

WHEN WHO WOULD TO CONGRESS GO

Candidacy of Representative Fishburn Assuming Unexpected Proportions.

WHERE PARLEY P. COMES IN.

At Present Miss Democracy Will Encourage But One Suitor and His Name is O. W. Powers.

With the question of perfecting county and state organizations temporarily out of the public eye, the principal bubble on the surface of the boiling political pool today are those rising over the congressional nomination.

Big and bluff Parley P. is as Jehonathan as ever in his goings and his comings, and the support he thinks he has developed in his party has been somewhat of a surprise to those who did not look upon him seriously. On the Democratic side it is conceded that Orlando W. Powers will have little or no opposition for the nomination. Mathias Thomas, the only other possibility, gives it out positively that he will not run, is not a candidate, and ought not to be considered in the running.

Who first touted Mathias for the party is rather difficult to discover, but Parley P. has been quoted as declaring that he would get the Democratic nomination saying Thomas is a member of the dominant Church, where it would be advisable to have a nominee, ready-mixing candidate of the non-Mormon persuasion against the Mormonism of the dominant Church.

It is certain, however, that Miss Democracy seems to have cast her shiest glances at the slender man with the round shoulders, has taken one of the arguments away from Christensen, and will have to go to it from now minus a peg in his cloak room of logic. That Miss Democracy is speaking the sense of Orlando under her breath, and wearing her bonnet for no one else but a certain one.

And this brings another element into the race. The candidacy of F. W. Fishburn of Brigham City, which was dropped into the pool last week so quietly it hardly made a ripple in the surface, and a live one and glowing up a good deal of foam. Fishburn has been regarded as a friend to that element in the Republican party desiring the renomination of Representative Howell, but a close friend today said that his present move is one of insurrection, and that Brigham City has been visited in vain with a view to having him withdraw from the race.

The American party's position in the mix-up depends largely on the attitude of the labor union, which is pointing in a direction it does not like. If they insist on their present plan to put up a ticket, it is conceded that this will catch very many of the prospective American party vote in the mining districts, and make still less of an insurrection than there is now to put a state ticket and have it knocked down, just for the joy of keeping up appearances of making a state fight.

HEAVY AFFLICTION.

Bythway Family Loses Three Children From Diphtheria—The Father Ill.

For the third time within two weeks death has entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bythway, of 259 Fern street, and today the head of the household lies stricken with the same dread malady, diphtheria, that carried away two daughters and one son. On August 23, Sarah, aged seven, died, and was given a private burial the same day. Two days later, Kate S., three years old was laid beside her elder sister. Last night John S., aged 11 years, succumbed from heart failure, following a severe seizure of diphtheria, and the body was interred at 1 p. m. today, the funeral being private from the family residence. Mr. and Mrs. Bythway have the sympathy of a host of friends in the terrible ordeal through which they are passing. Mrs. Bythway is a daughter of John South, an old resident of the Nineteenth ward.

Peet of Utah Tells Pointed Truths in Methodist Pulpit.

Special Correspondence.

Harrisville, Pennsylvania, Aug. 30.—When V. S. Peet taught school here more than 25 years ago, he took away with him one of the best girls in Bradford county, and in all his wanderings since that time I have kept track of him and when I learned that he had gone to Utah to live I was horrified for from what I had read in our religious papers and in the tracts, pamphlets and books on Utah and the Mormons, I thought Utah was the end of the world and the jumping off place, and when a little later he persuaded Dr. Charles W. Stewart of this place, one of the brightest young men in Pennsylvania, to settle in Salt Lake City (the modern Sodom) to practise medicine, I thought that Mr. Peet had fished the Mormons or gone crazy, for from what I read I was sure that any Christian doctor would be boycotted and actually starved to death in Utah and ever since Dr. Stewart settled in Salt Lake I have read and studied everything I could that related to Utah and the Mormons.

I took special delight in reading the Presbyterian Assembly Herald, it being a Christian paper, I was sure it told the truth about Utah and the Mormons. I read in that from the pen of Samuel E. Wishard, D. D., that "the overwhelming majority of the people of Utah are Mormons and that Mormonism was the darkest system of paganism on earth," that Mormons were aliens and were trying to overthrow our government. This Assembly Herald also said that the people of Salt Lake were so disloyal that they tried to insult the American flag by holding a celebration on the third instead of the fourth of July and were only prevented by bringing soldiers and a cannon from the fort and by calling out the troops.

