WESTERN MARKET LETTER.

Special Correspondence. Stock Yards, Kansns City, Mo., Jan

15.-The heavy supply of cattle, for the season, keeps up, and prices on fed steers are 10 to 20 cents lower than a week ago. Butcher stuff and stockers and feeders are holding up steady. The run today is 13,000 head, market opened weak to 10 lower, account of an excessive supply at Chicago, and prices 10 to 20 lower there, but compe-tition was strong, and prices are closing the days of the strong strong and prices are closing the day about steady. Very little stuff from the range country has been re-ceived in the last week, one drove of ceived in the last week, one drove of high grade hereford stockers from the panhandle at $4.25, being the most sen-sational sale. Prices on range cattle of all kinds may be quoted as unchanged for the week. Bulk of stockers and feeders sell at $3.50 to $4.15, about 50 cents above a month ago, and the price is gradually creaping upward. Although heavy runs have had the ef-fect of depressing the market tempo-rarily on fed cattle at different times this month, general opinion favors a let up in the receipts this week or next, and a stronger market accordingly. Extra heavy runs of sheep and fambs

Extra heavy runs of sheep and lambs in the last ten days have brought about a decline of 15 to 25 cents, including a loss of 10 to 15 cents today. Supply today is 15,000 head, and a good deal of today is 15,000 head, and a good deal of the stuff is poorly finished. Several strings of Monte Vista lambs are here, selling at $6.95 to $7.25, and some choice heavy Lamar lambs at $7.35, fed west-ern ewes $5.35, western sheep and year-lings mixed at $5.90, native ewes at $5.60, and altogether the market is active at the decline. A few ship-ments of unfinished lambs, whose own-ers ran short of feed, have sold here ers ran short of feed, have sold here in the last week to country buyers at $5,75 to $6.25, goate at $3 to $3,75, and the limit of fed yearlings is around $6,50, although $6.65 was paid last Fri-
