O Lord of Hosts, we now invoke, fered was that they believed in plural marriage; that it this was done away evelation on plural marriage was at all, after death, for all marriages Were only until death did them part. The Saints believed that the Lord Jesus came and gave His life for the salvation of mankind; they understood

There were some who had their names enrolled in the Lamb's book of life from before the foundation of the world, and were ordained to perform certain labors before they ame on the earth, as, for instance, Jeremiah, who was ordained from before his birth to be a prophet unto the nations of the earth, Paul, Moses, Job and others understood, and spoke were laid; this joy was not in antici-pation of happiness in the state of inoriality, but in eternity. Adam was placed on the earth, and his wife was united with him for eternity. It was claimed that by the fall, Adam, broke the covenant by bringing death, but Christ came and restored all things and He declared, what God hath joiner together let not man put asunder. The Apostle had also said that the man was not without the woman in the Lord Christ was the head of the man, and man the head of woman; this was the rule in the eternal worlds as well this in their pre-existent state.

the rule in the eternal worlds as well as in this mortal sphere. The covenant of marriage in the Christian world was not by authority of God, and was only until death. Those who had not received authority from God had no right to act in his name. The Scripture declared that marriage was well as in this mortal sphere. The covenant of marriage in the Christian world was not by authority of God, and on the covenant of marriage was office and at Deseret Paper Mill. from this, the everlasting covenant, a was pre licted by Isaiah. As a resu of this, there were to be great judg ments poured out on the carth, but few men should be left. The i of the land had no right to take the daugnters of God and give them to men, contrary to His will. Men had no right to govern the contract of mar riage that was God's province. On of the great sins in the days of Noah, was that the sons of God took the daughters of men to wife without auhority of God. These sons of God were those who held the Priesthood, and the daughters of men were those who were cast out for sin. Other eternal prin ciples than that of marriage had also been transgressed by the sectarian world-laith, with all its attendant powers and blessings; repentance: aptism, and the reception of the Holy thost. The world dare not claim that those who celebrated marriages among them were called of God, for they could not substantiate their claim. And as it was in the days of Noah, so was it o be in the days of the coming of the Son of Man. The present age an-swered the description of that period as given by the Prophets of God, in this respect at least. When the Almighty, in these last days, restored fils ever-lasting Gospel, the world became en raged and persecuted His prophe Joseph Smith: and with each new prin-ciple this hatred waxed more bitter. When the everlasting covenant of mariage was restored, to reinstate this sons and daughters, and make them fegltimate, the evil One became more angry; he had succeeded in breaking the covenant, after mighty efforts, and was naturally reatly incensed at the restoration of a lower. The principle of marriage for ternity was for the purpose of bring ing happiness in the family relation. Plural marriage was not opposed to the unity of the family; it bound that relationship more closely, and was a means whereby those who did the will of God might become heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ. The marriage for eternity could not be narriage for eternity could not be broken by death, but in the resurrecon they would be united again, in creater love and happiness. Those narriages not celebrated by God's au the resurrection. The idea that there was no union in the marriage relation in eternity would make it necessary to destroy the principle of love between husband and wife. The principle of marriage as practiced by the Saints of God provided a head for the woman, as Christ was the head of the woman, as Christ was the head of the man. It extended to woman the right to be honored, elevated, respec-ted and protected throughout all eter-nity, instead of making outcasts of them as was the practice of, and the tendency of the principles advocated in, the Christian world.

The speaker testified that the work of God was progressing and increasing; the present cru-sade was awakening greater inter-est among the honest-in-heart in the world, and the number of converts to he truth was being augmented. The burch would continue to increase and God would establish His kingdom power on the carth. Elder Junius F. Wells was next called to address the congregation. He said that the testimony of Brother Palmer to the restoration of the Gospel would meet with a hearty response in the heart of every Latter-day Saint, and it was the possession of that tes-timony from God among the Saints that constituted them a peculiar peo-ple. They had become so fully con-vinced of the truth of the principles bey believed that they could stand up they believed that they could stand up and advocate them unto the world. These principles were not of men, but had been revealed from God; they had gathered the Saints from every nation where the Gospel had found them, and had caused them to for-sake all their evil ways and make sacrifices for the cause of God

They had suffered persecution, not for any wrong-doing on their part, for the uppermost desire of their hearts was to serve God, in truth and righteous Hereby cautions the public NOT to ness. The Latter-day Saint Elders aland to all who obeye the Gospel came the message to proclaim that Gospel to their fellowmen; this was the head and front of their offense before the world They taught revelation from God, and were rejected, hated and maltreated by those who loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil. When the Saints besought to repent, there were those calling themselves Christians who fel heir craft was in danger and resorted to force, even slaying the servants of God, in an attempt to thwart His pur oses. But the bloodlof the martyrs and been the seed of the Church in this ation of the Church, they numbered but ix members; each persecution inreased that number. They came to the west as American citizens, and occupied this Territory in the name of

Republic when it was foreign they had not molested of other faiths: they had prayed for their enemies, and had built temples and taught the doctrines of peace. In return for these virtues their enemies made a distinction be-tween them and American citizens. Where are the American citizens, if not among the Latter-day Saints, among the chief members of whom are many who can trace their ancestry back seven or eight generations here in America? The Saints were not disloyal to American institutionf, and never had been. They were assailed among the Latter-day Saints, among never had been. They were assailed by persons who were corrupt hyporites, and who would be remembered The Priesthood of the First Ward could come among the Saints-a people who looked upon unchastity as second only to murder, and with honor to himself administer such an infamous Elder Wm. M. Palmer was the first statute as the Edmunds law. No hon-speaker. He felt happy in baying the privilege of meeting with the Saints, and in speaking in defence of the princept a position which required and in speaking in defence of the prin-ciples of eternal life. The Saints had great reason to be thankful to God, that He had enabled them to understand and obey the principles of the Gospel. No principle taught by them could be gainsayed through the Scriptures, and the only argument in the least effective against them was mob violence. They were despised and hated by the world, and the excuse offered was that they believed in plural constitute the best citizen; he asserted constitute the best citizen; he asserted that the monogamous relation of marthey would be left in peace. This was riage was at the foundation of not so, for the heaviest persecutions successful government, and that the the Saints had suffere I were before the lather of a family was the best citizen. published to the world. The world had demanded that the Saints should become like them. This they could not do, and be consistent with the Scriptures. The Saints believed in having one wife, and also in having more than one. The marriages of the Christian world left them without any at all latter death for all marriages. The more fidelity to husband and wives, more of every Christian virtue than existed among the monogamists. The world, if mons," would be better to them

By that rule the President's father was every Christian virtue than existed among the monogamists. The world, if than they were. The opponents of "Mormonism" claimed they wished to do the "Mormons" good, but to do this they ought to send virtuous, in telligent men to do the work, and no the corrupt and degraded. It needed no armies, though there was no safer place in the land for U.S. troops than in Utah; no one would injure them. The Saints were a people of peace, and they had the Gospel of Christ to preach to the world. Those who fought against them fought against God. The work called "Mormonism" and acted on this principle. They told of the sons of God having shouted for many, before the foundations of the earth in the benefit of the sons of the earth in the benefit of the benef the human family, who should investigate its principles, that they might not be found opposing the purposes of the Eternal Father. The choir sang the anthem, "Sweet is Thy Mercy," and benediction was pronounced by Elder Theodore Mc