The governor was threatened by letters written in blood that he would be assassinated, that Salt Lake was the blackest spot on American civilization and its canker of corruption was rapidly spreading. I also read Dr. Wm. M. Padon's statements in our daily papers in which he stated that the Mormons had control of everything in Utah but the courts and that sometimes a Mormon revelation interfered in them and set criminals free, and that Mormons teach their children to be avengers on all the Gentiles of this nation. I also remember that almost two years ago Mrs. Frederick Schott of Philadelphia spoke in Wyandoming (a neighboring town). She told a frightful story about Utah and said that she had already collected $3,000, and that she wanted her audience to swell this sum to send to the Hon. Frank J. Cannon, who was the only man who knew all about Mormonism and he would teach them to lead a more moral, honest and upright life. And from all I had read and heard of Utah and the Mormons I wanted to keep away from them and my thoughts were to travel east, but I heard V. S. Peet last night lecture on "Utah and the Mormons" to a large and appreciative audience and now I have turned square around and I am going westward.

Mr. Peet taught school here several years and he is known by all to be honest, truthful and very enthusiastic on any subject on which he is interested. He pictured Utah as one of the grandest states in the union and Bear River valley to be the garden spot of America. He took us through the mountains and valleys, gave us an invigorating and stimulating bath in the great Salt Lake; he said that Utah had the healthiest climate in the world and the grand, the glorious and sublime sunsets over the great Salt Lake and Bear River valley could not be put on canvas by all the great artists. He said that the great majority of Mormons were honest, frugal, moral, educated and enterprising, and that Utah was an ideal spot for a farm, a home, education and investment.

Utah, said Mr. Peet, had practically solved the labor problem which is the great question which confronts the people of this country. "The labor problem will never be solved as long as intelligent men and women have to depend upon the charity of the rich and the bounty of the land for their bread and butter and a landlord for a house to live in, but in Utah where 90 per cent of the people own the farms they live on and 99 per cent are free from debt, they care but little whether wages or rents go up or down. The people of Utah have plenty to do and plenty of leisure and plenty to eat, drink and wear."

When Mr. Peet came to the Ministerial association of Salt Lake City and the Presbyterian board of home missions and other religious societies of Philadelphia who as he said were distributing or selling 15 of the most scurrilous and misleading tracts to injure Utah that the depraved minds of the authors could write he handled these scurrilous and the preachers as President Roosevelt does the trusts, with a big stick. Mr. Peet exhibited these tracts, the one which represented Utah as a big black blot on the map of the United States in the shape of a hideous devil fish, which he said was adopted by the Ministerial association of Salt Lake City, and that they must have had in mind the great dragon spoken of by St. John the divine, the great red dragon, Mr. Peet said, meant blasphemy and the great black devil fish meant slander. He enumerated and commented upon each one of the tracts till he came to the one which said, among other things, that the Mormons boycotted and starved out Gentiles who went to Utah to live and that a Gentile doctor would starve to death if he had to depend upon Mormons for patients. Mr. Peet illustrated the falsity of that statement by stating that Dr. C. W. Stewart, who was born in Harrisville and lived here all his life till he went away to school, that he graduated from the University of Chicago and the Denver Medical college, and after practicing in Denver and in Nebraska he opened an office in Salt Lake City, and that he has a large practice and most of his patients are Mormons and he has prospered better in Salt Lake City than any young man who ever left this section of the country. He also spoke of Dr. Rich of Minneapolis, Minn., who settled in Brigham City, who soon had the largest practice in Boxelder county, and that 90 per cent of his patients were Mormons.

Mr. Peet said that most of these tracts were written by little cheap orthodox preachers of Salt Lake City, and when he read where Bishop Fowler of the Methodist church called them "the worst of the worst" he was exuberant in a speech before the church extension society at Kansas City, that it is his argument in regard to their smallness in intellectual size. Mr. Peet offered rewards to the amount of $13,000 to the members of the Ministerial association of Salt Lake City and was especially severe on the tracts of Wishard and Dr. Padon, whom he said knew they were telling gross and unqualified falsehoods in their statements against Utah.

Mr. Peet in closing gave a vivid description of the hardships in crossing the plains in early days by the Mormons, who, through great trials and tribulations had made the desert blossom like the rose.

At the close of his lecture Mr. Peet said it was his usual custom to invite anyone who wished to ask any questions, comment or make a 10 minutes speech on Utah either for or against.

There was a long, painful pause till someone suggested that Mrs. Rathbone, a Methodist preacher and exhorter from New York state, who was in the audience, make some remarks. Mrs. Rathbone, who is a bright, attractive woman and a fluent speaker, arose and said she was well pleased at the very able and clear description of Utah's wonderful climate, scenery, etc., but she did object to asking any questions, comment or make a 10 minutes speech on Utah either for or against.

