

AMERICAN COLD COINS.

ON Oct. 31, 1791, the senate of the United States appointed Messrs. Morris, King, Cabot and Henry a committee to report a bill for the creation of a mint. Seven weeks later Mr. Morris reported a bill to establish a mint and to regulate the national coinage.

The senate debated the bill Dec. 23 and 27 and Jan. 2, 3, 4, 5, and again Jan. 9. On the last named day there was a proposal to place upon the obverse of the silver and copper coins a design of clasped hands and linked chains, emblematic of the union of the states; and upon the reverse the figure of justice bearing the scales, but it was defeated.

On Jan. 12 the bill passed the senate with a provision that the coins bear upon one side the head of the president of the United States for the time being, with an inscription to express the initial letter of his Christian name and his surname in full, together with the "succession of the presidency numerically expressed." On the other side were to be an eagle and other devices. This bill came to the house Jan. 13, 1792, and was referred to the committee of the whole. On March 24, the bill came up in committee of the whole, and an amendment was proposed striking out all that looked to the impressing of the president's effigy and name upon the coins and providing in lieu of it an emblematic head of Liberty with the word "Liberty."

This amendment brought on a debate in which a good many members took part, the men who afterwards called themselves Republicans or Democratic Republicans in favor of the amendment, the Federalists mostly in opposition. One member objected to the president's head on the coinage as a savoring of the practices of monarchies, which had taken this method of handing down to the ignorant the names and succession of their monarchs. The Scriptural phrase, "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, unto God the things that are God's" was quoted.

It was argued on the other side that the proposed effigy was a proper tribute to Washington, to which a member responded that, while every one might be glad thus to honor the great man then president, there might be future presidents whose heads the people would not care to see upon the coins.

After the question had been ridiculed by one Federalist as too trivial for so much waste of time and the amendment had been seriously urged in speeches ornate with references to Roman history the question was divided, and the house voted, 26 to 22, that the name and effigy of the president should not appear upon the coins. It was then voted, 42 to 8, that the emblematic figure of Liberty should be substituted for the design proposed by the senate. Two days later the bill as amended passed by a vote of 32 to 22.

On the very same day the senate returned the bill to the house, with notice of dissent from the amendment. The house was not pleased at this prompt action of the senate. As the sessions of the latter body were secret in those days and very briefly reported in the published official Annals of Congress, the nature of the debate in the senate is unknown.

There was more discussion in the house this time, with further denunciations of all signs and symbols of royalty. Mr. Mercer thought it would be well to have for the house of representatives some such rule as that of the British house of commons forbidding the mention of the sovereign's name in debate, and Mr. Page said he would rather cut off his right arm than sign the mint bill without the house amendment.

The house adhered to its amendment by a vote of 24 to 32, and next day, March 27, 1792, the senate receded from its disagreement.—New York Sun.

PAPER PAILS FOR MILK.

For years London's milk supply has been blamed by medical men and health officials for a great deal of the infant mortality.

Now the dairy companies are to deliver milk at the doors of houses in paper pails or pithers, which are said to be absolutely proof against germs and water.

The paper pails are being made at a new factory at the rate of 50,000 daily, but they will require to be turned out at the rate of some millions daily if the demand is to be met.

These milk pails, made from wood pulp, can, of course, be used only once, says What to Eat. But they will be cheaper than metal pails, pithers, or glass bottles, for one reason, because all labor of cleaning and sterilizing will be saved.

The pail is a simple contrivance, 12 times lighter than the ordinary milk can, is strongly made, and is finished off, after being rendered water-proof, by being sterilized in a furnace heated up to 500 degrees Fahrenheit. Every pail has a close-fitting flanged cover which can be quickly adjusted, and when fixed, effectually seals the milk from any outside influence.—New York Sun.

AN INDIAN WOMAN LAWYER.

Miss Lydia Conley of Kansas City, Mo., is the only woman Indian lawyer on earth and is just now engaged in fighting for the preservation of the historic cemetery of the Wyandotte Indians in that city. The United States government has decided to sell the cemetery and Miss Conley is seeking to restrain the action by injunction. Miss Conley has many of the traits of her race and has been a practicing lawyer for five years.

STATE AND FEDERAL GOVERNMENT CLASH.

Judge J. C. Pritchard of the United States circuit court in session at Asheville, N. C., has come into direct clash with Gov. Glenn over his decision in favor of the Southern railway in its famous rate case and grave fears have been entertained regarding the outcome. Judge Pritchard threatened Judge Reynolds of the Asheville police court with jail if he interfered with the federal court and Gov. Glenn sustained the local judge in his resistance that the Southern railway be punished for its violation of the law. It is altogether one of the most remarkable cases in jurisprudence.

STILL HOPEFUL.

Secy. of War William H. Taft told the Yale graduates at the annual Yale alumni banquet Wednesday the exact state of things in regard to his own and the candidacy of Senator Knox. Senator Knox, who was given the degree of doctor of laws by Yale, sat on the platform while Taft spoke. Secy. Taft said: "Senator Knox agreed when I was chosen to speak this afternoon for those awarded the doctor of laws degree that I tell this story to express our present view of the political situation."

"A long time ago there was a Republican governor elected in Kentucky, and an old man who had voted the Republican ticket for years without result came down off the mountains on his old mare, Jenny, and hung around the public square till he became finally of the opinion that Republicans are ungrateful. He at last turned his horse's head toward his mountain home, when some of the boys who sat on the plaza of the hotel at Frankfort called out to him and asked him what he looked so glum about. He stopped his mare and said slowly: 'Well, boys, I've heard it said that the office should seek the man and not the man the office. I've been down here for several days and I haven't seen any office seeking the man, but if you do you just tell them that you see Jim Stubbs going down the Alexandria pike on his little mare, enby, and that he was going damned slow.'—Chicago Tribune.

LARGEST BASS HATCHERY.

Eleven lakes in Forest park, covering 80 acres, constitute the largest bass and crappie hatchery in the United States. The depletion of the streams and lakes throughout Missouri, caused by the increase in angling in the past few years, requires a large fish reserve. The purpose of the Missouri Fish commission has been assisted in its course by the co-operation of our municipal assembly in granting the state the use of Forest park waters as breeding ground without compensation, and in the form of 10-year leases, to be renewed at the expiration of the period for which the lease runs.

Notwithstanding the lack of sufficient labor caused by the need of funds, the bass and crappie crop for the last biennial year was the greatest in the history of the commission. From the Forest park hatchery 65,365 black bass were distributed in private waters and 246,925 were transferred to the streams and lakes of our state, the total being 302,292, so we see the office Forest park fills in the welfare of Missouri. There were 159,694 crappie distributed, so the grand total is 492,594, with 128,000 on hand after distribution.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
