

So severe an arraignment as that made against the majority of the city council last evening by Councilman Fernstrom has not been heard in that body in many a day. The occasion that called forth the rebuke was the attitude of the "American" members of the council in the matter of the appointment by Mayor Bransford James Devine to be chief of the fire department. Up to almost the last moment it was expected that a sufficient number of "American" votes would be added to the majority to confirm the mayor's appointee, but before the ex-ecutive's communication was read it was known that every man on the ma-jority side had gone back on his word and had assented to the demands of the "inner circle," Mr. Fernstrom declared that if Dio-

An honest man, he swould not find ene. An honest man, however, would be found in the per-son of Mayor J. S. Bransford. The speaker expressed surprise that men should have so little regard for a sac-red promise as to uiterly fall to keep it. It was thoroughly understood, he declared, the majority members of the council and the "American hierarch," meaning the Tribune, and all it stands for, had agreed to the appointment of for, had agreed to the appointment of Mr. Devine, and that, too, without any solicitation on the part of the latter.

TOO INDEPENDENT.

"When you entered into that agree "When you entered into that agree-ment you had not consulted your bosses," declared Mr. Fernstrom turn-ing to the majority side of the house. "The persuaders took you in hand, and then you assume an attitude that makes of the mayor a figurehead and leaves the "inner circle" in the saddle. In 11 years' experience in this body I have never seen such an exhibition of bad faith. The council has usually had men who could be trusted, but your bad faith. The council has usually had men who could be trusted, but your word and promise are not worth a cent. You sit in council to do the bidding of bosses, but I warn you that you are walking on dangerous ground. You are asking the people to vote special bonds, and promise that the money rhall be expended as stipulated; will the expended as stipulated; will and people believe you? I tell you no, and your doom, and your are and the police and fire de-to and the police and fire de-to and within a few months."

HALL EXPLAINS. Corncilman Hall was the only mem-besides Mr. Fernstrom to explain besides Mr. Fernstrom to the kill much about the situation as he had not been taken into the confidence of the majority. He understood, however, that the appointment of Mr. Devine had been made after the mayor had consulted with the majority of the council. It was bad taste for them not to stand by the executive now. "I want no other power to rule this city than the men duly chosen by the people to represent them." declared Mr. Hall. "When you break your word at the behest of ward bosses and healers, you make a mistake, and your actions will drive from you the better portion of the people who have heretofore sup-ported you."

developed the aptitude for writing, which afterwards distinguished him. His father, Bishop Whitney, removed to Logan. In 1898, and the young man was employed for a short time there on the Journal, under Noble Warrum, where he gained his first experience in newspaper work. In Provo he was a clerk in the Roberts House, then con-ducted by his uncle and aunt, Mr, and Mrs. Warren Dusenberry. In 1898 he took a position on the Salt Laks Herald, where he remained for sev-eral years, being closely associated with the cartoonist, Allen Lovey. He was married in 1901 to Miss Rosemarie Glosz, and some time after traveled throughout the east and the south as advance agent of the opera company in which his wife was singing. Later he returned home and worked about a year on the Deseret News, which posi-tion the resigned to go to Portland to join the staff of the Journal. He was given charge of the press bureau of that paper at the Portland exposition in 1905, and also acted as dramatic editor. Ben Hartwick, 14 west Second South. Upon motion of Mr. Ferry a resolu-tion was adopted instructing the city recorder to have published in all the daily papers of the city the statement issued by the council relative to the proposed bond issue. The motion was opposed by the minority members. Chief Pitt sent in an announcement that he had appointed William Passler a special policeman at the Newhouse building, without pay from the city. He also reported the removal as special policemen George Pugsley and J. R. Clawson at the D. & R. G. depot. ROUTINE BUISINESS.

ROUTINE BUSINESS.

In a communication to the council, City Atty. Dininny reported that it would be impracticable to check the list of voters of this city with the coun-ty assessers' list of taxpayers, to as-certain who is entitled to vote at the coming bond election. He suggested that where doubt existed as to a citi-zen's right to vote, the sworn statement of the applicant could be taken. Claims against the city were filed as Kirk, $260, damages to property on First West, by cutting down trees, etc. Annie Latimer and others, $2,500 damages to property on Third avenue between Canyon road and A street, by change of grade. Phyllis Ferguson and others peti-titioned for a retaining wall in front of property on Second avenue, between Canyon road and A street. ESTIMATES AND REBATES.

