

LEE BUNCH TELLS OF HIS ARREST

Idaho Paper Interviews Defendant in Action Brought by Samuel Newhouse.

COMMONER MINE THE CAUSE.

Bunch Declares Newhouse Owe Him Over $11,000 on Purchase Price Which He Intends to Sue For.

The details of the controversy between Samuel Newhouse and Lee Bunch of Garden valley, Idaho, over a mining deal, which resulted several days ago in the arrest of Mr. Bunch in this city on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, have so far not been forthcoming.

This was because Mr. Bunch left immediately for Idaho after giving bonds, and Mr. Newhouse would not discuss the case for the reason, as stated, that he did not wish to prejudice the case of Mr. Bunch before it came to trial.

Now, however, the Boise Capital News comes forward with an interview with Lee Bunch at Boise, in which his side of the story is brought out. It explains that the Commoner mine, is the source of the difficulty, and that the trouble lies in the fact that the mine was mined before Mr. Newhouse bought the control of the property, turned out on close inspection to be merely sacks of country rock. In this interview, Mr. Bunch explains that there was good ore in the sacks when he turned over the mine, and it is suggested that Mr. Newhouse was deceived by his own employees at the mine, whom the article declares, have been working the ore with a hand mortar, it has been found to be so rich.

Mr. Bunch holds out in the interview, the opinion that the mine is valuable. From local sources it is learned that Mr. Newhouse has lost faith in it and has said to friends that he did not believe it was as represented to him. In the interview, Mr. Bunch points up to the arrest of Mr. Bunch parties who were present are quoted as saying that Mr. Bunch asked Mr. Newhouse to help him find where the valuable ore was going to, and this angered the millionaire mining promoter, as the manager of the mine was an old valet of his family, in whom he had the greatest confidence, and who he didn't like to have accused of dishonesty. It was following this charge and the resentment of it by Mr. Newhouse, that a blow was struck, and the arrest of Mr. Bunch occurred. At that time he was painted in some local papers as a commoner stranger who came to the Wilson and put up a "front." A "News" representative who met him while here recalls him as a tall, slender man of perhaps 35 years, who appeared more like a typical man of the mountains than one who had lived much in cities. He wore a watch chain of gold nuggets fastened together at the ends, and all of the same size and shape. The watch chain extended from each direction to the two vest pockets, and a large nugget weighed down the end to which the watch was not attached. In speaking of this chain, Mr. Bunch said that a friend had given it to him, and that the gold was from Klondike and not from his Idaho mines. He had just refused an offer of the value of the gold from a man who wanted to turn the chain into two bracelets for a Christmas gift to a lady friend.

HAD PRECIOUS STONES.

At that time Mr. Bunch had also a number of crude emeralds, rubies and sapphires which he said were washed down in his sluice boxes from a placer mine in volcanic rock. With them was a number that had been cut and finished, and they appeared to be of excellent quality. Sam Park of the Boyd Park Jewelry company, to whom they were shown, was prompt to state that they were excellent examples of the better qualities of stones on the market.

There are several Salt Lake men who have enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. Bunch and his brother at their mountain home in Idaho, and who have joined him on deer and sheep hunts in the mountains. It is declared by Dr. Claude W. Gates, who was with him on several hunts, that he had killed 75 bears before he was 18 years old, and Dr. Gates tells the story of his showing the muzzle of his rifle down a bear's throat after bruin had charged him, and he had had no time to reload. The outcome was that Bunch shot the bear dead, over a ledge of rock, and another cartridge was inserted while the bear was scrambling up again.

GREAT BEAR HUNTER.

Another story from the same source deals with a deer hunt, where the hunters discovered a bear following the blood scent of the deer which one of them was carrying towards camp. Their guns had gone forward with another member of the party, and as they emerged from a stream, they caught sight of bruin plunging in on the opposite bank to follow them across. Bunch dropped down stream to the point he thought the bear would land, struck him square in the head with a large rock as he gained the bank, and then followed this up by plunging his hunting knife between the bear's shoulders while it was clawing the bank. He then forced bruin's head under water and held him there until he drowned. In the country in which he lives, Mr. Bunch is said to have the reputation of being a fearless hunter, and one of the best rifle shots in the mountains. At his home he has a couple of bear cubs which he captured in their lair after shooting the mother at close range.

MORE GOLD NUGGETS.

