

TOO MANY CATTLE IN MILLARD CO.

Overgrazing on Water Sheds
Has Destroyed Vegetation.

FOREST RESERVE IS WANTED.

People of Fillmore and Adjacent Towns Request Government to Act in the Matter at Once.

A new forest reserve is wanted by the people who reside in Kanosh, Meadows, Fillmore, Holden, Oak City and Leamington. They have formulated a petition setting forth their needs and last evening it was forwarded to Washington by Senator George Sutherland. The endorsement of Senator Sutherland is favorable, and urges upon the department of the interior immediate action in the premises.

The reason for the petition is that overgrazing on the mountain tops from which the water supply for the region is obtained has denuded them, and in addition has made tracks of dust which is washed down into the streams after each rain.

A set of resolutions adopted at a convention held in Fillmore Sept. 11 accompanied the petition. They set forth that the convention was called to take such steps as the convention deemed necessary to have the government adopt measures to preserve the sources of water supply in that vicinity.

The Millard county mountains, it is set forth, form the source of water supply for drinking, cooking and irrigation purposes for all the towns joining in the petition. In recent years the mountains have been extensively grazed by stock brought in from other regions, and this has caused the underbrush, grass and shrubbery to rapidly disappear, so that the water floods down in early spring, and has disappeared by the time irrigation season begins.

The disappearance of mountain springs is also charged to the cattle, as they have made paths through which the water finds its way down the mountain sides instead of sinking in to reappear later in the form of springs.

The paths are complained of for another reason too. It is that they become as dusty as city streets, and bring down a mass of dust into the creeks each time it rains, thus rendering them unfit for culinary purposes.

For all these reasons it is asked of Uncle Sam that he proceed to establish a forest reserve of the mountain section so that its water sheds may be protected and the valuable sources of water supply may be safeguarded. The name of the Payson forest reserve is suggested for the strip.

IRON WORKS REMOVAL.

Hearing Set for Oct. 2 on Promise That Part Of Nuisance Will be Abated.

Judge Morse yesterday afternoon set the hearing on the order to show cause to the injunction suit brought by Amy J. K. Smith and others against the Silver Bros. Iron Works company for Oct. 2, with the understanding, however, that if the defendant fails to abate part of the nuisance complained of by Tuesday the plaintiff may come into court and ask for a temporary restraining order. The defendant agreed to stop the operation of a large electric hammer in the next Tuesday afternoon and hence it is done the matter will rest until the date set for the hearing. The hammer makes so much noise that the residents near the works are very much disturbed.

MRS. BILLINGS AT REST.

Large Number of Friends Pay Tribute
Of Respect to Much Loved Companion.

The funeral yesterday afternoon of Mrs. Flora Dismore Billings was attended by a large number of friends. The house was filled, and many were unable to gain entrance. The high esteem in which Mrs. Billings was held was evidenced by the fact that friends of all shades of religious faith were present to mourn the untimely death of the lovable young wife and mother. The service was placed exactly where she stood two years ago last May to the funeral of her husband, who perished in the wrecking ceremony was present to conduct the funeral services. It was also who ordered flowers for the wedding, and who again found it with her sphere of her duties to order flowers for the funeral. Mrs. Billings was an affecting address, setting forth in brief loss to the family and friends by the loss of so charming a personality, and one who had made a place for herself in the hearts of so many admiring friends, the fortitude and bravery of the young mother, and the lessons to be learned from such a sad sacrifice. The consolation of the Christian faith were Recovers From Bright's Disease.

When E. Bedford, known all over the country as "the poet of Shiloh," and as a writer on horticulture and a contributor to the "Ladies' Home Journal," who had Bright's disease so badly, has fully recovered, here's his letter to a friend.

Shiloh, Wis., April 3, 1905.
Dear Mr. Dodd, Milwaukee:—Dear Sir, I don't ask you what I think of that (Baker's) Grape-Nut. I think of it all the time. I treated with physicians and drank little waters till my stomach was all at rights of them. Nothing seemed to permanently benefit me. Up to the time I found a circular of P. J. Hill, I had never heard of it. I determined to try it, and did not for months after I felt entirely well. I advised several friends about it, and in every instance it gave entire satisfaction. I feel I can never be thankful enough to you for calling my attention to it.

