

WILL SUMMON AN ASSEMBLY.

Czar So Informs Zemstvo Deputation That Waited on Him in Behalf of Moscow Congress.

WANTS A NEW ORDER OF THINGS

Is Anxious to Have it Carried Out And Tells Delegates He Expects Them to Assist Him.

St. Petersburg, June 19.—Emperor Nicholas received the zemstvo deputation today. The reception took place at noon in the Alexander palace at Peterhof. Prince Troubetzkoy, president of the zemstvo congress of the Moscow government, in behalf of the Moscow deputation, addressed the emperor in a long speech, in which he described the serious internal conditions which have caused the zemstvos to approach him majestically.

The emperor evidently was much impressed. M. Fedoroff, representing the St. Petersburg deputation, also spoke. His majesty implied expressing regret at the great sacrifices consequent on the war and, after everything, at the disaster to the Russian navy.

The emperor said: "I am happy to have heard you. I have no doubt you are guided by an ardent sentiment of love for the fatherland in addressing me directly and thus I have been able to hear in my whole soul, with all my people, at the calamities which the war has brought upon Russia and at all those which will still be feared, as well as at our internal disturbances."

"Disseminate your doubts. My will is to reign, and it is my unalterable will that the admission of elected representatives to the works of state shall be regularly accomplished."

"I watch daily and devote myself to this work. You may announce that to all your friends in country and town."

"I am firmly convinced that Russia will emerge strengthened from the trials she is now enduring and that there will be established soon, as formerly, a union between the emperor and all Russia, a communion between myself and the nation, and my will, this union and communion must serve as a basis for the original principles of Russia."

"I have faith in our desire to help me in this task."

"I thank you, gentlemen, for the sentiments expressed, and I join in your desire to bring about a new order of things. My personal wish and my will as emperor to summon a national assembly is unshaken. I await with anxiety the carrying out of this, my will. You can announce to the representatives of the towns and villages throughout Russia, and from today you will assist me in this new work."

The national assembly will, as formerly, establish a united Russia, and the emperor will be the supreme support of the conditions based on the principle of Russian nationalism."

Upon completing his remarks, the emperor graciously greeted the individual members of the delegation, shaking hands with them and having a few cordial words for each.

The fact that the emperor not only received the bold, plain-spoken address without so much as an indication of his disapprobation, but, on the contrary, full sympathy with the efforts to ameliorate the deplorable state of affairs depicted therein, and in the most direct and explicit fashion renewed his promise to summon the representatives of the people, made the deepest impression on the delegation.

The delegation is now preparing an account of the St. Petersburg audience, which will be presented to the St. Petersburg duma tomorrow and, in accordance with their instructions, as well as the imperial wish, will be communicated to all the zemstvos and mayors of Russia.

The address adopted by the St. Petersburg Zemstvo and Municipal congress, assembled at Moscow, was taken to St. Petersburg for presentation to the emperor by a deputation headed by Count Hayden and M. Shupoff, former president of the Moscow duma, but it does not appear from the cable dispatch that the document was handed to his majesty, although doubtless Prince Troubetzkoy and M. Fedoroff in their speeches communicated the substance of the address to the emperor.

The document in its original form bids fair to become historic. Its summary phrases of respect of the opening and closing were omitted and it was otherwise unceremonious, employing the direct personal pronoun.

The address awakened the bureaucracy and reminded the emperor that he pledged to convene a national assembly was slow of fulfillment. It said the country was in the verge of civil war and even ventured to criticize a royal measure, contrasting the increase of the police power by the ukase of June 4 with the weakening of the administrative process which the country had been led to expect.

The address urged the summoning of a national assembly that the czar might become national or cease and continued with a solemn reminder of the sovereign's duty to God and to the fatherland, and a prayer for action before it was too late.

RUSSIAN WAR PARTY.

Trying to Dissuade Emperor From Making Peace.

St. Petersburg, June 19, midnight.—The war party has by no means been rendered. On the contrary, backed by the military element, it is making a concerted effort to dissuade the emperor from concluding peace. Even with those who are already clenching, members of the war party are filing St. Petersburg and Peterhof with optimistic stories and are reinforcing their arguments with reports of the strategic situation.

