BREVITIES.

Maine is taking measures to restore sea fish to her inland waters.

A "fast man about town," in Buffalo, aged thirteen, has been arrested for getting drunk and whipping his wife.

The value of the property surrounding Central Park, New York, has increased $75,675,750 within the last twelve years.

The Germans begin to find that the Roman type is much better for the eyes, and much clearer, and so are using it for their books.

A man in Illinois recently tried to hang himself out of spite, but his wife cut him down and revived him by the vigorous application of a whip.

In Bridgeport, Connecticut, two boys, aged respectively eight and fourteen years, cook, wash, and iron, take care of their mother and brother, who are invalids, and do their work well.

A University in Kansas has for Professor of Greek and Latin a pretty young girl named Miss Baldwin. She is only 21 years old.—Ex.

The bed of Copper Creek, fifty miles west of Sanders, is literally lined with petrified eels, from eighteen inches to two and a half feet in length.—Ex.

Mrs. Lucy Stone don't find excitement enough in Connecticut on the female suffrage question to draw together audiences sufficiently large to pay the hall rent.

Rev. Father Manogue, of Virginia City, says the Sacramento Bee has been recommended by the Council of American Roman Catholic Bishops for the Bishopric of Utah and Colorado.—Ex.

The Cheyenne Argus says that the Union Pacific Railroad has a pile of coal containing thousands of tons, in that city, ready for the use of their locomotive engines.

A free railroad law has been passed in the lower house of the Pennsylvania Legislature, empowering any number of citizens not less than nine, under certain regulations, to construct and operate a railroad for public use.

The Mayor of Jackson, Miss., announces, officially, that cholera of a very fatal type is now prevailing in certain parts of that city. Three deaths have already occurred, and the attending physician reports others under treatment, in a collapsed state.

It is a popular delusion to believe that powder on a lady's face has the same effect as in the pan of a musket—assist her to go off.

Commodore Nutt went skating at Leavenworth the other day, and, says the Conservative, pedipulated his little drumsticks with astonishing celerity.

The manager of a school near Philadelphia has out down the fruit trees and destroyed the grape vines which adorn the premises over which he has charge, in order, as he says, to remove from the pupils the temptation to steal.

The Nebraska City Press is of the belief that the bare ground and cold weather have damaged the eggs of the grasshoppers to such an extent that the fears of the farmers and nurserymen that the destroyers will trouble us again next season are groundless.

Among the effects of a deceased Spaniard in New Orleans, was a manuscript recording his purchases of Havana lottery tickets, made through a series of years. Curiosity led to a summing up of the number of good dollars spent in tempting fortune to make a golden remittance. One hundred thousand dollars was the astonishing total. He had spent it all in lottery tickets, yet had not drawn a prize.

COAL BEDS.—T. V. Hayden, United States geologist for Nebraska, states that there are, in the basin between the South Boulder and Clear creek, at the base of the Rocky mountains, in Colorado, from eight to eleven beds of coal, from five to thirteen feet in thickness, making an aggregate thickness of at least thirty feet of solid coal.
