

TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

Of the Founding of the Brigham Young Academy.

APPROPRIATE EXERCISES.

Parade of Students in the Morning Followed by Speeches, Athletics and a Ball.

Special Correspondence.

Provo, Oct. 17.—Yesterday was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Brigham Young Academy. Extensive preparations had been made to celebrating the reaching of the quarter of a century mark. Patriotism everywhere abounded. The day was propitious for the occasion.

At 9 o'clock the parade commenced with about seven hundred students participating. First came a horseman carrying the Stars and Stripes, followed by Darton's silver band. Then followed another horseman with the academy flag, white and blue, after which came the classes in their order of seniority, led by their class presidents and standard bearers. Lastly came the faculty. All together they made a very imposing appearance. Distinguished visitors rode back and forth in a carriage, taking in the sight.

The line of march led first down to the Z. C. M. I. warehouse, where the academy was once temporarily located, thence down Center street to where the institution was first commenced. Here the students formed in a hollow square and were addressed briefly by President Brimhall and Dr. Karl G. Maeser, the first principal of the school, then numbering twenty-nine students. The college song was rendered, after which the parade marched to the academy.

College hall presented a very pretty appearance. The rostrum was tastefully decorated with flowers and evergreens. On the stand stood a bust of President Young. At the back of the rostrum artistically arranged, were the Stars and Stripes, the white and blue flag, and the banners of the higher classes, while leaning against the side walls were the other banners. There exists a friendly rivalry between the classes to see which can have the most beautiful banner, and the result is that each one in the selected class colors is a work of art, costing from $20 to $40. The notes inscribed there on are very suggestive and appropriate. "Character is Power," "Self Effort Educates," and "To Thine Own Self Be True" are examples.

THE MEETING.

President Brimhall was master of ceremonies. On the rostrum were many prominent men of the State, among them were President Joseph F. Smith, Reed Smoot and Dr. Karl G. Maeser, besides various members of the board. The choir under the able management of Prof. Lund rendered the beautiful song, "The Bright Morning," followed by a prayer offered by President Brimhall.

The opening address was given by President Brimhall in his characteristically interesting manner. The sight before him, he said, was imposing, and that God would be gratified at the picture.

President Smith next addressed the students. He reviewed the past struggles of the academy for existence, but felt that God had been with them, and he had led to found such an institution. The Church schools, he said, were performing a mighty labor, and although the Church had been taxed to the utmost to maintain them, yet the results accomplished more than paid for the exertion. Although the past conditions had not been encouraging, financially, President Smith said he felt that an era of prosperity was coming, and that, too, in the very near future. The Saints were paying a better tithing, which eventually would extricate the Church from its embarrassed condition financially. The comfortable surroundings, he said, contrasted strongly with the scenes of early Utah. Therein was a great danger, and it should be guarded against. Man is more likely to forget God when he is possessed of the riches of the world. He urged that students in all their getting should not forget to seek the Spirit of God.

The work of God, said the speaker, is progressing rapidly, and it was through His inspiration that President Brigham Young had founded this institution. He said it was God's school, and surely must grow and expand, even beyond what we may expect. "God had manifested Himself many times," he said, "and would continue to inspire those who are placed in authority. These were my last words on earth. I would want to bear testimony that God lives and that He has restored His Priesthood to those who now act with authority in His name. President Young was led to found this school that the spiritual side of young men and young women might be educated in the things of God."

Dr. Karl G. Maeser then arose and said that he was greatly affected by the occasion. He said in part: "While on my seat a panorama of academy pictures passed before my mind. At the commencement of this great outward growth, it had been my policy to teach correct principles and the students had governed themselves. Line upon line, precept upon precept, was given me by my heavenly Father in the directing of the school. Many bitter lessons were received when I did not solicit the aid of the Spirit of God, while everything had been plain to me when I went to my heavenly Father."

The students were then urged to learn this valuable lesson early in life, and thus escape the sad mistakes that would happen otherwise. The students, he said, should study the language of God as it is found in the dew-drop and the spear of grass, as well as in all the direct revelations of God.

Mrs. Maria Holt, the mother of the family which has established a laboratory in the academy, occupied a few moments. G. S. Beckstead, representing the family that established the mechanical department, followed in a few well chosen words.

NEW LABORATORY.

President Brimhall announced that another family—the Hinckley family—had decided to found a laboratory of natural science. Prof. E. S. Hinckley responded in behalf of the family. He stated that he felt that the scientists of the future, studying the subject in the light of our religion, would come from this institution. The world is astray in many things he maintained, and it rested with the Latter-day Saints to overthrow these false ideas and discover the truth.