The article in the Boise Capital News giving the details of the present mining controversy between Mr. Bunch and Samuel Newhouse of this city is as follows:

Lee Bunch of Garden Valley is in the city today, registered at the Idahoan. He has just returned from several days' prospecting in the group of mines in the Basin, where he accompanied George E. Snow of Chicago and Arthur E. Snow of Salt Lake, mining experts who were examining the property.

Mr. Bunch was found in his room at the hotel by a Capital News reporter washing the dirt from a sack full of specimens taken from a 6-inch streak in the Hummingbird claim. The group of mines is located on the east side of the Basin, where he accompanied George E. Snow of Chicago and Arthur E. Snow of Salt Lake, mining experts who were examining the property.

Mr. Bunch and his associates have a bond on the Hummingbird claim, taken from the Undermeyer at $150,000, and preparations are being made to take over the property and operate it on an extensive scale. There are three claims. The Goldbug, Silverbug and Hummingbird. The two first named are on the same ledge and cross the mountain from gulch to gulch. Adit tunnels are being driven on each, and now extend to 300 feet into the hill. The ledge is six feet wide, contains no sulphur or other refractory indications, and is therefore entirely free milling. All of the dirt taken out in driving the tunnels is being saved. The Hummingbird is being saved. It is an average value of $12 a ton.

The Hummingbird is a parallel ledge, the vein being much smaller, but carrying a small streak of bonanza ore. The ledge is six feet wide, contains no sulphur or other refractory indications, and is therefore entirely free milling. All of the dirt taken out in driving the tunnels is being saved. The Hummingbird is being saved. It is an average value of $12 a ton.

Mr. Bunch had no prediction to make as to what opinion the experts would give on the property, but the showing he exhibited in the view of free gold specimens, and the hopeful view he took of the future, indicated that he had lots of good feeling coming to him. Several days ago, it will be remembered, some of the newspapers published a statement that Sam Newhouse of Salt Lake had caused the arrest of Bunch on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. When asked by the Capital News reporter if he had any objection to the article, he said that under the advice of his attorneys he thought it best not to talk of the affair. "I am too well known throughout southern Idaho to need to say anything to 'square' myself with my friends, and for the present, at least, I am indifferent to the opinions of others," said he. "The trouble arose over the Commoner mine, and myself on the Commoner property deal. There has been a balance due me from Newhouse of $11,000 since October, and I went to Salt Lake to endeavor to collect the money. Newhouse anticipated all other payments in December two months before that time, but when I called at his office he refused to lead to some interesting and exciting proceedings."

"While at the Wilson hotel the night following my interview with Newhouse, a deputy sheriff called at my room with a warrant for my arrest for obtaining money on false pretenses. A friend happened to be in the room at the time and we were joined by another in a few minutes, taking an automobile ride to the judge's office, where a bond was given, so that I was in no way embarrassed. There is a long story connected with the transaction, all of which will be told at the proper time and place."

HISTORY OF MINE.

The trouble between Lee Bunch and the Salt Lake mining millionaire, as related by parties who have kept in touch with the matter, is the result of a deal on the Commoner mine in Owyhee county. The property originally belonged to John F. Nugent, H. K. McLeod and John Hogan, who worked the mine in a small way for two or three years, producing some extremely rich ore.

A little more than a year ago Lee Bunch formed a pool and took a bond on the Commoner and Southern Nettle, making a substantial payment. They organized a company, capitalized at $200,000, of which 200 shares were treasury stock. Several miners were put to work in the shaft, the ore carefully saved and sacked, and an excellent showing made.

A report on the property was submitted to Newhouse, who sent his expert to make an examination. The latter remained at the mine over a month, superintending the work and assisting in sorting the ore comprising the first class, "which was guarded. Miners at work during the time say that the stuff saved would run from $1 to $2.50 a pound, and assays running up to the thousands were common. The result of the expert's examination was that Newhouse went into the proposition on the ground floor. He took 400,000 shares of stock, paying the Bunch brothers half the money they had put in, and a similar amount of stock was issued to the incorporators. Newhouse's stock cost him 21-3 cents a share. He wanted to control the mine, and entered into an agreement to purchase a large block of the Bunch stock, which was placed in escrow in a Salt Lake bank.

There was to be paid on the option something over $14,000, which did not come due until December. Newhouse bought 40,000 shares of the Bunch stock, paying 25 cents a share, and entered into control of the mine. His foreman took possession at a time when there were 40 sacks of bonanza ore on hand, and it is said that 200 sacks were saved out of subsequent operations. While operating the property it is said that Newhouse's man kept a big hand mortar at work on the best rock that came out, beating the rest of this miniature stamp milling has never been accounted for.

