Southern Pacific Engineers Strike On a Second Sink Hole.

THIS TIME IN DEEP WATER.

Ogden-Lucin Cut-off Presents New Problem—May Eventually be Built Round South End.

It begins to look as though Engineer Hood and his staff on the Southern Pacific were up against a hard proposition on the Ogden-Lucin cut-off. Despite the secresy maintained and the order issued months ago prohibiting newspaper reporters and strangers without a permit to visit the scene of operations, it is learned that another stretch of shifty bottom has been struck in the lake, this time at a point west of Promontory where the water is twenty feet deep. The track at this point has been completed so far as the trestle work is concerned, but every time anything goes over it, it begins to settle. To date the subsidence is in the neighborhood of six feet. If a few trains were run over it, it is said that the track would settle as much again.

What this would mean were the cut-off being operated does not take any stretch of imagination. Should the track sink under the Overland Limited there would not be a soul left to tell the tale, while the subsequent damages accruing from the catastrophe would go a long way towards representing the intial expense in the construction of the cut-off across the lake. It is presumed, as in case of the quagmire, or "bottomless pit," at the mouth of Bear river in shallow water on the east side of Promontory, that the engineers will dump a mountain of rock into the lake with the object of getting a firm fundation. Just how this move will succeed remains to be demonstrated. In the case of the first quagmire encountered the engineers are still at work on it and it has already sunk no less than half a dozen times.

All efforts to recover the engine which toppled off the track a week ago and killed the fireman have been in vain. In a few days the locomotive will have entirely sunk out of sight and will probably only be recovered by scientists a thousand years hence, who will squabble over the prehistoric find to eventually put it in a museum and lable it "Lamanite Chariot. Relic of the Iron Age."

Other sinkholes have been encountered in various parts of the country by railroad engineers and have been eventually overcome. However, the conditions were hardly the same. Local engineers are shaking their heads gravely over the problem, while a number of railroadmen are saying, "I told you so."

There are those who aver that the cut-off across the lake will eventually have to be abandoned as far as crossing the water is concerned, as the present difficulties are serious obstacles to the successful operation of a transcontinental line.

It would not occasion any great surprise should the cut-off across the lake be abandoned and the line built around the south end of the lake shore, as was originally planned.

DISTINGUISHED PARTY.

Prominent Residents of St. Joe, Mo., Visit Salt Lake Today.

General Agent Starkweather of the Maple Leaf today has suspended operations on the woolmen in order to show the sights of Salt Lake to a party of visitors from St. Joe, Mo., who are on their way home from California in private car Nemaha. In the party are C. K. Berry, assistant general freight agent of the Chicago Great Western, John Donovan, president of the St. Joe Street Railway company, and the St. Joe Stockyards; Dr. D. L. Heimfrevilla, Mrs. Donovan, Miss Donovan, Mrs. Rabus, Mrs. Conklin and Mrs. Patee. After a drive around the city the party lunched at the Commercial club, and attended an organ recital in the Tabernacle in the afternoon. They continue on their way east this evening over the Union Pacific.

Freight Discrimination.

Chicago, April 1.—The charge that railroads by practically allowing a rebate in the salt rate to a concern operating boats between Michigan points, and this city, thus giving it a monopoly of the salt industry, is being investigated by the interstate commerce commission here today. The complaint, which it is said is brought primarily by the Detroit Salt company, alleges that the Michigan, Indiana and Illinois Transportation company, which owns and operates the boats, is allowed as its proportion of the tariff rate between Detroit, Ludington and Manistee and the Missouri river six cents a barrel more than other companies will transport salt for. This difference is sufficient, it is claimed, to drive all competitors out of the business, inasmuch as the boat company is owned and controlled by the International Salt company, through Joy, Morton & Co. It is charged that owing to this alleged discrimination many of the salt plants in Michigan are closed.

Railroad to Boise Basin.