In behalf of the board Apostle Reed Smoot made a speech of acceptance. He said that he felt honored in so doing, and thanked the Hinckley family from the bottom of his heart that God had led them to establish the fourth laboratory in the Brigham Young Academy. He paid a tribute to the memory of the founder and the supporters of the institution.

Francis Kirkham then represented the students in a few well chosen words.

President John said in his review of the past: "The burning of the old building was considered a calamity, but it had turned out to be a blessing."

The feelings of the faculty were expressed by President Brimhall. For every step in advance, he said, the teachers render thanks to God. "The dark days of the academy were over and God would open the windows of heaven and provide for our wants."

President Brimhall, in a spirit of appreciation and commendation, then brought to the minds of the assembly that the Hinckley family, from which there was no representative present, had established a laboratory in the academy.

The choir and audience sang: "We thank thee, O God, for a Prophet." Benediction was offered by Judge John E. Booth.

WAS PROMISED PROPERTY.

Dr. Park's Will Contrary to His Alleged Promise.

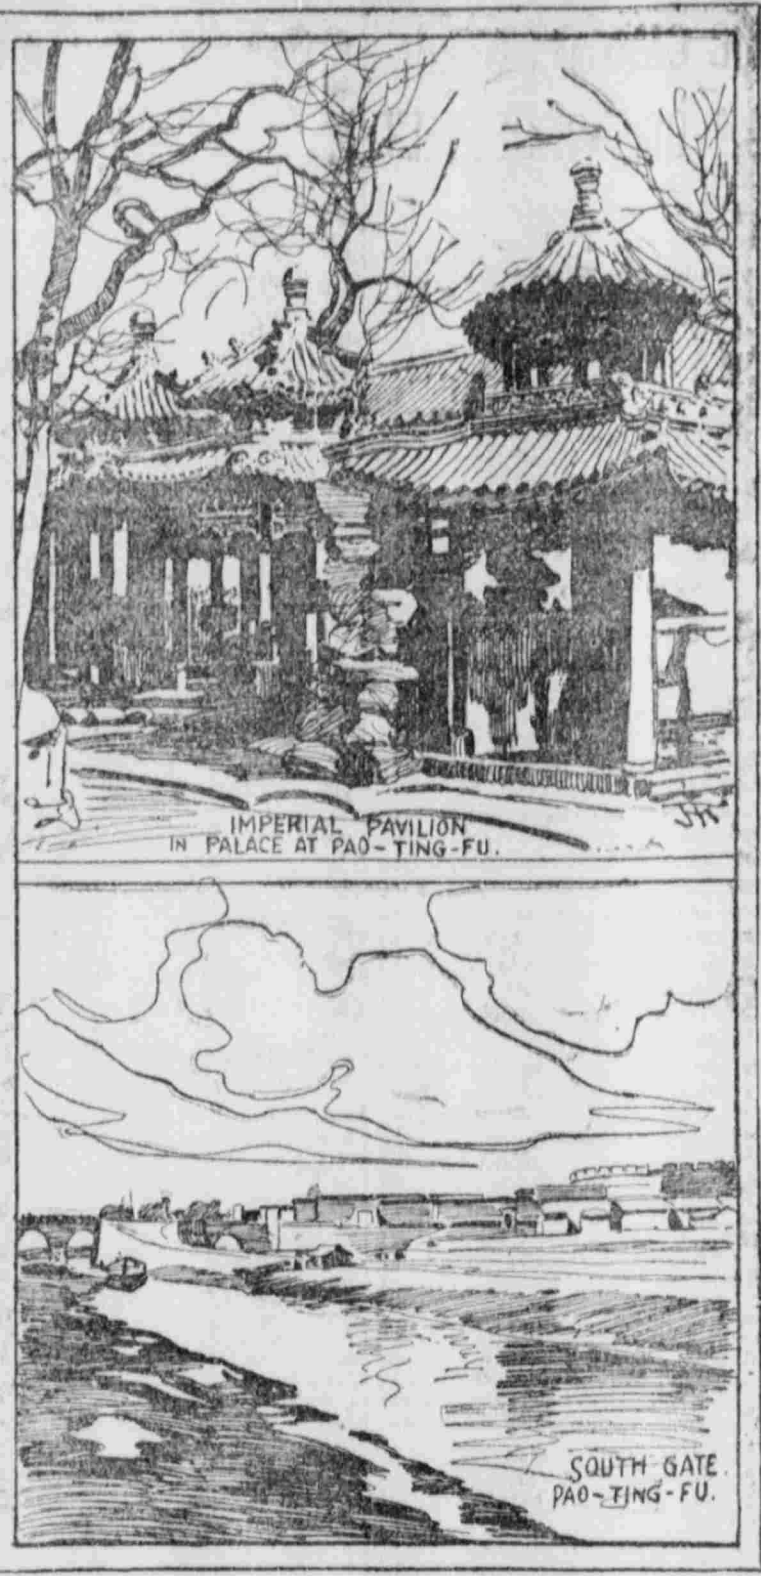

Another note of discord has arisen over the will of the late Dr. John B. Park. It falls from Prof. and Mrs. Roylance, the latter a foster child of the doctor's, and one who waited upon him faithfully up to the time of his death. Prof. Roylance is connected with the University as one of its faculty, and was Dr. Park's assistant and right hand man. It was a two-fold shock to them, the greater of which lay in the fact that the doctor had promised to leave his house and his property to them, and the property on State street. Prof. Roylance expressed to the doctor his gratitude for the generous gift, and acting upon the well warranted belief that the property would fall into his hands, he expended several hundred dollars in improving it, absolutely free of any suspicion to the contrary until the will was published. The professor states that no word of complaint would have been uttered by him or his wife had it not been for the element of deception he alleges exists in the affair. He states that the doctor about a year ago called him and his wife to his house, and there expressed the belief that he would not live long, and that he was going to make his will, and there voluntarily proffered to them the house he was then in, and the property on State street. GRAND LARCENY CASE.

John Zweifel Dismissed for Want of Jurisdiction, but is Held on Bond.

The trial of John Zweifel on the charge of grand larceny, which has been on before Judge Norrell and jury since Monday, came to an abrupt termination this morning by the court sustaining a motion of counsel for the accused to dismiss the case for the want of jurisdiction. The defendant was charged with stealing ten head of cattle from Andrew McDonald of Park City. The alleged theft occurred in Wasatch county and it was claimed by the prosecution that Zweifel brought the cattle to Salt Lake, where he disposed of them. When the State rested yesterday afternoon, the defendant's attorney moved for a dismissal on the ground that the case ought to be tried in Wasatch county. Judge Norrell, in this matter under advisement and this Hanna's Campaign Tour.

