LOCAL BRIEFS.

The roof of the Tabernacle is receiving a new coat of black paint.

A carload of perfectly sound Idaho apples were received in this city last evening, and are retailing today at 15¢ wholesale.

F. J. McNeil, a licenec resident in this city, filed a petition in bankruptcy with the clerk of the federal court. His unsecured debts are $432.50, and his assets $12.50, consisting of household goods.

The Catholics are holding special services preparatory to the high mass next Thursday morning, when will be celebrated the anniversary of the adoption of the immaculate conception as a dogma of the Catholic faith.

The entertainment committee of the Commercial club will recommend to the board of governors that the annual banquet of the club for this year be held on the evening of Wednesday, Dec. 28.

The railway and transportation committee of the Commercial club is waiting patiently for a reply from the local railway magnates to its recent letter inquiring as to the ways and the wherewithal of the discrimination against the state in the little matter of westbound rates on cars, and some other things.

The University debating club held a semi-monthly debate yesterday afternoon, when it discussed, "Resolved, that the tendency of trade unions to destroy the individuality of the laborer is undesirable." Karl Hopkins and H. C. Reese presented the affirmative side of the question. The negative speakers were Dean Alexander and Dale Parke.

E. F. Stolzenberger has filed with the county attorney, a complaint charging P. N. Potter with fraudulently concealing and disposing of personal property he had mortgaged to Catharine Stolzenberger, Dec. 22, 1903. He also prefers a complaint against Amelia Brink charging her with removing mortgaged property. Mrs. Brink had sued Stolzenberger for breach of promise, alleging seduction under promise of marriage, and the latter alleged in reply that she was the victim of a blackmailing scheme.

C. A. Dole has filed an injunction suit in the district court against John Kersey and wife to prevent them from taking possession of and plowing up about 100 feet of his property. He alleges that he has owned the land for 30 years and that on Dec. 2, Kersey entered upon the same and moved the fence so as to deprive plaintiff of a strip of his land 100 feet in width and commenced plowing up the same for the purpose of constructing and irrigation ditch. A temporary restraining order has been issued in the case.

Prof. Swendsen and Consulting Engineer W. H. Sanders and H. N. Savage completed last night a two days' survey of the Utah lake, Bear lake and Strawberry valley reservoir projects, and will report their findings to the secretary of the interior. Mr. Sanders intimated that the governmental authorities considered these projects promising, else all this investigation and outlay of money and skill would not have been made. He says one strong factor in the high class condition of the valley lands and their favorable climatic surroundings. Another is the fact that there are few large land owners. But care must be taken to secure a permanent water supply, allowing for any series of dry years that might occur. Mr. Sanders laid some stress on the necessity of land owners and water users joining hands with the government in carrying out the proposed irrigation schemes, and merging their individual rights in associated rights which the government calls for.

Committee of the Board of Education Meets and Makes Recommendations.

The committee on teachers and school work at a meeting held yesterday afternoon prepared recommendations which it will submit to the school board at its December meeting called for tonight. Its recommendations include the granting of a fortnight's vacation at Christmas, extending from Dec. 23 to Jan. 3, and the hiring of Mrs. F. D. Bickford as teacher of French in the East Side High school.

Model Time-Table Folders.

Model time-table folders, which are superior to any time-table folders ever printed, have been issued by the New York Central's passenger department. They are Numbers "29" and "30" of the famous "Four-Track Series," and both are literary gems and compendiums of railway travel. General Passenger Agent George H. Daniels has incorporated various suggestions made by bright people, and he has tried to include in these folders all that could reasonably be put into such books.

They are worth a prominent position in every library, and on every business man's desk.—From the Buffalo Commercial.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

The elaborate affair of yesterday was the luncheon given by Mrs. A. E. Boring at the Kenyon, where about 40 guests sat down at a table formed in a nook square with the inside space filled with towering palms and plants, the inside edges of the table with low banks of ferns, started with red carnations and red lilies, making a charming border for the central part, leaving the outer edges clear. The two parlors opening from the red room, where luncheon was served, were decorated in yellow chrysanthemums, and the effect was altogether artistic and delightful.

JAMES WIGNALL HERE.

Labor Delegate from Wales to be Entertained in This City.

James Wignall, a delegate from Wales to the convention of the American Federation of Labor, which recently convened at San Francisco, arrived in Salt Lake yesterday afternoon. He will remain here several days as the guest of Postmaster Arthur L. Thomas, and of the Utah Federation of Labor.

William Abraham, M. P., another noted Welshman, who with Mr. Wignall, will be tendered a public reception at the Tabernacle Thursday evening by the Cambrian society, is expected to arrive in Salt Lake tomorrow.

Last night a reception was held for Mr. Wignall by the Cambrian society, and at a special meeting of the officers of the Federation of Labor. It was decided to call a mass gathering of members Wednesday night, when Mr. Wignall, and to welcome Mr. Wignall, and have him meet the members of the unions. H. B. Cronin will preside, while the address of welcome will be delivered by President J. S. Savory of the State Federation of Labor.

Amusements.