GAME OF FLIM-FLAM.

The gossip about the camp is that a game of flim-flam was worked by some one who had access to the ore house, and that the high grade ore was abstracted and waste rock substituted in its place. At least a mill test on the ore resulted in a disappointing bar of bullion, which gave Newhouse the impression that he had been bunched. The friends of Bunch say that every miner who was employed at the mine will testify to the value of the ore produced, and which was on the ground when the sale was made. They charge that if Newhouse has been given the worst of it, he should look close to home for the persons who took advantage of his trusting nature.

There is a payment of $11,000 due to Bunch since October, which he expects to secure as the result of a lawsuit. The litigation will no doubt bring to light many tricks in the mining game known best to the elect, some of which have not even been hinted at in this story.

SALT LAKE PRAISED.

Goldfield Expression of Gratitude Regarding Local Conduct.

The town of Goldfield, in Nevada, presents its compliments to the town of Salt Lake in Utah, in an appreciative editorial from the pen of the editor of the Goldfield Daily Sun.

The writer calls attention to the general "knocking" going the rounds against Nevada, and to the conspicuous absence of any of the knocks in Salt Lake. For this the gratitude of the community is expressed, in the following terms:

"Despite the fact that there are a few 'knockers' at work in the east and middle west against Nevada, the boom is growing and spreading daily. Never in the history of the state has there been a time when so many miners and prospectors were flocking to the state as today. The press of the country is eager for news from the camps, and columns are devoted to stories founded on quick fortunes that have been made in mining fields."

The eastern detractors declare that much misrepresentation is made by Nevada promoters, as to the wealth of the mines, and one of the methods taken to ascertain the truth in this respect, is to call on the state bullion tax collector for information regarding the output of the state. When this is done, the doubter is greeted with an astounding array of figures, and it is practically certain that he turns booster at once and hastens to join the march to the west."

The reason for the premeditated campaign that is being waged against Nevada in certain quarters, is variously ascribed. It is stated that the real estate men of the east do it to keep out the money which they do not wish to see money withdrawn from the land speculations and sunk into mining ventures. Yet it is not all real estate men who take this narrow minded view. The Salt Lake City real estate community from a real estate firm in Salt Lake City in which the members of the firm declare that it is their intention to boost for Nevada for all they are worth. They state that they are not afraid of the effect of a Nevada boom, and that they believe that a portion of the profits from successful enterprises in this state will turn their way after all."

The board of trade of Salt Lake has determined to prepare an exhibit of Nevada ores to be gathered in that city, on the occasion of the exposition to be held with the civic organizations of the famous mining camps. There are many Salt Lake men in Nevada and it is no doubt due to the glowing reports they have sent back, that this action is taken.

One thing is certain, Salt Lake City will not lose by booming Nevada. The future of this state is now assured. All the knackers of the east do it to keep out the money which they do not wish to see money withdrawn from the land speculations and sunk into mining ventures. Yet it is not all real estate men who take this narrow minded view. The Salt Lake City real estate community from a real estate firm in Salt Lake City in which the members of the firm declare that it is their intention to boost for Nevada for all they are worth. They state that they are not afraid of the effect of a Nevada boom, and that they believe that a portion of the profits from successful enterprises in this state will turn their way after all."

The life of the franchise granted him by the county is 50 years. It provides for the payment to the county of $10 per year on each passenger coach used on the line and $5 per year for each freight car.

The commissioners approved the bills of the special deputy sheriffs appointed upon request of the county clerk to guard the voting machines on election night. The bills amounted in all to about $15.

DECREE IS SIGNED.

By Judge Morse Pursuant to Decision By Supreme Court.

Pursuant to a decision by the supreme court, Judge Morse has signed a decree of divorce in favor of Emma K. Aldrich and against W. F. Aldrich. The service of the summons in the case was made by publication, and Judge Morse, following a decision by the United States supreme court in a similar case recently decided, refused to grant the decree on the ground that the court did not have jurisdiction over the defendant, he being a non-resident. A test was made the other day by the supreme court of this state made a ruling in the matter which allows divorces in cases where the service is by publication, provided the parties to the action have established a domicile in the state. It directed Judge Morse to issue a decree, which has now been done.

CHANGES MADE IN THE CABINET

There is Only One McKinley Member Now in Original Place.

RAPID RISE OF CORTELYOU.

