HOW ADULTERY IS PUNISHED IN CHINA.—The Hong Kong Daily Press, of May 6th, has the following: "Europeans are generally under the impression that the Celestial social law and code of the moral law is of the lowest order, and chastity with their woman is a by-word. This, no doubt, is in a measure owing to so few Westerns being acquainted with the higher class of the Chinese, and looking upon polygamy as an established rule rather than an exception. But in no country in the world is adultery so severely dealt with, or retribution so severely exercised for infringing on this our Seventh Commandment. A horrible instance of this occurred a few days ago near Shanghae. A married lady forming a guilty alliance with the friend of her brother, made up her mind to put an end to her husband's life by some means or other, and forthwith divulged her project to her paramour, who at once gallantly offered to undertake the work for her. He eventually effected his design by poison, and the man was duly placed in his coffin and the usual ceremonies performed over his body. But after a time suspicion arose as to the cause of his death, and the woman, after frightful torture admitted having committed the crime or crimes alleged, but to the last denied that her lover had anything to do with the murder. She was then nailed, hands and feet, on the top of her husband's coffin, his body then being in a state of decomposition, and there lingered for nearly four days until death put an end to her sufferings. Since then the man, the principal malefactor, having confessed to everything, has been decapitated, and his head now hangs in a cage not far from where the awful tragedy took place."

The China Overland Mail has the following tough story: "The taste for opium, it seems, has been communicated to lower animals in China, which are said by M. Garnier, one of the French Cambodian expedition, to run wild after poppy fields. Horses which have been fed upon poppies pine and die if deprived of their favorite food. Pigs are rapidly fattened upon poppy flowers, but they must soon be slaughtered. Since the introduction of the poppy in Yunan, bees have died out of the country. M. Farnier mentions that at a town in Yunan, where there was an opium manufactory, rats used to come in great numbers to inhale the fumes from the coppers, and that after the town had been sacked by the Pau hays, and the manufactory deserted, an immense number of rats came to die at the place where they had been accustomed to inhale the opium fumes."
