Chicago clubwomen have every reason to pride themselves on the success of the vacation schools which were established and are still largely supported by their efforts. The Chicago board of education appropriates $5,000 a year to ally helped in placing our politics on a higher plane.

One of the oldest club presidents is Mrs. Mary M. Babcock, president of the Woman's club of St. John's, Mich. Mrs. Babcock recently celebrated her eighty-third birthday, and expressed a desire to resign her office in favor of a younger woman. The club unanimously requested her to retain the office, offering to relieve her of all duties except advisory ones. Mrs. Babcock has for many years been prominent in educational matters in her town.

It was announced that a plan to federate the forces working for national pure food legislation has been perfected as a result of the joint conference of representatives from the National Consumers' league, Federation of Women's clubs, American Medical association, and State Food Control officials, which called on President Roosevelt in behalf of national pure food legislation last week.

In Woman's World.

Curried apples are a favorite on the Pacific coast. Choose tart cooking apples and cut in half the round way, removing the core. Make a cream by beating together one cupful of dark brown sugar, half a cup, of butter, and a teaspoonful of curry powder. Spread the cut side of the apples with this mixture, filling in the hollows left by the removal of the cores. Bake in a quick oven, observing the usual directions for baking apples.

A domestic prophet was "Mrs. Potts," whoever she was in the flesh, for she relieved ironing day of half its terrors when she invented the smoothing iron with the detachable handle. Every one who ever tried to iron with an old-fashioned holder knows the deadly effect of the heat on the hands of the worker. Mrs. Potts handles are a vast improvement, but better still are the newest irons, sold in all high class furnishing stores. The smoothing iron is a core of solid metal which retains the heat for the longest possible time. The handle part is a frame work of metal lined with asbestos. The iron comes in all sizes, from the traveler's trunk to the college girl's bureau drawer.

The tendency towards flat and apartment house living is shown in the various small conveniences seen in the

PERSIAN LAMB AND MINK.

A decidedly new and novel thing in furs this season is the set consisting of neck piece, muff and cuffs. Contrary to former years, the fur jacket of this season is almost universally built out of one fur, which very happily admits of the wearing of one of these handsome fur sets in a different skin. This jacket of Persian lamb has a narrow roll over collar and wide revers which narrow down to the waist-line, these to be turned one over the other in double-breasted fashion in severe weather. The sleeve is a full bishop with the regulation straight cuff, which in this case permits of the easy adjustment of the mink cuffs, these hooked on invisibly. About the neck is worn a short scarf of the mink, and the wearer carries a large pillow muff, while her hat is also of this same fur in turban shape, trimmed with a bunch of black ostrich tips.

That club women are becoming more and more interested in "that detestable heresy, woman suffrage," is apparent. At a reciprocity day program held by the New Century club of Philadelphia, the entire county suffrage association was entertained. After luncheon, which was laid for several hundred guests, the suffragists took charge of the program, and the club listened to various phases of the question of women and the ballot. It was said to be a most interesting meeting.

The National Suffrage association, says the Woman's Journal, sent a letter to the governor of each state and territory, asking how he stood on the subject of woman suffrage. Answers were received from 25. Three "over-ones" replied that they were opposed, six were "too busy to give a detailed opinion," and several were evasive. Among those who were strongly in favor of woman suffrage were Governors La Follette of Wisconsin, Pardee of California, Johnson of Minnesota, Mickey of Nebraska, Blanchard of Louisiana, Chamberlain of Oregon, Hoch of Kansas, Gooding of Idaho, Cutler of Utah, McDonald of Colorado, and Brooks of Wyoming. Governor Cutler of Utah wrote: "Utah has been an equal suffrage state ever since statehood was granted, and my observation has led me to believe that the results of giving the franchise to the women have been beneficial."

Gov. Gooding of Idaho said: "I am very strongly in favor of woman suffrage, and regret that I have not time to tell you all the benefit it has been to Idaho politics."

EFFECTIVE USE OF SHIRTINGS.

Materials for dinner, house and evening gowns grow softer and more capable of artistic draping as the days go by. Henrietta, crepes de chine, wool batistes, collenies and like weaves find much favor with the high class dress-makers. A soft wool crepe in a creamy white makes the dinner gown of the picture. The skirt is shirred prettily over the hips, and at knee depth are more shirtings and elaborate insertions of handsome hand made lace to which is joined the full shirred blouse with its deep hem and tucks. The bodice is a draped affair somewhat on surplice lines, displaying a novel arrangement of lace. The sleeve is shirred lengthwise of the arm to the elbow, cascades of chiffon in white and cloth lace inserted falling gracefully to the wrist, the end of the sleeve finished with a tiny turn-back cuff of black velvet, a touch of this same black velvet appearing in the front of the bodice. The centre is of white moire ribbon knotted in the back with long ends which reach to the hem of the dress.

house furnishing stores. A very late development is the gas stove attachment for chafin dishes. Alcohol is rather dangerous, is more or less expensive, and the bottle takes up room. Hence the advantage of the gas stove in a small apartment.

Another modern development is the wooden cooking plate for pies and cakes. The plates are made of wood pulp and water, are porous, light, and cheap. No greasing is required and the dough or paste never sticks. The pulp absorbs any superfluous grease, and the use of the plates is therefore sanitary. The plates cost about 1 cent apiece, and are to be had at several department stores and house furnishing shops.

Banana croquettes from the Boston cooking school are recommended. Peel the bananas, cut in two lengthwise, roll in fine crumbs, then in beaten egg and more crumbs, and fry in deep. Cooked bananas are much more easily digested than the raw fruit and are quite as nutritious.

The typical lingerie waist has shed the name of blouse, which had become absurdly ill-fitting. It is not a blouse. It follows in outline the fashionable bodice of the season, with its high, wide shoulders, its full, high bust and tapering cut to the waist line. Except in a single model known as the English style, no buttons are allowed to hang over the belt, the entire waist conforming to the lines of the figure. The sleeve is not more than moderately
