

of Wm. Penn and his second wife. To molest any of these graves, to molest, most of all, the chief among them, that of Wm. Penn, would be a desecration. Such was the opinion of all Americans as well as the English. They would not like to see the grave touched on any account. Nowhere could Penn's remains rest so suitably as beneath the elms of the quiet spot, where, with others, he had worshipped in unquiet and dangerous times, and where, at his own request, he was buried. This opinion found unanimous expression in a resolution which was passed at the meeting to the extent that nothing would ever induce the trustees of the little graveyard to allow one of the graves to be molested. They had heard that a sum of money had been collected to purchase a grave for Penn's bones, but they smiled at the simplicity of anyone who could suppose that money could have any effect upon them. For anything which they intended to do or which they could be induced to do in the matter, the remains would stay where they are forever. Minutes to this effect were entered upon the record of the day's proceedings, and a committee was appointed to see that nothing was done contrary to this resolution, should any direct application be made for the removal of Penn's body. Up to the present this has not been the case. It should be said that these views are in accordance with the wish of Col. Stuart, whose wife is a descendant of the original founder of Pennsylvania, and who still enjoys the pension of £4,000, which was granted to the family in lieu of the money lent by William Penn to Charles the Second. Among those elected upon this committee for the safeguard of the grave may be mentioned the names of R. Littleboy, of Newport; Pagnell, Luke Hitchings and Mr. Brownton, councillor, of Liston. The first named is the chief trustee of Jordan's meeting house. He writes to the Times this morning the following letter:

"The intimation in your correspondence from the United States relative to the removal of the body of Penn from its resting place at Jordan's, in Buckinghamshire, to America, takes me by surprise. As a trustee of the burial ground, I may say that the trustees have received no application on the subject, and if made it would not be entertained."

Dublin, 6.—The expedition of the Coldstream Guards is concluded by their return to Dublin. Their last day's work was much more ignominious than the first, for none of the cases of eviction yesterday were agrarian, nor did any of them arise out of the land war. The column having breakfasted early, proceeded to the house of Widow Mulcahey who was living in a little roadside cabin near Kilarney. She was being evicted not by the landlords, but by a tenant of Mr. Squan, member of Parliament for Limerick. That tenant was her own mother. It appeared that her mother gave the house and a bit of land to her daughter as her marriage portion who was about to be married. She was turning out the first daughter to make room for the other. The eviction occupied an hour, but it appears that after the soldiers left, the woman forcibly took possession again. This was purely a family quarrel. Mr. Goddard, of the Property Defense Association, said that he would not allow his bailiffs to assist at another such eviction, the object of the society being to fight the land league, not to take part in domestic quarrels.

The Guards marched back to camp, disgusted with their ignoble work, wet and hungry. Very few people gathered to witness any evictions. There were never more than 50 present; no hostiles appeared on the scene, and there was no excitement. The people gathered in the village street, and on several occasions women and children hooted, and on one occasion about 20 police of the rear guard charged them with batons and beat every one who happened to be in the way. All who hooted ran away, while many quiet and peaceful men who were talking in the streets were badly beaten. Thus ended the last campaign of the Coldstream Guards. To Waterloo and Crimea upon their battle flags must be added: "Jim Kennedy's holding" and "Widow Mulcahey's acre." But when it comes to this, that 400 of her Majesty's troops and 300 police spend two days in evicting Irish tenants, the situation in Ireland is indeed extraordinary.

The government is very reticent about affairs in Ireland, and nothing trustworthy is to be gathered from the Irish press on the subject; the Anti-Home rule papers exaggerating the actual situation. The local correspondent of the Central Press refrains from motives of prudence, from giving the details of the collisions occurring almost daily in the disturbed districts throughout Munster. Several correspondents in the smaller towns and villages have been "Boycotted," and one was roughly handled by a mob at Killamock, but if the evidence of persons who are in a position to obtain fairly accurate information goes for anything, the country is on the brink of a civil war.

At a land meeting in the suburbs near Dublin to-day, Messrs. Sexton and Haly spoke to about 4,000 people. The only remarkable incident was the reference by Mr. Healy to Secretary Foster, being a challenge to him to repeat in Ireland what he said in Parliament. Healy said he might say that he was there chiefly to reply to the challenge issued to him by Buckshot Forster. That gentleman had challenged him to come to Ireland and his answer to Mr. Foster was, "Here I am." Although he was present in response to that challenge, which he considered a most insolent and truculent act, it was as if a man in full armor had challenged a man defenseless to mortal combat. He would remind Secretary Forster that there was some countries to which it would be safe to challenge him to come. There were other countries where the code of honor still prevailed, where gentlemen stood on a more equal footing than they did in Ireland. If he (Healy) thought this gallant York-ireman would cross the channel to other lands, he would extend every courtesy to him. Mr. Healy concluded by improvising some doggerel lines.

HALL'S
HAIR
RENEWER

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care. Its effects are as wonderful and satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color. It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff; and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean. By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong. As a dressing nothing has been found so effectual, or desirable. Dr. A. A. Hayes, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says of it: "I consider it the best preparation for its intended purposes."

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE,
For the Whiskers.

This elegant preparation may be relied on to change the color of the beard from gray or any other undesirable shade, to brown or black, at discretion. It is easily applied, being in one preparation, and quickly and effectually produces a permanent color which will neither rub nor wash off.