The Boise Basin project is once more being revived with the result that an ordinace has been introduced into the city council of Boise, asking for right of way along the streets of the Idaho capital. The ordinance stipulates that track must be laid on or before April 1, 1904, and the road be in operation not later than 12 months afterwards.

Census Office Cotton Bulletin.

Washington, April 1.—The census office cotton bulletin shows actual cotton crop of 11,978,882 commercial bales, equivalent to 19,620,945 five-hundred pound bales.

That Telephone Again.

A local railroad man who was down in Provo yesterday tells a good story on Agent Craig for the Oregon Short Line, who had occasion to answer the 'phone while there was an undertaker at the other end who wanted to ship a corpse to Milford. Craig thought he said "cart." "Oh, I can't take it unless you knock it down and crate it first." After a while the undertaker recovered his breath and explanations followed, Craig being most profuse in his apologies.

Rates East.

This morning the new rates east on the Rio Grande Western and the Oregon Short Line went into effect. Henceforth the round trip rate from Salt Lake to Missouri river points is $55. To Chicago the rate is $75: St. Louis, $67: to St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth, $62.95. The limit on each ticket is for ninety days. These rates will be in force all the time.

TAKEN BACK HOME.

Girl With Adventurous Proclivities Saved From Going to the Bad

Emma Stagner, a 16-year-old girl from evening by the police under orders from Pocatello was taken in charge last Chief Sheets, and was today placed in charge of her father who took her back to her home in Idaho.

The girl, who is rather large for her age, and quite good looking, left her home recently, saying she was coming to Salt Lake to find employment. According to the police she fell in with undesirable company and would, in all probability, have fallen into by and forbidden paths but for the timely intervention of the police. Sergeant Roberts took her from a rooming house on Second South. She appeared to be willing to go with him, and also expressed a willingness to return to her home with her father. Chief Sheets immediately notified her father of her whereabouts.

BEER KILLED HER.

Mrs. Helga Hall Drinks it With Fatal Results.

Mrs. Helga Hall of 834 Fifth East street, met with a very peculiar death last evening. She was recovering from the birth of her seventh child, when the quench her thirst a well meaning, but badly informed neighbor advised that she drink a glas of beer. This was the very worst thing the poor woman could have done, with her system in such condition; and the result was that the beer fermented, inflammation set in, and the nervous shock ended in the sufferer's death later in the night. She was attended by a midwife, Mrs. Hagen, who stated that death was due to the beer. The body was swollen to enormous proportions after death, and it was several hours before the undertaker could restore it to a presentable condition.

AMUSEMENTS.

When Judge Goodwin arose in the audience at the theater last night at the fall of the final curtain, most people thought he was about to move that the gathering tender a vote of thanks to Mrs. Nelden and the other ladies who had been instrumental in inducing Mrs. Rhodes to visit Salt Lake. The judge, however, limited his remarks to an announcement that Mrs. Rhodes would be tendered an organ recital at the Tabernacle by Prof. McClellan this morning. A wholesale vote of thanks from the audience would have been altogether in order. Seldom has a lecturer in this city entertained her hearers to the high degree that Mrs. Rhodes did last night. She has secured some beautiful stereopticon views of the immortal Wagner, his home, the theater at Bayreuth, where his wife still gives memorable presentations of his works, and scenes from his most notable operas. She tells the story of the man, his poetry, the wonderful themes of the stories he wrote, and pausing while the views were thrown upon the curtain, the pianist, Mr. Glose, renders various themes from the opera, illustrating the scenes portrayed. Mrs. Rhodes' talent as a lecturer of the highest sort, and Mr. Glose's ability as a pianist is not second. Both are artists of a high class, and the applause that greeted their work last evening showed that the audience—a large and critical one—keenly appreciated their endeavors. Mrs. Rhodes will be tendered a reception this afternoon at the Kenyon hotel.

At the theater tonight the attraction will be the basketball game. Tomorrow night the widely advertised "Corianton" opens the conference season.

CONTINENTAL CORNER SOLD

Senator Thos. Kearns and Associates Are the Purchasers.

