

UNTAH BRAVES FIGURE IN COURT

Trial of A. A. George for Stealing
Cattle From Indians Before
Judge Page Morris.

CORRIDORS MASSES OF COLOR

Red Men Tread in Moccasined Feet
And Vari-Colored Blankets—
Routine of Federal Court.

The soft tread of moccasined feet and the gurgling growls of many Untah natives were much in evidence today in the federal building where, before Judge Page Morris, Allison A. George is being tried on a charge of stealing cattle from the Indian reservation. It is expected that the case will not go to the jury until some time tomorrow afternoon, because of the large number of witnesses who are to be examined.

The corridors are veritable masses of color, many of the Indians being clad in their vari-colored blankets, their outer clothing of buckskin being liberally decorated with beads and the easily colored stripes dear to the aboriginal American. In trying the case the services of an interpreter are necessary and the progress is very slow.

COURT ROUTINE.

T. E. O'Bray, a sheep man, was fined $10 for violating the quarantine law relative to the movement of sheep from one state to another.

Several cases against the Mine & Smelter Supply company were continued until the next term of court, as was the action brought against the Utah Mining company to quiet property in Grand county.

George Free will not have his damage suit heard until the next term. It is against the American Smelting & Refining company, where a $2,700 is asked for injuries received while working for the defendant.

Other cases continued to the next term were the action against the Trust company against J. H. Heron, and that of Mary Hargrave, who is suing the American Smelting & Refining company on an action for $2,700 for personal injuries.

The grand jury, which was selected yesterday, did not begin its deliberations until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

TWO JUDGMENTS AFFIRMED.

Supreme Court So Rules in Speight And Jacketta Cases.

In the case of George Harold Speight, respondent against the Rocky Mountain Bell Telephone company, appellant, the supreme court yesterday handed down a decision affirming the judgment of the lower court, where a jury rendered a verdict of $10,000 in favor of Speight, who lost his right hand in an accident. The case was appealed to the supreme court on the grounds that Speight had assumed the risks and consent to which he was exposed while testing wires when he accepted employment, that he was guilty of contributory negligence and that there was a bad variance between the allegations and the proof adduced. Justice William B. McCarthy, who wrote the opinion, set aside all the contentions of the telephone company and declared that there was no error in the proceedings of the court in instructing the jury.

Speight was injured in December 1904 at Main and Center streets, where he was testing wires. The snow was falling and the day was dark. Speight caught his foot in the wires belonging to the Utah Light & Railway company while he had a telephone receiver at his ear. This connected the circuit and he was badly burned. His right hand was amputated and his body was severely burned. Suit was also brought against the Utah Light & Railway company, but the jury found no cause of action which was also affirmed by the supreme court.

The supreme court affirmed a judgment of $2,000 yesterday obtained in the third district court by Mrs. Raphael Jacketta against the San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake railroad. Mrs. Jacketta filed the action to recover damages sustained by her husband, Nick Jacketta, in a collision on Feb. 17, 1907, on the railroad about 40 miles west of Las Vegas, and the jury in the lower court found the issues in her favor. Her husband was permanently injured and he still has to be cared for by her.

The case was appealed to the supreme court on an assignment of errors. The main contention was that the court erred in giving instructions to the jury in regard to the risks assumed while riding on the freight train. It was argued by the railroad company that at the time of the accident there was no Nevada governing the relation of master and servant, and that the negligence was that of his fellow servants. In following the general rule, Justice William B. McCarthy, who wrote the decision, says that the su-

SECOND WEEK'S RACING MEET OPENS IN OGDEN

Good Sized Crowd Present Shows Interest Has Not Abated—Some Good Finishes.

(Special to the News.)

Ogden, Nov. 5.—The second week of the Ogden meeting opened yesterday with a good sized crowd showing interest in the races is still up to that of the previous week. Runsum was the good thing in the first race and was overlooked by the talent. He went to the front as the barrier flew up and made every post a winning one, beating Ester M. by two lengths to the wire. Sunrise just missed Salina out for the show position.

Although Mabel Fountain was in good form yesterday she was unable to head off Yellowfoot in the race for the wire in the second event. The latter came up as he liked and finished eased up. Antara did her best, but third was the best the Robert mare could do.

The third race went to Kaiserhoff who got away in the lead at the start and was never headed. He set the pace to his liking and increased home two lengths over Liberty. Mossback could not last and finished for show money just ahead of Royal River.

Valencia was at her best in the fourth race, and was never in trouble from barrier to wire. Inclement and Elmdale fought it out for second and third but the latter was carried wide on both turns, losing all chances to beat out Inclement at the finish. Jackey Hennecamp on Cardinal Sarto, was set down for the rest of the meeting by Starter Murray for his work at the barrier.

In the four furlongs, the fifth event, Nappa was close after Bird in the Bush, who got away in the lead. Nappa followed her to the stretch and with it, both came up, both outrunning the Munson mare down the stretch. Nappa proved the gamer of the two and beat St. Joe out for first money.

The Salt Lake horse, Pretension, owned by Harry Meyer, proved his worth by beating a field of good ones in the last race. Although Arthur Hyman got away in the lead, the Salt Lake horse closed fast in the stretch, taking first. Hyman second with Tauxaro coming third.
