CONVENTION OPENS.

The convention was called to order at 11:10 a.m. by County Chairman J. U. Eldredge, Jr., but it was some time later before the delegates had filed into their seats. Secretary Horace H. Smith read the call, after which Chairman Eldredge introduced as temporary drman of the convention, Hon. James T. Hammond, and as temporary secretary, D. M. Haigh.

CHAIRMAN HAMMOND'S SPEECH.

In assuming charge of the convention Chairman Hammond made a short speech in which he reviewed the nation al issues of the present campaign, and attacked the methods of the Democratic party in meeting live national prob.

He said in part: "Gentlement of the Convention: We have been holding a long list of conventions this year, and at this final convention we will complete the Republican ticket for the campaign. I thank you for the distinguished hor you have conferred upon selecting me as your temporary chairman. As I was walking down the street the other day I met a prominent Breet the other day I net a probability re-bearsed to me the chances for a Demo-cratic victory this year. 'Yes,' thought, as he went on speaking, 'that sounds familiar. I heard something like that four years ago.' And as he went on in glowing terms I was sure I had heard something of the same sort eight years ago when banners s pread acros the streets proclaimed to all "This is a Democratic Year.' Yet in that year we elected every Republican on the ticket. What is there in the makeup of the Democratic party that makes it hope for victory every year. The face of contin-ued deat?' I asked my friend, and some one standing near answered some one standing near answered, 'Don't embarrass the gentleman by making him answer. They have to get up their spirits before each campaign. cause they never get a chance to afterward.

The Democrats have entered the campaign this year with a new set of prin-ciples, and they have forgotten certain taxets of four years ago which they then then announced as eternal truths. Their leaders tell us that this year they are safe and same, forgetting that in so doing they are merely confessing that for eight years past they have been unsafe and insane. Now we know that patients discharged from insane hospitals do not well afford to let them run free a little while, and watch them before trusting he government into their hands. the Republican party feels assured that the Democrats will have a relapse bofore another four years is past, and fore another four years is past, and that then as now the Republican party will be again chosen to conduct the af-fairs of our nation. The Democrats this year are making a rangem upon one issue that of

The Republicans of Salt Lake county convention assembled, resolve as

1-We reaffirm our devotion to the Republican party and its principles. 2-We heartily endorse the action of the national Republican convention in placing in nomination that sterling patriot and leader of men. Theodore Roosovelt, for president, and the great senator from Indiana, Charles W. Fairbanks, for vice president. 3-We hereby endorse the platform adopted by the national Republican convention at Chicago, and the platform adopted by our Republican state convention. 4-In appealing for support for the nominees of this convention for county officers, and for members of the Legisature we call attention to the ho efficient and economical administration of our county affairs during the past two years, and also to the importance of electing a majority of Republicans to the next legislative assembly, to the end that Utah shall be represented in the senate of the United States by senator in harmony with the adminis-tration, and who will give an uncomromising support to the policies of the Republican party. -That we emphatically declare our opposition to any union of church and state, and to the interference of any church either directly or indirectly in political affairs, or in the control or management of our free public schools. 6-We call upon all citizens who regard the interest of the state as paramount to that of factions or indivduils, to support the candidates of the Republican party, national, state and county, and we endorse the action of the Republican state committee in its attitude respecting those who are seeking to disrupt and defeat the party.

Edmunds finally located the body jammed up against the gate on North Temple and East Temple, and it was quickly brought out. Life had evidently been extinct for several hours. After the body was removed to the undertakers, police began a careful investigation of the case.

About a dozen or so boys, playmates of the Brown boy, were located, and taken to police headquarters where they were closely questioned,

From their statements, it appears that boys in that neighborhood have been in the habit of playing in and about the tunnel after school hours, and during recess. They played "train and backout." The question as to who was the bravest; which boy would dare go into the tunnel further than any of the others, was open to dispute, Sev eral of the youngsters penetrated the tunnel for more than half a block. to where the water begins to run swift.

It is most probable that the Brown boy wished to demonstrate to his play-mates that he was not afraid to go a great distance into the dark hole, and that he walked farther and farther un til be got where the water was swift lost his balance and was carried rapidly down the stream.

Once in the power of the current, it was impossible for the boy to extricate himself, and if he cried for help, his cries were never heard. If his play-mates missed him, they thought he had

But when she failed to locate him this morning, she became greatly alarmed, and finally notified the It was then that she feared the worst. She had heard of the boys play. ing about the tunnel and when she thought of it, she was at once con-vinced that her boy had been drowned

Immediately after the body was found, Justice of the Peace Clark was notified, and was at the police station when the crowd of boys was brought in by Officers Clive and Seager. Chief Lynch and Capt.
