HYDROPHOBIA CASE AT FLINT, MICHIGAN.

The subject of so much discussion, Mr. Burt True, was bit by a rabid dog last May. The dog had bitten several animals. Young True was bitten in the centre of the inside of the right hand. Being in the country at the time, it was some twelve hours before he reached a surgeon, who cauterized the wound with nitrate of silver. The wound healed and remained so until it became irritable and broke out again. Soon the first marked symptoms of hydrophobia showed themselves, convulsions, "barking like a dog," frothing at the mouth, and making strenuous exertions to bite every thing that came near. During the convulsions the patient would seize the pillows from his bed in his teeth, and shake and rend them with all the seeming ferocity of an angry dog.

An intense dread of water also exhibited itself, the sight of which threw him into the most terrible convulsions, at these times requiring the united strength of five men to keep him under subjection; in fact, every symptom of hydrophobia made itself conspicuous. The patient was attacked on Friday evening, January 19th. On Saturday evening his physician, Dr. Axford, reached him, and at once was convinced of the terrible nature of the disease. Having had a case similar some seven or eight years since, where the patient recovered under his treatment, and has remained well ever since, after consulting the physician present, Dr. McCall, it was decided to place the patient under the same treatment which had been successful in this former case, which, for the aid it may be to others who suffer from this disease, we here give as follows: The injection under the skin of large doses of morphine, and the administration of large doses of castor, which is a powerful antispasmodic. About one grain of the sulphate of morphine was injected under the skin once in four hours, and half a drachm of the powdered castor, mixed with syrup, given internally.

The effect was to produce sleep in about half an hour, which lasted about an hour and a half, when the convulsions returned at intervals of an hour to an hour and a half until nine o'clock Sunday morning, when the last convulsion occurred, after which he suffered severely from obstinate vomiting until Monday, at ten o'clock, when that also ceased, leaving the patient comparatively easy, but very much prostrated. Since that time he has gradually improved, and now is to all appearance quite well. In addition to the above treatment small quantities of chloroform were inhaled at times, and on Sunday morning the patient was wrapped in a woolen blanket wrung out of a warm solution of muriate of ammonia, eighteen or twenty grains to the ounce. This was the treatment which checked this fearful malady, and which Dr. Axford, for the sake of humanity, is anxious should be published to the world, and thoroughly tested.—Correspondence Detroit Tribune.

The Wife a Companion.

Make a companion of her in the fullest acceptance of the term, and do not consider it beneath your dignity to suit your conversation to her tastes and intellect. The price current contains matter vastly more pleasing to you, but it is very probable that your young wife would as lief hear you discourse of other matters than the price of cotton or the texture of broadcloth. Study diligently the art of pleasing. Cultivate those thousand and one little nameless attentions which are so much prized by the female sex, and learn to take an interest in whatever occupies her attention. Do not affect an air of listless, tolerating condescension, when she is pointing out the progress of her embroidery, and shun the treason of yawns as she dwells upon the little details of her domestic government.

These hints may seem trifling, but the non-observance of them may be attended with the most serious results. If we could anatomize the human mind, how frequently would we discover that the seed from which the upas tree of estrangement hath sprung, is of a scarcely perceptible minuteness. Be as much at home as possible. A pregnant source of discomfort in the nuptial state is unsettled habits of the husband in this respect. Nothing can be more galling or disheartening to a young wife, after the first honey-months have passed, than the frequent absence of her spouse in the evening. A suspicion is excited in her mind that the flame of affection begins to abate, and that she has lost the power of pleasing, and whenever this feeling occurs, the risk is great, that the wish to please will soon cease to exist. There is no rule without an exception, but in general we would hold that a young husband should have few engagements of an evening, where his wife did not accompany him. It is most important to cultivate the habit of drmestic sociability, and the fireside will never have any charms if they do not exist at the commencemet of a union.—Ex.

A Boston girl, whose gallant on a ride, contrary to her wish, insisted on stopping at a tobacconist's for a cigar, took advantage of his leaving her mistress of the situation and the vehicle to drive to her paternal abode, in front of which the abandoned one, some hours afterward, found his conveyance. Served him right, if he preferred segar to sweetheart.

London is to-day the largest city in the world, far surpassing all those of antiquity. According to Gibbon, the population of ancient Rome, in the height of its magnificence, was 1,200,000; the population of Pekin is supposed to be about 2,000,000; that of London is over 3,000,000, one-twelfth of the population of the United States.

"Young man, do you ever drink?" asked a mild-looking man, accosting Jones. "Well, yes, thank you, as it's a cold morning I don't mind," replied Jones, removing his quid of tobacco. "Don't do it any more," rejoined the mild man, or you will eventually be ——. Good morning. God bless you."
