SUMMARY.

Gleanings from May Mail.

Some English Missionaries arrived at Terra del Fuego, Dec. 11, 1850, for the purpose of civilizing the natives, where they were left in two small boats, by the Ocean Queen, bound for California. The seven persons comprising the party were driven from place to place by the hostile natives, encountering storms and gales; lost one of their boats, together with clothes, books and money; and depending on supplies being sent, which they did not receive, died of starvation. [If they were bearing the gospel standard, they should have depended on the people where they were for supplies, from day to day, and meal to meal; and if the natives would not receive them, they should have departed to some place where the people would receive their testimony and minister to their necessities. If they had not had extra clothing and money, how could they have lost them?—Jesus sends his servants forth without purse or scrip.]

Steam Engines and Murder.

An important bill for the protection of Life on board steam vessels, is said to have been introduced into Congress. The bill we have not seen. General items for inspection of boats, &c., are reported, but if the blowing up of steamers, is not made a capital offence, punishable with death, to all the officers concerned in this steamboat bursting, which is getting so common, we would not give a fig for all their bills.—The blowing up of steamers, is caused by murderous carelessness, or a will to murder, for no spirit short of one or the other, ever would make such a wanton sacrifice of life, as has been made in the U. S. during the past few years. There is no more need of bursting up steamboats than there is of bursting tea kettles and coffee pots. It is time to cease employing mechanics who do not know how to make a steam engine right. It is time to cease employing inspectors who know nothing about their business, only to know that they have some kind friend who is willing to recommend them to a 1ft in the world at the sacrifice of blood. It is time for captains and engineers to know that if they will run and race for sport, and burst their boilers for the sake of exalting a few scores of their fellow beings in the air, that if they do not go before, follow immediately after, or accompany those whom they thus wantonly and inhumanly murder, they shall follow, by special statute, on the next boat's rope they come to, and see that their passengers are taken care of according to contract; and when such a law shall begin to take effect, there will be less steam deviltry practised in the U. S. than there now is; and until something of the kind is done, to prevent so many murders on rail ways and steam boats, through the great thoroughfares of the nation, where the people have a right to expect safety, legislators cannot cleanse their garments from the smoking blood that is almost daily arising fresh to heaven for vengeance.

☞ A calf 11 months old, grass fed, was butchered last week, by Mr. Geo. Sirigham, of this city, which weighed 104 lbs to the quarter. The fat on each kidney weighed 14 1-2 lbs, and the whole of the tallow in the rough, 65 lbs.

The calf belonged to elder Appleton Harmon, who is now on a mission to England.

"We have a very backward spring; there is no grass yet. The river has been higher this season, than for the last fifteen years. The bottoms have all been covered over, but the water is now going down; there have been a great many cattle drowned.

Religious Test.

Among the large number of petitions presented in the Senate, we observe that one was from Georgia, praying that the Territory of Utah may not be admitted as a State into the Union, upon the ground that the Mormon religion is anti-republican, especially its recognition of spiritual wifery, or polygamy, which is abominable.—[Herald.

Beware of the Bewitchers.

We have received a communication, which we decline to publish, in relation to the seductive dancing girls of New York. It appears that there are several schools in this city, both day and evening, where a large number of the most beautiful girls are employed, as partners in the waltz for young men, and even old men, who indulge in that healthful, delightful, and most exciting amusement. These girls are selected for their beauty of form, sprightliness of manners, and looseness of morals. They receive small salaries from the keepers of the establishments, and sponge little fortunes from their magnetized partners. They dress in exquisite taste, are very fond of champagne and bon bons, and often insist that a drive upon the Bloomingdale is necessary to keep up the bloom upon their cheeks. Of course, the temporary "love" has to comply with all these little whims of extravagance, and not unfrequently is drawn in for a fifty dollar dress at Stewart's. Our correspondent even goes so far as to talk of doctor's bills, nurse's bills, illegitimate baby linen, &c., included among the items of expense, in the case of one old married reprobate, who became fatally bamboozled by one of the duchess of these dancing syrens.