Yours,
E. BEDFORD.

C. F. DIXON, PAYSON PIONEER.

Whose Funeral Took Place From His Home Town on Thursday of This Week.

At Payson, Thursday afternoon, the remains of one of Utah's veteran pioneers were laid to rest, with a service in which many men participated who have been vitally connected with the growth of the Beehive state. C. F. Dixon, who died in his eighty-ninth year, after half a century of pioneer work in southern Utah, was one of the men to whom Utah owes much and from whom it gained its inheritance of improvements not native to the sagebrush. He passed away Monday night at the home of his son, C. F. Dixon, Jr., and he was buried from the residence Thursday. He was the fourth son of Charles and John H. Dixon, C. F. Dixon, Jr. was born in Lockville, New Brunswick, May 18, 1816.

The deceased leaves, in addition to a large family, 23 great grand children and 34 grandchildren to mourn his departure. Mrs. J. J. McClellan of Salt Lake City, is among the grandchildren of the veteran pioneer, while among his children are John H. Dixon, C. F. Dixon, Jr., Erastus Dixon, Mrs. Samuel Douglas, Mrs. Ommon Nebeker, and Mrs. E. Kinsey.

At the funeral services a number of relatives and friends from Salt Lake and Denver were present to pay a last tribute of respect. Among them were Mrs. J. J. McClellan of Salt Lake, and Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Wimmer, Mr. A. H. Cowie and Mrs. Ruth Kinsey of Denver.

The speakers at the funeral were President Page of the Nebelak, and C. W. Brewerton, an old friend of the deceased. Musical numbers were contributed by the Second ward choir of Payson. Interment occurred in the Payson cemetery.

sympathetically extended, and that the departed had gone before to prepare a way for others to come into the bright world, where he had gone, was brought out in a cordial and sympathetic vein that touched the audience deeply.

Music was furnished by a choir composed of Miss Maud Thorne, organist, Mrs. R. J. Canney, Mrs. Harry Winder, Mrs. Herbert Brown, and Miss Christine Johnson; and the pallbearers were Mr. A. L. Thomas, Jr., George Smith, D. A. Nelson, Joseph Siegel, Harry Poll and Roy Romney. The floral tributes were beautiful and profuse, and required two carriages to hold them. Twenty carriages followed the remains to the grave. The scenes of grief there were very affecting, the sorrowing husband being entirely overcome. The flowers were spread over the grave in the way arranged over by lady friends, with the handsome set pieces at the head and foot. Some of the finest of these latter were from the United Commercial Travelers' association, which was well represented at the funeral out of regard for Mr. Billings, who is a member of the order. Mrs. A. S. Bower, sister of the deceased, was unable to attend the funeral, as she was confined to her bed by illness.

WANTED A METHODIST.

Prospective Bride Who Was Afraid to Be Married by "Mormon" Parson.

That some prospective brides and grooms are averse to being married by a "Mormon" is clearly established by an incident which occurred in the county clerk's office recently. A young couple applied at the office of Clerk Eldridge for a marriage license. They were both from Colorado and after securing the license they confidentially informed the clerk that they would like to be married right away and asked if he could find some one to perform the ceremony for them. Mr. Eldridge kindly consented to find some one and at once called his chief deputy, David A. Smith, who is an Elder in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day saints, and who performs nearly all of the marriage ceremonies in the clerk's office.

The bride ventured the statement that she did not want to be married by a Judge and that she much preferred a

The question as to whether a witness can collect professional fees for services as an expert witness in a case or whether he is only entitled to the regular witness fee allowed by law, amounting to $1.50 per day with mileage, is the point to be decided in a suit filed in the city court yesterday afternoon by Dr. Henry La Motte against the Frankfort Marine, Accident & Plate Glass Insurance company, the Utah & Eastern Copper company and A.
