UNDERGOING SECOND OPERATION.

INTERESTING POINT OF LAW.

A very interesting point of law came up this week in the case of Harvey G. Taylor against Ogden City, David Eccles, et al. Mr. Taylor fell through a basement door in the side-walk of the Eccles building, suffering injuries. He made his complaint to the property owner and Joseph Myers, a salaried keeper who had leased a portion of the building, defendants to the suit. The point of law was, can a landlord be held responsible for premises or buildings, for damages, if when the property was leased to a tenant it was in good condition. The court sustained the point that when a building or premises is rented and is in good condition, the landlord is not liable for damage that he cannot be held responsible for unless that anyone might sustain by the same getting out of order or repair, but the burden of responsibility rests upon the tenant, and it is his duty to see that the premises or building rented by him is kept in proper condition. This was the contention of Atty. C. R. Richards in the case and the same was upheld by the court.

ESCAPE FROM DROWNING.

Geo. W. Lindquist goes Fishing With Disastrous Results.

Logan Cache Co., June 14.—Logan narrowly escaped losing the president of the city council last night. As the result of an overweening desire to "go fishing," President George W. Lindquist, 40, a boy under 12 years, and his wife, who had been fishing for some time, had nearly lost his life. He concluded to take a chance at fishing, and had such an experience as probably will deter him from a similar effort for a long while. A boat kept on the big pond formed by the placing of the city power dam in the river, and, while there are hundreds of fishermen along the river today, but few fish will be caught.

Mr. Lindquist was badly bruised, but the child was not hurt.

The unusually high water has destroyed the fishing this year, and, while there are hundreds of fishermen along the river today, but few fish will be caught.

Wednesday morning he took with him his little son, and they took a boat to the pond.

After paddling about for a little time

one of the carrioles on the boat broke

and he was unable to handle the craft

against the strong current, the river

being very high. The boat and its occupants were carried down over the edge of the bank, and the boy was left hanging by his hands.

He was pulled ashore by his father
