SALT PALACE OPENING.

Last year's patrons of the Salt Palace will see many changes and improvements in the new building. A great deal of labor and expense has been expended to make the new building more attractive and comfortable. The Salt Palace building has been turned into a palm garden, in which will be refreshment tables. A ladies' orchestra will furnish music in the evening.

Among the new features of amusement is the "Tours of the World" car, which will entertain pleasure seekers, both young and old. It is built like an observation car, and by the use of clever mechanical devices the passenger is almost convinced that the train is moving, jerking around curves, etc. The whistle blows, the bell rings, and the passenger gazes at beautiful scenes during the long "ride."

Another feature will be the captive passenger balloon, which will take you 1,000 feet in the air. Ye old mill, scenic railway, miniature railway, circular swing, dance hall and the famous saucer track will all contribute their portion to entertainment. Tomorrow afternoon slack wire walking will be one of the features.

THE STREET CARS.

tenants at the present time is a photographer. The lady has a daughter. Some few days ago a girl appeared at the studio and posed for her picture. She called again and after looking at the proof ordered a number of prints made, giving as her name Myrtle Maxwell. The order was filled and the girl called again. In the meantime the young lady in charge of the reception and waiting room of the studio, came across the pictures and recognized them as the likeness of Miss "Blank." Miss "Blank" was the daughter of Mrs. "Blank," the landlady. The girl appeared again and the young lady in charge addressed her by her right name, instead of "Miss Myrtle Maxwell." Miss "Blank" was taken by surprise. "Who are you?" she gasped weakly. The young lady in charge told her, "Why, you know me. I've seen you in Nevada. Well, they dared me to have my pictures taken under another name. They do it often to her," she stammered. Embarrassed beyond description the girl paid for her pictures and left hurriedly. The landlady had no doubt wanted this particular photographer, her tenant, to take her daughter's picture, but rather than let him know she would patronize him, had instructed her daughter to furnish a fictitious name.

INVESTIGATION OF GRAFT STORY

Chief Sheets and Tribune Probe Into "News" Expose and Discover Its Truth.

Chief Sheets has made an investigation of his force with a view of determining what police officer took an intoxicated man to his home instead of bringing him to the station, and then, according to the story told by a friend of the victim to the "News" yesterday, tried to secure $5 for this service.

Chief Sheets announces this morning that the man is C. B. Turner, who is a privately employed officer, and not a regular policeman, although he wears a blue coat, a badge, a club, and a helmet.

When asked whether such a policeman had authority to make a arrest, he said that he had, although he had no authority to remove him for this kind of work, his appointment coming from the city council.

According to the story told by Turner, he found his man near the Diamond street, and was asked to take him home, doing so on the promise that he would be given $5 for this service.

This is a very different story from that told the "News" and again verified today by the men in question. They declare they were a party to the officer who had brought their friend home. He showed his star, and announced that he was a policeman—an officer of the law, and asked for $5 or if they didn't have that amount, any part of it they did have. They declared that he was a policeman—an officer of the law, and asked for $5 or if they didn't have that amount, any part of it they did have. They declared that he was a policeman—an officer of the law, and asked for $5 or if they didn't have that amount, any part of it they did have.

The watchman and Tribune reporter called at the offices where the men are employed today but succeeded only in having them reaffirm the story as given to the "News."

BOISE OFFICERS ARE THREATENED

Boise, Ida., May 29.—There have been suggestive developments today in connection with the arrest of Carl H. Duncan, the young man found disguised on the streets yesterday. The city authorities received an unsigned letter saying that he was a worthy young man, and that unless he was turned loose at once violence would be done to the mayor and chief of police. R. S. Parks, the young Socialist writer whose name was connected with that of Duncan by letters found on the latter, called on the police this morning and asked to be protected from Duncan, saying that he was in fear of harm from him. Duncan, when questioned, said that he and Parks were deadly enemies, and that he had challenged Parks to a duel for things he had written and said about him. The police neither asked nor deny this story of enmity and are going to make a further investigation.

Duncan was subjected to a long examination this morning by Prosecuting Atty. Keesen and the police and according to them he said he was a graduate of the University of Michigan. He said that his mother lives at Ann Arbor, where he has a younger brother attending the university, and that another brother is an electrician in New York.

Duncan gave his birthplace at Plattsburg, N. Y., but he said that when a boy he said that he had bought the false whiskers, nose piece, and face paint in Portland, and that he used the whiskers and nose piece to disguise himself as a farmer. He said he bought the automatic pistol because he thought of going on the range. His skeleton keys he said were just ordinary keys. He said that he had claimed to have bought from friends with the intention of selling them. He denied that he and Parks were friends, and insisted on the contrary that they were deadly enemies. He said that Parks had traduced him and that he had challenged him to a fight. He said that he had wanted to go to the country and that he had been arrested on suspicion at Toledo, Ohio, but had been freed after inquiry. The police said that he had been seen later in the city.

I have not had a message from this young man yet, but if I hear from him I will go to see him. I never refuse to go to a man in prison and I would not think there is much in this matter. There will be a lot of harmless cracks here during this trial.

Duncan is 34 years old, has red hair, a full round face, is 5 feet 9 inches tall, and is of stocky build.