THE PRICE IS ABOUT $60,000

That Means an Average of $345 Per Front Foot—Modern Office Block To be Built on Site.

Real estate and property circles have been deeply interested of late in the coming disposition of the Continental hotel corner, at First South and West Temple streets, and this afternoon the deal was closed. There has been an option of $1,500 on the corner, and it had to be taken up today, or forfeited, and it was not forfeited. The transfer was completed at the National Bank of the Republic, ostensibly for the consideration of $60,000, or an average of $345 per front foot. The grantors were R. R. Anderson, Frank Godbe and Mrs. Maye J. Farlow-Crismon, who gave three separate deeds to the lot, 128 feet on First South street, and 174 feet on West Temple street, as the whole lot was three pieces of property as purchased by the recent owners. The grante named in the deeds was Frank J. Wescott, private secretary to Senator Kearns, and it is stated that Mr. Kearns' money was the immediate medium of exchange.

However, it is currently understood that the purchasing party includes Thomas Kearas and Perry S. Heath of this city, and two prominent Washington, D. C., and three New York capitalists. The real purchasers hope that First South street is to be the main east and west artery of travel, such opinion being based on what is believed to be a fact that by May 1 it will be officially given out in this city of a certain promised railroad move, which will be of the greatest advantage to Salt Lake City.

The statement is made that a great fire-proof office building, to cost $250,000, will be erected on the site.

Dun's Review for Mch. 28, has the following to say about business conditions in Salt Lake. Trade conditions in jobbing lines are unchanged and the situation is regarded as healthy, with the outlook favorable. A steady business is had in groceries, hardware, drugs shoes and staples of all kinds, and pleasant weather aids a number of retail lines. Collections, however, continue backward. Money is in satisfactory supply and in fairly active demand at firm rates. Local commercial securities are firm and fairly active.

Little Bernhard Iverson Meets With a Distressing Accident.

Bernhard, the 14-year-old son of L. oMth Iverson, receiving teller at Zion's Savings bank, met with an accident last night which may deprive him of his sight. Dr. Douglass was quickly summoned to attend him and later Dr. Lyons was called in, but neither was in a position to state to what extent the eyesight might be impaired, although it is feared that the accident may render the little fellow totally blind. Last night he rested as well as could be expected but it will be several days yet before his true condition will be ascertained.

MEXICO'S BIG SILVER PROBLEM

Chas. A. Conant Tells of Plans to Solve It.

TO BE GOLD EXCHANGE FUND

Will be Established in Leading Financial Centers—With Prudent Management Will Probably Succeed.

New York, April 1.—Charles A. Conant, treasurer of the Morton Trust company, who, with Edward Brush of the American Smelting & Refining Co. and Prof. J. W. Jenks of Cornell university, was invited by the Mexican government to visit its capital and confer with the minister of finance in regard to the provision made by Congress for the co-operation of the United States with Mexico and China in regard to giving stability and uniformity to the currency systems of the silver using countries, has returned. In response to the question whether Mexico would soon adopt a new monetary system, Mr. Conant said:

"I think that the Mexican government will establish a fixed exchange standard for Mexico, which will continue the large use of silver coins, but will provide for keeping them at par with gold by government control of the quantity and by a gold exchange fund in the leading financial centers. The minister of finance and other leading Mexican officials are keenly alive to the disadvantage which the country has suffered from a continuously declining rate of exchange, which has compelled her to give a constantly increasing proportion of her products in exchange for the products of gold countries. The subject is very well understood by the financial leaders."

"Do you believe that Mexico will succeed in carrying out this project?" was asked.

"I think there will be no difficulty whatever with prudent management. There is no doubt that if an exchange standard is established, it will be safeguarded by provisions similar to those in our own statutes for maintaining the parity of our paper and silver money. Mexico already conducts her fiscal affairs through the national bank, and does not disturb the money market by locking up good funds in the government treasury. Her credit is good and is likely to be greatly improved with the definite adoption of an exchange standard."