She then gave us a good old-fashioned exhortation to give our hearts to Jesus and he saved. Mrs. Rathbone's talk seemed to please Mr. Peet, for he was ready for that kind of an attack. He said in reply if she would appoint a committee of three men in the audience, whose reputation was honest, and send them to Utah, and if they found any Mormon community one-tenth as bad as she described or Mormon community where vice and crime was countenanced in any way he would pay all the expenses of the committee and give them each $5 per day besides.

A bad, immoral community does not make intelligent and moral young men said Mr. Peet. Mormon students are more moral and stand higher in their classes in the eastern colleges than the students from any other church, creed or state in America. As to the women's rights question Mr. Peet said that female suffrage in Utah was before Utah was thought of, and that many non-Mormon states had adopted it. As to the Mountain Meadow massacre Mr. Peet said we have had many massacres in the United States; he spoke of Habi's Mills, the murder of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, the Wyoming massacre and the murdering of 36 Moravian missionaries in Ohio, and it was a very easy matter for religious bigots if they wanted to create a false impression to lay all those massacres to innocent people, and if people really wanted to know the facts about the Mountain Meadow massacre they should read Bancroft's History of Utah.

As to the lecture of the Josephite Mormon and the bad man who had put on canvas by all the great artists. He said that the great majority of Mormons were honest, frugal, moral, educated and enterprising, and that Utah was an ideal spot for a farm, a home, education and investment.

Utah, said Mr. Peet, had practically solved the labor problem which is the great question which confronts the people of this country. "The labor problem will never be solved as long as intelligent men and women have to depend upon the charity of the rich and the bounty of the land for their bread and butter and a landlord for a house to live in, but in Utah where 90 per cent of the people own the farms they live on and 99 per cent are free from debt, they care but little whether wages or rents go up or down. work) With an Effectual Method for Bringing about a Reformation and Destroying Methodism." The title page ran on as follows: "Methodism displayed and enthusiasm detected; intended as an antidote against and a preservation from the delusive principles and unscriptural doctrines of a modern set of seducing preachers." etc.

In 1750 a pamphlet appeared with the title "The Enthusiasm of Methodists and Baptists Compared." This pamphlet said that John Wesley was a secret agent of the Catholics, that he kept two priests in the house and received large remittances from Spain and France and at the right moment the pretender backed by Spain and France would land in England, be met by Wesley with 20,000 men, a new government established and Roman Catholicism restored.

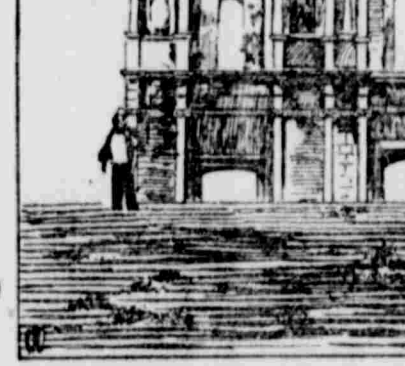

Year after year these stories were kept up by the enemies of the Methodists, etc.

Mr. Peet also read from the Methodist Review for July, 1906, page 693, that on Aug. 3, 1756 a bill was passed by the council of Provincetown, Mass., "Voted there shall not be a Methodist meetinghouse in this town, Solomon Cook, moderator."

Methodism was an outlaw in Provincetown for 16 years, a Methodist church was built there in 1811. After reading several other extracts, Mr. Peet said according to the lady's (Mrs. Rathbone's) statements that anti-religious tracts are true, John Wesley must have been a Roman Catholic and a grifter. Methodist preachers must have been seducers, and Methodists must have been criminals at Provincetown, Mass. Mr. Peet notified the audience that he was about to have a pamphlet published on polygamy, copied from the writings of the Methodist preacher who composed the hymns, "Hark the herald angels sing," and "Lo He cometh," and any one could have a copy mailed free by writing to him when it was published, which would be in about three weeks.

AN ANCIENT SANCTUARY.

St. Luke's church, near Smithfield, Va., is reputed to be the oldest Protestant church on the American continent.

It was built 274 years ago and is still in use as a place of worship. Few changes have been made in the original structure, which is of such a substantial character that it is still in a good state of repair.

Caterpillars have been found to be greatly agitated by musical vibrations, descending from a tree in a shower at the sound of a cornet. This should suggest an effective means of fighting the gypsy moth and other caterpillar plagues.