California Congressmen Visit Panama — Hair Raising Jokes on a Barber Member-Elect.

CORTELYOU'S PROGRESS.

No member of the present cabinet has risen as rapidly as George Bruce Cortelyou, now postmaster general, whose appointment as secretary of the treasury to succeed Leslie M. Shaw was announced some weeks ago. Indeed, in the history of modern times have been a more brilliant career than Mr. Cortelyou's. Starting as a government clerk at a very small salary, he was President McKinley's private secretary when the tragedy at Buffalo made Theodore Roosevelt president. Mr. Roosevelt kept him in that position until Congress created the department of commerce and labor, of which Mr. Cortelyou was made the head. Resigning this post to take charge of the Republican national committee in the last presidential campaign, he was later re-appointed to the cabinet, being given the postoffice portfolio, which he now holds. He is only 44 years old.

STRAUS ONLY ONE FROM OUTSIDE.

Oscar S. Straus of New York, the only Hebrew in the cabinet, is also the only one of the new members who have not heretofore been connected with President Roosevelt's official family in some way. Victor S. Metcalf, whom Straus succeeded and who in turn succeeded Charles J. Bonaparte, who becomes an attorney general, vice William H. Moody, made an associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, was formerly a member of the house of representatives from California. Mr. Garfield, the new secretary of the interior, has been chief of the bureau of corporations, department of commerce and labor, for some time.

CALIFORNIA TO PANAMA.

The California delegation in Congress, which has been very much in the public eye recently as a result of the trouble in San Francisco growing out of the segregation of Japanese pupils from white children in the public schools, is now engaged in another enterprise which is certain to attract considerable attention. Yesterday a party containing most of the national legislators from the Golden Gate state left Washington for Panama via Tampa. They will spend five days on the isthmus for the purpose of personally investigating the labor conditions existing there. The Pacific coast generally is opposed to the use of Chinese coolies as laborers on the canal, and the California congressmen desire to see for themselves what the results of the employment of such labor may be.

A HIT AT BIGELOW.

The largest picture in the Panama canal message which President Roosevelt sent to Congress earlier in the week showed the Colon reservoir, a mile in the rear of Mount Hope, which supplies Colon and Cristobal with water. A good story about this reservoir began to be told in Washington at the time the president returned from his trip to the isthmus. In one of the magazine articles published by Poul-sey Bigelow after his hurried visit to the canal the statement was made that the Colon reservoir was dry and that it would always remain dry owing to the mistakes of the engineers in charge. At present the reservoir contains 500,000 gallons of water, and some waggyish American engineers have launched a boat on it, which they call the Poulney Bigelow. President Roosevelt thinks this is a very effective "come back" at the magazine writer.

CONGRESSIONAL PERSIFLAGE.

Chairman Sherman and Secretary Lousenslager of the Republican congressional committee were talking over the results of the election of last month. "Who is this fellow McDermott-James T. McDermott who defeated Kid Wharton out in Chicago?" asked the chairman of the committee. "He is a barber," was the reply. "Did he win by a large majority?" "No, a very small one." "Ah," said Mr. Sherman reflectively. "A close shave, eh?" After expressing his opinion of this sort of humor Mr. Lousenslager said, "I suppose you know they are not going to use his name when calling the roll next session?" "No," returned Mr. Sherman. "Why not? What will they do?" "Oh, the clerk will simply shout 'Next!'" replied Mr. Lousenslager, with a look which indicated that he thought honors were even.

FREED THE PRISONER.

Attorney Gave Woman Carbolic Acid And Drank Some Himself.

Elmira, N. Y., Dec. 26.—Although a guard was standing close behind him tonight, Frank Delaney, a railroad man, succeeded in a bold attempt to end his life and the life of a woman who occupied a cell in the woman's dormitory of the Elmira county jail. The woman was Beulah Wills, awaiting sentence on Jan. 3 for abducting a young girl and harboring her for immoral purposes.

Delaney possessed a power of attorney for the woman, and when he called at the jail and stated that he wished to consult her regarding the signing of important papers there was no objection on the part of the warden, who sent a guard along with him. The guard stood close by while the man and woman were conferring together, when suddenly Delaney drew from his pocket a bottle of carbolic acid and passed it through the bars. The woman seized it and swallowed the contents. Instantly Delaney pressed a second bottle to his own lips. The guard sprang upon him, but the man fought him fiercely for a moment and then collapsed. He died before a physician could be called.