His articles attracted wide attention for their sprightliness, wit and humor, and he became known as one of the best writers in his field, in the northwest. He later went to San Francisco, where he met "Wal-ly" Young, also of Salt Lake, and the two began working on the opera of "The King Maker," Mr. Bassett, a lo-cal musician, writing the score. The two young men were reporters on the Chronicle at the time of the earth-quake, and when business was demor-alized as a result of that catastrophe, both came back to Salt Lake, spend-ing several months. It was while here that they wrote the dramatic sketch for the Press club, entilled, "The Old Bedstead." the humor and fun of which is still so well remem-bered. Their opera, "The King Mak-er," had been left in an unfinished condition, and they supposed that Mr. Bassett had been killed in the San Francisco earthquake, but learning that he was in Los Angeles, both Mr. Whitney and Mr. Young rejoined him there and finished the work, Mr. Young taking the manuscript to San Francisco, where he had it norduced

"The day is not far distant when physical training will be universal, as it is now spasmodic in colleges and unia school that teaches for the making of a body that teaches for the making of a body that does not have to be cured of the ills of the flesh than it is to have a medical school which eaches only fter it is ill. the curing of the flesh after it is ill." he has been in any other part allotted to him. His German dialect is not al-together faultless, though it is hardly of the variety heard too often in vaude-ville. Lee Baker, a capable actor, is given a part in which there is little "fat," although at times he imparts a touch of comedy to the offering that is guite amusing. Harry Bewley as a Chicago lawyer more than takes ad-vantage of every line of his part. He stood out as a comedian of high order last night. For the other men of the cast there was little to do, but all parts were handled to the limit afforded by the lines and the situations. Miss Edith Evelyn and Miss Sayres share honors. Miss Evelyn, playing the part she had with the Mansfield production, that of a rich young widow who is inshe had with the Mansfield production, that of a rich young widow who is in-tensely enamoured of the prince, in-terpreted the role exceptionally well, Miss Sayres as a widow of rather re-mote vintage was splendid. Miss He-laine Hadley and Miss Lola May were given an opportunity to appear charm-ing and gracious and to display some rather attractive costumes but that is ing and gracious and to display some rather attractive costumes, but that is all. Throughout the four acts of the comedy, there is an abundance of the ludicrous, more than enough to keep the interest. Prince Karl is amusing, it is pleasing, and a hot summer's evening is well spent in seeing it. The bill runs through the week with Wed-nesday and Saturday matinees.

As a Mans-field success, the comedy was probably so well received because Mansfield played the Prince. Here and there, though, there are snatches of amusing cross-talk and rather odd situations.

HOW THE VOTE STOOD.

The vote was as follows: For confirmation—Fernstrom, Holley, Hall, Cowburn, Hodgson, Murdock—6 Against confirmation—Black, Ferry, Reedall. Martin, O'Donnell, Raybould, Wood, Stewart—8. The second important matter to come

The second important matter to come before the council was the amending of the ordinance relating to the police department so as to provide for a chief of detectives and a first and second lieutenant. The measure was opposed by the minority, Mr. Fernstrom sar-castically declaring that he would vote for it if amended to read that all appointments and dismissals should be made by the "American hierarch." rather than by the chief of police. Can-didly, he did not see any reason for a change just now, as in a few months the council would have no control of the department. FAT JOB FOR SHEETS. The second important matter to come

FAT JOB FOR SHEETS.

Mr. Hall said the amendments were intended to give a fat job to George Sheets, and he thought it inconsistent that the position should command such a high salary. He would vote for $1.500, but considered $1,800 entirely too high. The amendments carried by a strictly party vote.

The amendments carried by a strictly party vote. Mr. Black, who was in the chair, in the absence of President Davis, intro-duced a resolution providing for the re-moval of one of the hydrants on the north side of South Temple street, be-tween Main and State. He explained that there were four on the block, but the sprinkling men seemed to delight in making use of the one directly in front of the Church offices, to the in-convenience of all persons making calls there. He thought it but common cour-tesy that the nuisance should be abat-ed, but the supervisor of streets had answered him curtly when he spoke to alm about it. Nearly all the members were in favor of affording relief in the temises, and finally it was decided hat the department should be notified hat the department should at no time be uset, except in case of fre. user, except in case of fire.

HALL SIDESTEPS,

HALL SIDESTEPS, Another resolution by Mr. Black was to the effect that hereafter no street be filled with dirt or gravel above the pre-scribed grade, and that no dirt or gravel be purchased for such improper filling. Such a rule would do away with the custom of raising or lowering the streets at the whim of each suc-ceeding roadmaster. Mr. Hall, who carlier in the evening had invelghed against such unjustified interfering with the streets by dirt haulers, was the only member to vote against Black's resolution.
