the defendant. He said that Clayton wrote up Book B, and made the reca-pitulation. This book is where the largest shortage was found. Capt. Wedgewood held him under cross fire all day and drew out the fact that upon entering the office the former treasurer had assumed a shortage of $1,800 from his predecessor, whose term expired in 1838; that this shortage had been paid in installments, the last payment in February, 1902, and that this shortage had never been reported to the proper officers. He admitted that there had been a shortage of $300 in his office during the first year as treasurer, and could not explain how it occurred. The former treasurer's bank book showed less money than the treasurer should have on hand for various specific months, and the differences the quarterly and yearly reports required by law had not been made. When the delinquent tax list is made up in November of each year the law requires that it should be audited by the auditor, and he should credit the treasurer with the amount of delinquent taxes. This had not been done.

KIDNAPS HER OWN CHILDREN.

Mrs. Alice Harris of Salt Lake, who s been having considerable trouble ring the past week over her two boys, to were awarded her by the court when she secured a divorce from her husband in 1898, yesterday afternoon e a march on her husband, Lenader Harris, and succeeded in locating the two boys, who were hid at a friend's in orth Ogden. She took them from the friend's, jumped in a buggy, drove nuckly to Ogden, boarded the Oregon Short Line train for Sait Lake City with the boys at 3:05 p. m., and suc-ceeded in getting away with them, beare the father could get to the depot top her.

In January the boys were permitted y Mrs. Harris to come to Ogden to sit with their father. Monday Mrs. Harris, in company with her brother, orenzo Jensen, came to Ogden to get the boys to take them to Salt Lake, where she now resides. Mr. Harris, father of the children, refused to let them go. He came to Ogden and through his altorney, Nathan J. Harris, filed a pe-tition asking the court to modify the the ecree and award the custody of the children to him. The mother, through her attorney, filed a habeas corpus proeeding against the father to compel him to appear in court and deliver up the boys. The court set both cases for hearing next Thursday morning, May 5. Mrs. Harris was not satisfied to wait unli the case was settled by the court to secured a buggy, on learning where the children were, and stole them away. It is not known just what fur-ther legal steps will be taken in the case, but no little excitement was experienced yesterday afternoon in the wild chase for the boys and the getting of them away on the train. Mr. Harris with officers went to the depot to intercept her with the children, but arrived just in time to see the train go around
