managed to pull in even its one little score. Salt Lake scored in the first and second only.

PARK CITY TRIMMED.

Taken Into the Fold by Eureka in Exciting Game.

At Park City yesterday the Eureka team took the locals into camp by a score of 10 to 9, in a game that was thoroughly sensational. Eureka's narrow victory ought to have been larger, and would have been but for a strong batting rally in the eighth on the part of Park City. Rush was in the box for Eureka, and Park City had a long and difficult task in solving him.

New York, June 4.—The Columbia crews will leave this morning for Poughkeepsie to begin training for the annual intercollegiate regatta over the Hudson course. The crews will be quartered again at Red Top. Only the varsity crews are certain of making the trip, the freshmen having failed in their effort to raise the funds necessary to enable them to compete. However, the rowing authorities at the university have told the freshmen to report at the station pending a final decision as to whether they are to go.

Although forbidden by his physician from rowing, Captain Post will accompany the crew squad and assist in the coaching. The members of the crew are:

Varsity eight—Bow, A. P. Braum, '07; 2, E. S. Roy, '08; 3, G. L. C. Earle, '08; 4, G. L. Helmrich, '08; 5, C. H. Ferris, '08; 6, J. N. Boyle, '06; 7, G. S. O'Loughlin (captain), stroke; G. G. Mackenzie, '08, and Coxswain H. Dorsey, '08.

ROAD RACE TO LAGOON.

Large Crowd Was Out and Watched Bikers Ride in Annual Event.

The fates seem to be against outdoor sports this spring. Four big rainstorms, with weeks of pleasant weather between spoiled four big track meets, and a Decoration day road race. Saturday afternoon another shower made impromptu seas of mud for the bikers, and through these they plowed to the finish at Farmington, just a little ways south of the Lagoon station.

It was too sloppy underfoot for fine work by the bikers, and consequently the scratch men failed to finish in the honor positions, with the exception of Archibald. It was a run to the finish line for first place between Burton Hardy and Vern Harrison, who came down the final stretch abreast, after teaming from Bountiful on. Archibald, from the scratch, finished third.

Nearly every rider had experience with mud and pools of rainwater on the way out and suffered a spill or two. The summary is as follows:

YAWL TAMERLANE.

Crosses the Finish Line in the Bermuda Yacht Race.

Hamilton, Bermuda, June 3.—The yawl Tamerlane, owned by Frank Maier and sailed my Captain Thomas Fleming Day, competing in the Brooklyn yacht club's ocean race to Bermuda for the Lipton cup, was sighted at 11:30 o'clock this morning and crossed the finish at 3:28 p. m. The Tamerlane reports that she has not seen the sloop Gauntlet, owned by G. W. Robinson, another competitor for the cup.

The yawl Tamerlane, the sloop Gauntlet and the yawl Lila, respectively 38, 28 and 40 feet in length, started May 26 in a 650-mile race to Bermuda in the Brooklyn Yacht club's contest for a cup offered by Sir Thomas Lipton. When seven miles off Sandy Hook the Lila, which was leading, carried away her mast, and Commodore Maier, seeing her distress, ordered the Tamerlane about to succor his club mate. The Lila and the Tamerlane returned to the yacht club anchorage in Gravesend bay, and on May 29, after a new mast had been stepped in the Lila, made a fresh start in the race. The Tamerlane allows the Gauntlet a handicap of sixteen hours and ten minutes. The Lila conceded three hours to the Tamerlane and nineteen hours ten minutes to the Gauntlet. The Tamerlane and Lila each carried a crew of six men. Four persons comprised the crew of the Gauntlet, but on board in addition was the wife of Mr. Robinson, the owner of the boat.

CASSATT DEFENDS THE PENNSYLVANIA

Declares Shippers of Coal and Other Freights on an Absolute Equality.

IF WAS ANY DISCRIMINATION.

Could Only be in Distribution of Empty Coal Cars, of Which Was No Proof.