Many Russian correspondents at the front, evidently inspired by St. Petersburg, are flooding the news with dispatches in the same strain.

The Novoe Vremya correspondent, in his editorial, points to the hazards for the government in disbanding an army of 1,500,000 men without giving them a taste of success and expressing his fear of dangerous consequences.

CAPT. GRAHAM'S GRIMACE

Suffered from Sores on Face and Back—Doctors Took His Money But Did No Good—Skin Now Looks Clear as a Baby's.

ANOTHER CURE BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

Captain W. S. Graham, 1321 Post St., Wheeling, W. Va., writing June 14, '04, says: "I am so grateful I want to thank God that a friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment to me. I suffered for a long time with sores on my face and back. Some doctors said I had blood poison, and others that I had barbers' itch. None of them did me any good, but they all took my money. My friends tell me my skin now looks as clear as a baby's, and I tell them all that Cuticura Soap and Ointment did it."

STILL ANOTHER CURE

Neck Covered With Sores, Hair Fell Out, Wild With Itching

Mr. H. J. Spaulding of 104 W. 104th St., New York City, says: "For two years my neck was covered with sores, the disease spreading to my hair, which fell out, leaving an unsightly bald spot, and the sores, inflammation, and merciless itching made me wild. After a few applications of Cuticura the torment subsided, the sores disappeared, and my hair grew thick and healthy as ever."

AND STILL ANOTHER

"For over thirty years I suffered from painful ulcers and an eruption from my knees to my feet, and could not get better. I tried many medicines to help me, until I took Cuticura which cured me in six months." (Signed) M. C. Moss, Gainesville, Tex.

Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills are sold throughout the world. Price 25c. Each Box. Sold by Druggists or by Mail to the Cuticura Co., New York.

EQUITABLE LIFE TO BE THOROUGHLY INVESTIGATED

New York, June 19.—A new and important investigation of the affairs of the Equitable Life Assurance society is to be begun at once. Paul Morton, newly-elected chairman of the board of directors, wants to know exactly how things are with the society, and has commissioned Price Waterhouse & Co., auditors, to make a complete examination of the society's accounts, working together, to examine every detail of the work, investments and relations of the society. The letter sent by Mr. Morton to the firm employed is as follows:

"Dear Sirs: As chairman of the board of the Equitable Life Assurance society, I want to know the exact condition of the society on June 10, 1905, the date of my election as chairman. With that end in view you will please make a complete examination of the accounts of the society. You will have access to all books, papers, and records."

"I desire that your report should be as complete and exhaustive as possible. Particular attention should be paid to ascertaining the facts upon these subjects:

"1.—The society's annual expenses, including legal expenses, advertising expenses, agency expenses and cost of securing business.

"2.—The real estate investments of the company, including in the case of each particular parcel the value at which it is carried upon the books of the society; the income which it yields and the fair valuation of its property, whether above or below the value at which it is carried upon the books of the society. (If necessary real estate experts may be employed in ascertaining the value and income of the real estate, subject of course, to my approval as to men and terms.)

"3.—The other investments of the society, their character and the circumstances under which they have been made.

"4.—The society's surplus and the manner in which it is carried upon the books of the society.

"5.—The methods of keeping the society's accounts and the respects in which the accounting may be improved.

"6.—The relations between the society and the trust companies, banks, safe deposit companies and other institutions with which the society is affiliated by ownership of considerable amounts of stock or otherwise. (In the case of every corporation in which the society has a dominant or important interest, or in which the society has special relations, the ownership of stock other than that owned by the society should be ascertained so far as practicable.)

"7.—The subjects covered by the report of the investigating committee, of which Mr. Erick was chairman, should be fully investigated.

"8.—When the report of the New York superintendent of insurance has been made that report should be carefully studied and every matter covered by it or by the recommendations of the commissioner should be carefully examined.

"The foregoing suggestions are not intended to limit the scope of your inquiries, which should be as broad as may be necessary in order to ascertain the precise condition of the affairs of the society. I shall from time to time designate other subjects which seem to call for special investigation.

"It is important for all concerned that your investigation should be completed as promptly as possible and you will accordingly institute it at once and carry it forward with all possible vigor."

