

ADJACENT CITIES

PROVO.

The Nelson Murder Case; Nature of the Evidence—Other Notes.

Provo Jno Correspondent.

Provo, April 10.—The testimony in the Nelson murderer case was concluded on Saturday last. The defendant was placed on the stand. After making the preliminary statement that he was 22 years of age, the oldest of four children, and that he had been supported by his father before his employment in the bank, he came to the point of the tragedy. On that evening he left home at 6:30 to go to the bank. He went on the street west of Main. On the way he went into the Bank block, got a couple of cigars, and then went into the Oman hotel offices to look at some bank statements as published in the Salt Lake papers. From here he proceeded directly to the bank, to attend to correspondence, as was usual. He picked up a paper and read a short time before commencing work. He stepped out of the bank for a minute or two during the evening, and while he was at the bank, Mr. Rosenthal, who is in Provo, New Jersey, came to the bank door. At 7:30, he received word of his father being shot, and with his informant, he went to his father's side. From his grandfather's he went home to account of illness. In the morning, he went to see his father, and while there covered up the tracks with a blanket. After he had gone to bed on the night of the shooting, Mr. Anderson, a director of the bank, came for the keys. He refused to deliver them as his father alone was responsible for the keys. He was interrogated concerning the shooting in the morning following the shooting, that he was suspected of having committed the crime, and on seeing Sherriff Burns, he handed over his revolver. There were four cartridges in the revolver at the time. He also handed the gun on the Friday preceding the shooting for the purpose of cleaning the gun, but had not cleaned it, as he claimed. He had no hand in the killing of his father, but he did not commit the deed. His father died in his arms. A pair of old overalls were identified by the defendant as being his.

Nelson's testimony in direct examination was delivered in a truly straightforward manner, but when Mr. Zane directed a steady gaze at him and subjected him to a most severe cross-examination, he first became technical, then showed his ignorance, and finally a little indifferent in his replies.

A shotshower testified in a massingment of Nelson's old shoe being 20 inches. The tracks in the snow measured 8 inches.

Two witnesses testified that the father, a short time before his death, had stated that he did not believe Peter was guilty.

A couple of witnesses were examined in rebuttal. Two days will suffice for the examination by the attorneys in arguing the case.

NOTES.

It has been suggested by one of the local engineers of the Denver & Rio Grande that in the event of the mill-being rebuilt, it would at least be feasible, and perhaps advisable, to put in a wood pulp plant on Provo river, near the mouth of Provo canyon. Wood, we are told, can be obtained in abundance at a comparatively small cost, and the water power of that vicinity is unexcelled in the west.

The building of the new Congregational church at the corner of 1st and Temple streets has been contracted to Cummings & Daily. Work is commenced at once.

Winter apparently is not over yet. The price of cloth, wool, and cotton from their suppliers on Sunday morning to find the ground covered with snow; with here and there a plant or flower peeping through the white expanse.

A case of diphtheria has appeared in the First ward. The patient is an infant.

Mr. Marshall Clark went to Salt Lake yesterday to bring before the murderer, and bring him before Justice Blackburn, and arrange for his sentence. Hiram Green, the alleged thief, will also be brought down from the pen to be tried.

OGDEN.

A Building Bureau—Work of the Ogden Smelter May Begin—the Silver Question—Other Judgments.

Judge A. H. Patten, president of the Ogden chamber of commerce, received official telegraphic notice from Major Shedd, of the new smelter company, that the work of erecting the recently-constructed buildings would be actively pursued. The latter part of the week Judge Patten stated, from information received from Shedd, that the delay in getting the new furnace in the dock of the machinery company to furnish the smelter company with the required machinery, was due to the fact that the smelter company had been unable to procure sufficient labor in Ogden's vicinity. These difficulties, however, have been overcome, and the smelter company has been disappointed in getting in machinery, but now it is said to be continuing its work. The smelter company has engaged the services of a number of mechanics in Ogden's vicinity. These difficulties, however, have been overcome, and the smelter company has been disappointed in getting in machinery, but now it is said to be continuing its work. The smelter company has engaged the services of a number of mechanics in Ogden's vicinity.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut, board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

On April 18th the street committee of the city council will open the bids received by them for the construction of paving Twenty-first Street, from Wall to Washington avenue, with asphaltum and Utah sandstone blocks. No bids from parties other than bona fide residents of Ogden will be received. This work is to be done by the Ogden contractor, Ogden Manufacturing Company, and Ogden material men to be used as possible.

On Friday, Brown, the burglar who gave Sheriff Belton so much trouble last weekend, was released from the Salt Lake County jail where he had been confined for six months.

Saturday night he was picked up at Ogden by Officer Sleeth, behind Moyer's saloon, and placed in the city jail, where he will remain until this afternoon, when he will be given a trial date.

A vacant house on Twenty-first Street, between Moore and Ogden avenues, the property of H. H. Roop, was almost totally destroyed this morning about 3 o'clock, entailing a loss of about $300. Both departments responded, but by the time the Central fire department arrived the branch department had the fire nearly out.

The origin of the fire was probably incendiary.

On Monday afternoon the finance committee of the city council will meet and open the bids received for $150,000 issued in general improvement bonds. The regular session of the council will take place at 7 p.m., and sell the bonds in the highest bidder.

Considerable interest is being taken in the sale by Eastern bond houses, and the bidding may possibly exceed.

Five carloads of grading rails, including 100' lengths, were chartered, and were forwarded from Ogden yesterday night, in Fort Casper, Wyoming.

It is said the outfit is to be used in constructing the Utah & Wyoming railroad from Fort Casper to Ogden.

Word has been received that Mr. Nathaniel Gordon, of Exeter, New Hampshire, has sold his interest in the management of the New Haven and New Bedford railroads to Ogden city. This makes $20,000 received by this institution for endowment during the last two years.

The burning of the Granite paper mills has raised serious loss to the junk men of Ogden, who will now have to hold onto their stock of rags or ship it elsewhere.

NANI HALLS.

Hans Jansen, Bishop of Manihi, among the visitors to the city today to pay the visitation of the new minister, said that the work of erecting the recently-constructed buildings would be actively pursued. The latter part of the week Judge Patten stated, from information received from Shedd, that the delay in getting the new furnace in the dock of the machinery company to furnish the smelter company with the required machinery, was due to the fact that the smelter company had been unable to procure sufficient labor in Ogden's vicinity.

These difficulties, however, have been overcome, and the smelter company has been disappointed in getting in machinery, but now it is said to be continuing its work. The smelter company has engaged the services of a number of mechanics in Ogden's vicinity. These difficulties, however, have been overcome, and the smelter company has been disappointed in getting in machinery, but now it is said to be continuing its work. The smelter company has engaged the services of a number of mechanics in Ogden's vicinity.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut, board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,

board of trade relative to the free coinage of silver. The resolutions in question were introduced by Colonel Jacob C. Smith, a member of the Connecticut delegation to the Senate, and were unanimously adopted by the Hartland board of trade. The Denver board of trade recently acted on the matter, and as a result a new pamphlet entitled "The Free Coinage of Silver," prepared by the Hartland organization, has been published and sent out. The object of the Ogden chamber of commerce is to urge resolution to transmit to the Connecticut State Legislature immediate action on a similar bill against its adoption, and to acquaint that company with the fact that the people of the west stand ready at all times to support its business way those who trample on their rights.

A meeting of the directors of the Ogden chamber of commerce is called to-morrow, to take action on the remaining points of the January 1st bill by the Hartland, Connecticut,