Philadelphia, June 3.—A. J. Cassatt, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, arrived at his home at Haverford, Pa., a suburb of this city, from Europe about noon today. He will be at his office in Philadelphia tomorrow morning. This evening Mr. Cassatt gave to the Associated Press the following statement:

Cassatt said he had returned home to take part in the investigation by the board of directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad company into the matters that had been disclosed during his absence in the proceedings before the interstate commerce commission. He had received only brief cable reports from the office of the company and knew nothing of the details, but from these reports and from cables to the London press he had learned that charges had been made against certain officials of the acceptance of bribes from coal operators. The board would investigate all such charges exhaustively and if any officer or employe should be found guilty of corrupt practises he would be summarily dealt with.

Referring to the testimony of certain officers that they held stocks of coal companies, and to the inference drawn by the newspapers that favoritism and discrimination on a large scale had been practised for the benefit of the companies whose stocks were thus held, Mr. Cassatt said that while such ownership by officers in a position to exercise favoritism and therefore liable to suspicion was no doubt inadvisable and unfortunate, it was not an offense in itself if the stocks were properly acquired and was not contrary to the bylaws of the company; in fact, the management had in the earlier years of the company encouraged the officers to aid in the development of industries along its lines. The wrong, if any had been done, was in the alleged favoritism.

There could be no favoritism in rates, as shippers of coal and all other freights were on an absolute equality; all paid the full tariff rates without rebate. Mr. Cassatt made himself personally responsible for the absolute correctness of this statement. If there was any discrimination it could only be in the distribution of empty coal cars, and so far as he knew, no proof had been produced that the officers concerned had been guilty of such favoritism. The board would, however, also inquire carefully into these matters and if there had been any wrong-doing would take proper action, but it would not sacrifice faithful and efficient officers to a manufactured and a mistaken public opinion.

The board would also, no doubt, consider the general question of propriety of the ownership by officers and employes of stocks of coal and other companies using the Pennsylvania railroad lines and make regulations in relation thereto. There had always been a shortage of coal cars during periods of every year and in recent years this condition had been aggravated by the great increase in the production of coal, notwithstanding the very large increases the company had made to its equipment.

This had given rise to many complaints, and, as a natural consequence, to charges of discrimination. If the output of coal should continue to increase in the same ratio as in the past few years it might not be possible to provide sufficient equipment to avoid a shortage in the car supply at times. In view of this and of the suspicion which such ownership would create, officers having to do with the distribution of empty cars ought not to own coal stocks, but to prohibit all officers and employes from holding stock of companies having business with the Pennsylvania Railroad company would practically bar them from investing in the stock of the companies located in the state of Pennsylvania and in a half dozen other states.

The subject was troublesome and complicated. It would do no good, but harm, to adopt unworkable and unenforceable regulations. The question must be handled in a reasonable and practical way, and Mr. Cassatt had no doubt the board would succeed in solving it satisfactorily and in formulating proper rules of conduct in this respect for the officers.

Though the testimony before the commission might disclose instances of individual misconduct, and though an effort seemingly organized, had been made to place the management in the most unfavorable light, Mr. Cassatt asserted that the company's affairs were honestly conducted in the interest of the shareholders and with a full recognition of its duty to the public. The company had in its employment over 160,000 men who in character, efficiency and devotion to its interests had, in their respective spheres, no superiors anywhere. The management had in the past shown itself entitled to the confidence of the public and it should be trusted now to deal properly with the present situation.

Mr. Cassatt thought, too, that the management deserved better treatment than it had received from the press, and particularly from the press of the company's home state. It had rendered an immense service to the public and to the cause of honesty and decency in the conduct of the transportation business, when, in the early part of the year 1900, two years before the passage of the Elkins act, it gave notice that no more rebates would be paid and that all shippers, great and small, would be placed upon a basis of perfect equality.

It had thus inaugurated a movement which, having been joined in by other railroads and aided later by the passage of the Elkins act, had destroyed a vicious system almost as old as the railroads themselves and which had become so deeply rooted that many experienced railroad men doubted the possibility of eradicating it. The management had done other things that deserved the commendation of the public and of the press. It had taken the company out of politics and it has done away with the free pass evil. But the press generally in its present hostility to the railroads was only falling in line with an anti-corporation public sentiment which had been created by some of the leaders of the two great political parties who were trying to outbid each other for popular support by attacking large vested interests indiscriminately. If this course were pursued much longer it could only result in undermining confidence, in the suspension of improvements and in general business depression from which the whole coutry would suffer.