Aberdeen, S. D., Oct. 17.—The actual hard work of the present campaign tour of Senator Hanna through the northwest began at an early hour today at Redfield, where a large crowd had gathered. The air was stinging cold. Senator Hanna was received with cheers. He said in part:

"I have come out to South Dakota for the first time in my life to tell you people here just what we think in the East and what will be the result of the election that the State of South Dakota next November will regain her place in the Republican party, and why not? All the good people of this whole country are rallying to the support of Mr. McKimley, standing by his administration, giving their verdict in favor of it and saying, well done, patriotic man of this country."

At Northville, where the train stopped a moment, Mr. Hanna addressed a fair sized crowd of farmers from the rear platform of his car.

At Aberdeen, in the heart of the great South Dakota wheat belt, the train stopped for an hour.

The meeting at Aberdeen developed some lively questioning between Senator Hanna and people in the crowd.

Senator Fry spoke briefly, taking imperialism as his main subject, ridiculing the issue and asking the people of South Dakota, some of whom had lost sons in the Philippines, if they feared such a thing.

Senator Hanna was then introduced. "Hello, Mark," was the cry of the crowd. Mr. Hanna proceeded to discuss the tariff.

"What about the trusts?" asked some one in the crowd.

"We want to know about the trusts," "Well, my friends, if you will tell me what a trust is, I'll answer your question," said Mr. Hanna.

"Well, if you don't know, I'll tell you," continued Mr. Hanna. "A trust under the law and what is known as a trust in commerce is where the stock of a corporation is put into the hands of a trustee, carrying with it the voting power. Every single organization of that kind that ever had its existence in the United States has been wiped out through the action of the Sherman law, and that law was put upon the statute books of the United States by a Republican Congress."

Mr. Hanna then proceeded with his speech, but a moment later he was again interrupted by a question regarding the Cleveland shipbuilders association.

"Say, senator, that man thinks the world is flat, don't pay any attention to him," yelled the farmer.

"All right," said Mr. Hanna, with a laugh, "but I would like to stay here all day and discuss this thing. But I want to tell you that the flattest of all flatness will be the Democratic party next month."

Cheers for Pettigrew mingled with cheers for McKimley and Hanna that were given as the speaker concluded. The party was then driven to the train.
