Resument on the Bill for the More Resummical Survey of Public

WARRINGTON, 24. — The House public lands committee, yesterday, heard arguments concerning the bill introduced by Price, of Iowa, to provide, as its title asserts, for more economical and accurate surveys of public lands.

major Powell first addressed the committee, confining his remarks to the necessity of classifying public lands so as to avoid the expense of sub-division surveys of lands not susceptible of cultivation.

Representative Page then made an argument to show that the enactment of this bill would tend to dangerous centralization; that it to dangerous centralization; that it is not in the interest of economy; will retard the settlement of the will retard the settlement of the public domain; quintriple the extended of the public domain; quintriple the extended of the public domain; quintriple the extended of public surveys, and harship discriminate in favor of the rich and against the poor. He said the bill abolished the office of Surveyor General, and provides for the removal of all maps, records, etc., to Washington. This would be a great hardship to the people of the Pacific Coast. It would require them to travel 3,000 miles, and expend large sums of money to perfect or protect their titles.

Representative Davis confirmed what his colleague had said, and read several comborative letters, received by him from California, earnestly opposing the proposed removal of the records.

Comunicationer Williams, from the General Land Office, who was CIRCINNATI, 24.—It is announced that General Land Office, who was present, expressed himself strongly in favor of the general objects of the bill, but advised that it be amended so as to provide that the archives relating to surveys be turned over to the governors of the several States and Territories, and thus be retained for public inspection within the present districts. He referred to his last annual report to show that the maintenance of the present 16 surveyor generals offices during the current fiscal year, will cost about $129,000, while

In many instances it will be necessary, in order to complete the testimony, to employ surveying parties to retrace the lines where the depredations have been committed so as to enable the government to show authoritative by the particular subdivision of public lands upon which timber has been cut, and this costs money. As the preparation of this testimony is a most imperative thing to be done at present, we shall have to apply money appropriated to that purpose and we shall be obliged to abandon the investigation of the depredations.
