

FOREIGN NOTES.

Eighty-two heads of religious orders in Rome have signed a document protesting against the bill for the suppressing of religious corporations, and appeal to the Pope, to the law of nations, and to God.

There is a female Caleb Quotem in Vienna whose newspaper announcement is as follows: "Anna Agrikol, sick nurse, watches dead bodies, repairs straw chairs, applies leeches, and makes pastries, desserts and delicacies."

Lord Chief Justice Cockburn has just made a joke. A Mrs. Jury being examined as a witness in the Tichborne case, stated that she had eleven children, whereupon his honor observed he had always understood it took twelve to make a jury.

Whatever Americans may think of horse-racing on Sunday, the French have little or no compunction about it. Their great races are run on that day, when there is always a large attendance, the people swarming out of Paris by thousands.

The great cathedral at Cologne, which was commenced about six hundred years ago, but neglected for about four centuries, and then pushed forward by the Prussian government, is rapidly approaching completion. It is the most magnificent gothic edifice in Northern Europe.

At Cremorne Gardens, London, Mr. Baum, the terrible scenes of the destruction of fire by Chicago are vividly represented—a monster canvas picture scene, rendered the more solemn by the tolling of bells, the galloping(?) of fire-engines, and, above all, by the roar of the affrighted populace. There is a comic ballet, grand ballet, and a variety of other entertainments, which are supplemented by an exposition of tableaux vivants on a scale never before attempted.

Mr. Beese, an English barrister, illustrates the old saw that "the lawyer who manages his own case has a fool for a client." Before he died he wrote his own will, covering a score of long drawn foolscap sheets. In searching his papers two pages numbered "four" were found, seeming to be parts of his ultimate testament, and now the probate is puzzled to decide which is which and who are among the legatees named in the questionable pages. Justly enough, it has ruled that the estate pay the costs of the contest.

According to the British Medical Journal these caused the death of Cuvier, and were a source of discomfiture to Lord Brougham. Cuvier, impatient at the interruptions of that perpetual interrupter, M. Glais-Bizoin, in the Nation Assembly, rose so impatiently to answer him that he jerked his teeth out on the floor, and stooping not less precipitately to pick them up, fell head-foremost and struck his head against the floor so heavily as to give rise to the illness which proved fatal to him. M. Glais-Bizoin, then a very young man, promised himself to abstain from his fatal habit of incessantly interrupting, but he was incorrigible. Lord Brougham, in the course of the proceedings of a great meeting of the Social Science Association, of which he was President, was stopped in the middle of a speech by his teeth falling out. After groping on the floor, and on presently resuming his speech, he made the best of the incident by observing: "Our teeth are sources of trouble from infancy to old age."

The minor clergy of England are troubled because they have marriage inclinations, and poverty prevents them entering into wedlock. The subject was made the theme of an earnest discourse by Rev. Francis Holland, at an immense festival at St. Paul's Cathedral, not long ago. It does not appear that Mr. Holland proposed any efficient remedy, although he inveighed bitterly against fate and the unwilling monachism into which he and so many of his brethren are driven. It may slightly enable the reverend gentleman, who, it appears, is afflicted with youth and excessive vitality, to know that the laity, both in America and in England, are suffering under similar disadvantages. There are many intelligent laymen who would gladly submit to the marriage rite, except for the costly sequel. The whole matter will have to be submitted to the social philosophers.

—Three incorrigible bachelors in Indiana have made up a purse of $100 to procure a silver tea-set, to be awarded the ugliest woman on exhibition, willing or unwilling, at the Knox County Fair.
