Bee-keepers hould, therefore, take it on themselves to inform each other. A careful analysis of the season in the principal honey states below, will, perhaps, give one a better idea of the actual situation. From Michigan it appears from something like 30 reports, covering the en-tire State, that the season is not as good as that of last year. It will be remembered that, in, 1900, our sister state produced a pretty fair yield of honey and all the clover honey Root Co, could buy came from M the could buy came from Michigan. With very few exceptions the reporters for that state assert that the season is poorer than last year; I'd yet it has produced some honey this

New York, on the other hand, that has been having a series of poor sea-sons, comes up with a smiling face. The clover crop in that state has been universally good; and the York staters, if their bees have not largely died on account of black and foul brood dur-ing the several poor years, will, if they are not in too much haste, find a good market. Pennsylvania does not make a good showing. While it is true that some honey has been produced, it appears that the season has been even poorer than last year, and that was about as poor as it could be. Some bee-keepers in Illinois have had an absolute failure, while others have apparently obtained some honey, and he same may be said of lows, Kansas, Nebraska, and Missouri, as well as Arkansas, have, as everyone knows, suffered from a terrible drouth: and the reports in those states indicate little or no honey.

Wisconsin, a state that usually shows up well with basswood, if it does not with clover, does not seem to have been blessed with a good geason; while its sister, Minnesota, seems to have had generally a good vield. Some parts of Texas, usually one of the best bee states in the union, have had a poorer year than last. Bu as never seems to have a complete fail ure; for, so far as I could learn while in that state, the bee-keepers always make a living, and generally a good return ride was under intense gain.

Farmington, Sept. 3 .- 8, A. Anderson a farmer of this place, started into Salt Lake City this morning in a cart. He was driving a spirited animal that was hard to manage. Sometime later, Mr. Anderson returned with his face in a frightful condition. His jaw-bone was broken, one of his lips badly cut and the rest of his face severely lacer ated, bearing the impress of the horse hoof. Anderson was unable to tell how he came into his awful plight but it is presumed that the animal kicked hir while he was sitting in the cart. Hi His

is Caught Red Handed. After successfully effecting an entrance to J. P. Gardner's store late last night, and after getting away with a bulky bundle of clothing without anyone seeing him, John Kennedy was just amateur cracksman enough to walk out of the place into the arms of an officer. He pried open a window in the rear of the store, removing a pane of glass, and would have been successful in his attempt at burglary, had he not incattiously let Officer Pack see him. The policeman followed him for several blocks, arresting him in an alleyway near the police station. Kennedy ad-mitted his guilt, and said that he was very much in need of the clothing He was booked for burglary.

INJURIES PROVED FATAL.

Frederick Bollwinkle Dies of Paralysis of the Spine-Fell from Wagon.

Frederick Bollwinkle of 151 Center street died yesterday from paralysis of the spine resulting from injuries received in a runaway last Saturday. He and his son were engaged in loading his dray when the team got frightened made a dash down the street and Boilwinkle fell out of the rear of the wagon. He lit on a stone on the back of his head and became unconscious. He was conveyed to his home in a buggy and Dr. H. A. Anderson was called in. The doctor on examination found that the spine had been affected and that serious complications were apt to en-sue. Paralysis of the spine set in yes terday and his life was brought to a sudden close. Mr. Bollwinkle was born in Liverpool.

SAYS HE WAS ROBBED.

Kenyon Guest Avers That His Roommate Took a Large Sum.

There was quite an exciting time at the Kenyon hotel for a few minutes last night, when outcries from one of the rooms were heard all over the place. These outeries came from James E. Haggerty, a mechanic from Pennsylvania, who claimed that his roommate, J. C. Cleary, a carpenter from Evans-ton, Wyo., was robbing him and had been choking him. The amount which he said had been taken was $55.50, although he told the officers different amounts at different times, going as high as $300. Cleary was arrested and is held pending an investigation. The officers are inclined to discredit the story, and Cleary says that Haggerty must be insane, because he did nothing at all to him.