Salt Lake experienced its first symphony concert last night. Other orchestral concerts we have had, but probably none before in which a symphony was made the feature of the program. The turnout was reasonably large, and the music should have been—and it was at first somewhat cold, but under the influence of the entrancing strains of the orchestra, the reserve of the audience perceptibly thawed, and before the close of the evening there was an undoubted enthusiasm all up and down the line. The affair was in many ways ideal. It would be absurd to say there were no imperfections, because 40 musicians selected in a city like Salt Lake could never be expected to conquer the difficulties of a Mendelssohn symphony, or an accompaniment to a number like the Pagliacci prologue without some flaws, but the marvel is that 40 musicians with the limited opportunities for rehearsal, best ever known here, have performed such works as they did. Mr. Shepherd realized one of the dreams of his life as he laid down his baton after conducting Mendelssohn's symphony. Selections which lasted just under an hour and a half, and which were followed with that breathless attention so flattering to every musician whose heart is in his work. Students, teachers and musicians—and there were many of each—the representative audience applauded the symphony heartily and the grave majestic spirit of the Adagio movement especially, was followed with entire sympathy. Even those not versed in music, did not find the number dull, though, of course, the lighter selections were more to their taste. The orchestra was at its very best in one of the Norwegian Dances, and in "The Southern Rose," the latter, a grouping of the best of the orchestra, was "Queen's Lace Handkerchief" was so heartily applauded that the last part had to be repeated. Its charm was of the most exquisite sort. The orchestra's work in "The Two Husks" was equally excellent, and a big score being demanded, Mr. Shepherd responded with his always dainty "Ronde D'Amour" which shows off his organization in admirable style, especially the strings, always the orchestra's strong feature, and its new acquisition, the bassoon, in the hands of Mr. Evans. The march "Tomp and Circumstance" rendered in ringing fashion, wound up the orchestra's part of the concert.

Mr. Goddard had a rare vocal, although he rose from a sick bed to be present. After the Pagliacci selection, even though he did not have the best of support, he was called back and rendered in admirable style "The Crusades" by Granter. Even after this the audience demanded more and he was called back twice to bow his acknowledgments.

One of the charming surprises of the evening was the duet solo by Mr. Flashman, a melody by Chopin with variations, played in a style of brilliance that proclaimed the coming artist. Mr. Flashman got over the big difficulties of the piece with only a few imperfections, and best of all, he rendered the always beautiful "Dream After the Ball." He was excellently accompanied by Mr. Shepherd at the piano. A special word of praise ought to be said for the length of the program. The audience was dismissed at 9:30. The program contained explanatory notes, giving the aims and purposes of the orchestra, the definition of a symphony, and sketches of the various composers represented on the program, especially of Mendelssohn. This was an admirable feature and was greatly appreciated by the audience, and the rapid and studious manner in which the notes were read, was followed, spoke volumes for the character of the turnout, and of the elevating influence the entertainment furnished.

After the fall of the curtain, Mr. Shepherd and the orchestra were met on the stage by many well-wishers, who assured them of the rare enjoyment they had experienced, and pledged support for the future events. The next one is already booked for an early date in January and rehearsals will be begun on the 15th. It is so pleasant to see the number of music teachers and professors who remained to offer congratulations. Among them were Messrs. Lund and Anderson from the B. Y. Academy of Music, who came specially for the concert, and who said they would not rest until the orchestra had been induced to visit their city. Mr. Squire Cooy very obligingly lent his aid at the piano in one of the numbers, playing a harp part in the absence of a harpist. Mr. Stephens, McClellan, Careless and many of the other leading teachers and musicians of the city were seen scattered through the audience.

At the invitation of the Bohemian club, composed almost entirely of musicians, a number of guests, including the officers of the orchestra organization, spent an hour in social chat at the club's rooms just opposite the old Social hall. Mr. Gosch, president of the organization, Mr. Spencer, business manager, and Messrs. Pypor and Whitney represented the organization, and they were entertained in handsome fashion.

"The orchestra has broken the ice," said President Gosch, "and while the receipts were not all we could have hoped for, everyone went away singing the praises of the organization, and this means ultimate success. I look to see the next event patronized much more heavily."

"We shall have to dig down into our reserve fund somewhat to make up our expense bill," said Manager Spencer. "I do not feel at all discouraged, however that fact. It takes time to let our public know what a first class organization they have in their midst, and when they are once awakened to the fact, I believe we can expect business as heavy as any traveling attraction draws. The present time was not a good one, owing to the crush of amusements before and after us, and the approaching holidays, but the date was the only one in which we could catch our 40 musicians at liberty; but it is to guard against untoward circumstances which we are liable to have any time, that our reserve fund is being built up. After we have received the heartiest support from all quarters and have many more prominent people yet to see. We shall not stop our endeavors until our fund amounts to $4,000 or $5,000, we have not the slightest intention of having stock now, and shall keep on investing it as rapidly as it comes in."

We will now go to work building up an ideal program for the next concert, which will occur early in January.

A pleasant feature of last night's concert, and a decided innovation at the Theater, was found in the fact that the directors of the house, the officers of the symphony organization, some newspaper editors and others, sat on the "D. H." list, paid for their tickets at the box office.

A RARE CHRISTMAS BOOK.

The Deseret News Book Store is pleased to announce that it has secured a limited number of the work, "Pictures of an Island Sea," written and illustrated by Alfred Lambourne, the well-known Utah artist, and that it will offer them to the holiday trade at 50 per cent less than last year's prices. Nothing more beautiful than this book, which is written in Mr. Lambourne's best style, and contains seven photographs plates from the author's original sketches, could be selected as a Christmas present to need away to friends interested in Utah. The price last year was $1.00. It is now offered at 50¢ to close out the edition. The book is printed on heavy double paper and bound in fine cloth buckram. A limited number of the book has also been bound in paper, with a design of Salt Lake in colors. This style sells at 35¢. Special rates below these usually cheap prices are offered agents and dealers. Anyone desiring a rare art work, at half price on a subject so interesting to all Utahns at home and abroad should call immediately and see Mr. Lambourne's work before the limited supply is exhausted.