But the moral of the tale he unfolds, is simply to call the attention of certain bank officers to the accounts of their clerks, who are in the habit of patronizing these dancing establishments. He very pertinently asks—"How can a young man, with a salary of $600 to $800 a year, spend $500 on dress, $1,000 on a dancing girl, $1,000 on amusements, and $1,000 on traveling expences, without coming to a defalcation sooner or later?" It is a problem in practical arithmetic, which many of our young men would do well to study.—[Eve. Mirro; copied from N. Y. Herald.

If it is necessary that all young men should study such a "problem," and foot such bills, as a "religious test," to prove themselves worthy of church fellowship for all christendom, as well as N. York, why does the Mirror decline to publish its communication?" Shine on, oh "Mirror," and reflect the gilded rays of the orient "tests" of Christian fellowship, that the Herald may proclaim to earth's remotest bounds, the purity of thy country's morals; if, perchance, some other good State may add her petition to Georgia, that heavenly wedlock may be denied admission within the banns of our nation. 'Religious Tests' Mene, mene, tekel upharsin, is inscribed on Utah's banners; for we have no such dancers in our midst, consequently no young men who need solve such problems, and no old men who need to shun them to save expense of "illegitimate baby linen." We have no brothels, no house of infamy, no gaming establishments, no drunkards' saloons; consequently, men of fashionable christianity, who can endure "religious tests," and noble judges, find a dwelling in our midst exceedingly "inconvenient;" we are weighed in the balance and found wanting in all these polite accomplishments, necessary as "religious tests," and of course must be content to be disfellowshipped by christian Georgia, and pious, virtuous, christendom, because we cannot pass their "religious tests." We had rather be heathen, and behave ourselves, than submit to such "religious tests," for the sake of Christianity.

☞ The King of Siam has avowed not only full toleration to all religions, but has permitted free access by the missionary to every part of the empire, whose labors are unrestricted. On this subject, the official proclamation says:

"The English and Americans who reside in the kingdom of Siam, are allowed to enjoy greater privileges than formerly. They are allowed to travel to and fro in the kingdom, wherever they please.—They are permitted to follow the dictates of their own consciences in religious observances; to erect chapels and cemeteries, according to their wishes; and in all respects they are allowed unreserved freedom, so long as they do not infringe upon the customs and laws of the country."

News from Europe in Five Days.—The authorities of Newfoundland have granted to Mr. H. B. Tibbatts and associates of New York, the exclusive right to construct and use the magnetic telegraph across that island, for the period of 30 years. The grant is designed to facilitate Mr. Tibbatts in his scheme for the establishment of steam and telegraphic communication between New York and Liverpool or London in five days. The telegraph is to extend from New York to St. Johns, from whence a line of steamers is to commence, extending to London. This latter line will, it is said, be completed during the current year. The distance from St. Johns to Galway, is 1,647 miles, or about five days' sail.

☞ Some twenty vessels of the whaling fleet have been lost or wrecked in the north Pacific. The whaling fleet have generally been very unfortunate the last season—procuring but little oil, and losing many ships and lives.

Affairs in Chili.—By the Golden Gate, arrived at Panama, we have later accounts from Valparaiso, and a confirmation of the news heretofore received of a revolution in Chili. The Panama Echo says every effort was being made by the Government for the suppression of the revolt, and there is a probability of its success, but the struggle must involve serious bloodshed, and a sad disturbance, if even but temporary, of the commercial interests of the country. It is deeply to be regretted.

☞ From the Natchez Courier we learn that in a speech at that place, Senator Foote remarked:

"The idea of demanding amendments to the Constitution, and in case of failing to obtain them, resorting to secession, was first broached by Mr. Calhoun, after our October convention in 1849; that Mr. Calhoun told him that he had no expectation of obtaining those amendments; but Mr. C. thought that if they should be refused, the South would unite in the formation of a Southern confederacy; and that Mr. Calhoun had prepared a constitution for this new Republic."