RIDER HAGGARD'S REPORT.

Speaks Well of Salvation Army Settlements in U. S.

London, June 19.—The report submitted by H. Rider Haggard, who, as commissioner of the colonial office, has recently been investigating the conditions and character of agricultural and industrial lands settlement organized in the United States by the Salvation Army, was issued as a parliamentary blue book this evening. The report speaks in the most favorable terms of the settlements and says that similar settlements might be successfully established in the colonies as a means of providing for the surplus agricultural population of the United Kingdom in different parts of the empire, especially in Canada, where, according to a letter received from Sir Wilfrid Laurier, governor of Canada, the government is prepared to set aside 240,000 acres for this purpose.

Killed Falling from Horse.

Boise, Ida., June 19.—Walter Sharp, the universal son of James Sharp, living on Poverty Flat, near Hallett, has lost his life by a fall from a horse. He attempted to jump the horse over a log lying in the road. The animal stumbled and fell, the boy's neck being broken.

MANY CITIES WOULD BUTTIN

President Deluged With Letters Telling of Desirable Places to Hold the Conference.

HE WILL NOT BE DRAWN IN.

Government Will Not Attempt to Interfere in Any Way With Choice Of Conference.

Washington, June 19.—Practically no new developments were observable today in the negotiations for peace between Russia and Japan. President Roosevelt for a day or two has been deeply engrossed in other matters, and while he has not for a moment lost sight of the arrangements for bringing together the far eastern belligerents, he has realized fully that the next move in the great game of diplomacy now being played must be made by the contending nations themselves.

That move is the selection of the envoys to represent them at the Washington conference.

Both Minister Takahira of Japan and Ambassador Cassini of Russia called on the president this afternoon. Shortly before 2 o'clock Minister Takahira drove to the White House and was received by the president in the blue room. He remained with the president for nearly a half hour, but declined at the conclusion of the interview to discuss the nature of his conversation with him.

Soon afterward Ambassador Cassini drove to the executive residence and was received by the president in his private office. His call was brief. As he was leaving the White House he said that the negotiations were moving forward smoothly. He added that he had not conveyed to President Roosevelt the names of the Russian plenipotentiaries and had not received from him the names of those of Japan.

While the same reserve that hitherto has characterized the present exchange of which have been taken place is maintained about the interviews of Ambassador Cassini and Minister Takahira, it is known that they were not of great importance. Each of the plenipotentiaries presented to the president notices from his government expressive of the satisfaction felt at both St. Petersburg and Tokyo over the selection of Washington as the seat of the peace conference.

Whether the conference will actually sit in Washington or not has not been determined. It is known that the plenipotentiaries will be received by the president and that they will be given the opportunity to present their credentials and to make a statement of their respective governments. It is said that no decision will be reached on this point until the conference meets here and organizes. If the weather in Washington at that time should be unfavorable to continued sittings in this city, it will be within the authority of the plenipotentiaries to adjourn to some other city.

During the past few days the president has received as many as a hundred letters suggesting various cities in the country as desirable places for holding the conference. It can be said that the president will not permit himself to be drawn into the discussion of this subject and the government will not attempt to interfere in any way with the choice of the conference of a place of holding its conference.

It is regarded as probable that this city will be at least the scene of the beginning and the ending of the conference, although the intervening sessions may be held elsewhere. It is known in diplomatic history, therefore, as already stated, as the "Washington conference" and the convention, if one be formulated, will be the treaty of Washington.

JAPAN'S PEACE TERMS WILL BE MODERATE

St. Petersburg, June 20, 2 a. m.—Japan's terms of peace, according to an interview had by a correspondent of the Novoe Vremya with a member of the Japanese embassy at Vienna, will prove to be more modest than had been expected, and will be based on the positions made in the Japanese note on the eve of the outbreak of the war. It is an indemnity covering the cost of the war, Japan will not insist on humiliating terms such as the cessation of the island of Sakhalin, or the limitation of Russian naval rights in the Pacific, but will insist on guarantees against renewal of the war for half a century at least.

The diplomat is quoted as saying that Japan wishes to live on terms of peace.
