all my heart for the good will and good cheer with which you have received me, I bid you good evening. Blaine was presented formally to all who were in the rooms. The presen-tations were made by Lieut. For. Ames and Col. Whipple of Gov. Rob-inson's staff, assisted by the Hon. Chas. J. Brooks. Among Blaine's vis-itors were the Hon. A. A. Raney, Col-lector of Worthington; Postmaster Tobey, U. S. District Attorney Sanger, Gen. M. P. Banks, Maj Gen. Geo. S. Mirrilla, Chas. J. Noyes and Geo. B. Loring. It became evident the corri-dors were filled with people who had neither seen nor heard Blaine, who thereupon went to the head of the steps by which the office is approached where he paused in the midst of a dense crowd, and said: "If it were possible to make way through you. I would be very glad to come down and shake hands with each one, but that looks like an impenetra-ble phalanx and I will speak a word up with which I have been received, and I desire to express to you my acknow-ledgements of it." [Cheers.] At the conclusion of his remarks he retired to his private room. Later he took a light repast, and soon after re-tired for the night. General Batler Essoried by a Brass W. B. WOLFE, W. J.