☞ The islands in the Pacific are rapidly becoming civilized and republican. Our recent advices from the Society Islands inform us that the power of Queen Pomare has been overthrown at Raietea, one of that group, and a president elected by the people, to hold office for two years. It was thought that the revolution would spread.—[Herald.

☞ Entire number of boats lost on the Western waters during the last year 34, of which 1 was destroyed by tempest, 7 by collisions, 11 by fire, and 15 by snags. The total loss of life consequent upon these disasters, and of accidents to boats that were not destroyed, amounted in the year to four hundred and fifty-one persons.

Wear and Tear of Gutta Percha.—The late expeditions in search of Sir John Franklin, have proved the value of gutta percha in a remarkable manner. Each of them took out sledge boats of this substance for use among the masses of ice. Fitted with a skate, the boat served as a sledge; floated, it would carry five or six persons, with ample provisions; at other times it might be folded up, or converted into a wrapper or bed tent, safe against the cold, that three or four men might sleep under. Its weight was only eighteen pounds. Moreover, after undergoing all the rough work of the voyage, it returned to England not in the least damaged, and in almost as good a condition as when she left.—[British Banner.

Water Works in Ceylon.

We have held the opinion that the Croton Works were the most gigantic in the world, and we have heard the assumption made that no works of such magnitude even existed in the days of old. So far as the latter assertion is concerned, it is not correct. Mr. Tenant, in his recent travels on the island of Ceylon, describes some ancient water tanks, beside which our Croton Works are as some small creek compared to the Hudson River.

One tank, named Pathariecolorn, is seven miles long; three hundred feet broad, and sixty feet high. The tank was faced throughout its entire length with layers of square stones. The huge tank is but one of a great many scattered over the country, and had been erected for irrigation. It is partly in ruins, as the water flows freely out of a large breach two hundred feet wide, which appears to have been made centuries ago. The race which constructed these tanks has passed away, and the country where at one time there existed a highly civilized and skilful engineering people, is now the abode of Veddahs, a race whose homes are in tents, and who wander about from place to place. An engineer has calculated that it would cost more than $4,000,000 to construct the front embankment to this huge water reservoir. What must have been the cause which exterminated the people who erected these works, (and they must have been numerous,) and left them to fall in ruins, tenanted only by the buffalo and the nuclad savage? —[Scientific American.

American Silver Coins.—The bill now before Congress contemplates reducing the half dollar from 208 to 192 grains in weight, and smaller coins in proportion, preserving the present purity, or standard.

The practical effect of this bill, if it becomes a law, will be to make our present coin 7 cent, premium, and a five-franc piece will be worth about one dollar.

HOME MANUFACTURE.

IRA AMES would respectfully invite the attention of the citizens of Deseret to the all important subject of procuring tan-bark in the season of its pealing; it will peal the next new moon, which will be on the 18th of May. I wish it distinctly understood, that good pine bark well cured and saved, will buy leather, boots and shoes, when gold and silver will be refused. Also those who have got dry hides nailed up on their stables, or elsewhere, please to fetch them to me forthwith; I am ready to receive them and work them into leather; and if you bring me good hides, I will warrant you good leather next fall.

Let no hides be wasted through neglect, for the present prospect is that there will be a lack of hides as well as bark. The brethren in Tooele valley are requested to use their utmost exertion to procure bark and bring forward their hides, and they shall receive according to their works; also the settlements north; and in so doing, we shall be able to build up and bear off the kingdom of God. my15-14tf

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

MR. EDITOR—Sir: You will oblige me by inserting the following:

I am often asked the question, whether my name is Wilkie, or Wilkin.

As I have little time to spend in explanation, I wish this to suffice.

My name is Wilkin, and it is the name of my father's family.

In my youth I was brought up in a neighborhood where the name of Wilkie was very common, and the similarity of names clashed them together.

From my first recollection I was called Wilkie.

My father's letters to me bare the signature of David Wilkin; and as I wish to inherit the principles of right, I wish my own name; this I consider, is my honest due.

Yours respectfully,
my29-15-2t DAVID WILKIN.
