Burglar drowned—Vanderbilt recovering—Interesting cable dispatch—Feeling in Russia against Prussia—Napoleon has got the monomania.

NEW YORK, 19.—Last evening, as Commodore Vanderbilt was about entering his room at Congress Hall, Sara, his wife, fell in an apoplectic fit; he was immediately carried to his room and medical attendance called on once procured. Two physicians from this city have gone. No one is allowed to see him. Physicians are constantly at his bedside, and every effort is being made to keep the affair quiet and hush it up. It is supposed that the excitement of the race brought on the attack, and from appearances the Commodore lies in a very precarious condition. His family has been summoned to his bedside.

AUBURN, 19.—At midnight, last night, a fire broke out in the ash and blind factory and planing mill of Everts Brothers; the building which was of wood, and the valuable machinery contained in it, were destroyed; loss $15,000; insurance $8,000.

NEW YORK, 19.—A dispatch dated London, 19, 11:30 a.m., says, the Daily News, of this morning, contains a dispatch from Brussels, which says that Napoleon is suffering from febrile monomania; he cries out that he has been betrayed.

The following dispatch has just been received at this office: "Saratoga, 19.—Commodore Vanderbilt is about in his usual health, and will leave for New York this afternoon."

The World's special correspondent telegraph's from Russia, the news is almost menacing. There were demonstrations yesterday, of students, at Lwow, against Prussia, and the oppressive measures of the Russian authorities against German and Lithuanian inhabitants in East Prussia and Courland are reported to be increasing in severity. Negotiations for the purpose which are unknown, are going on between St. Petersburg and Vienna.

The Prince and Princess of Wales are unusually harmonious in their, almost open, sympathies with the French; the Prince's feelings are believed to rest on his great dislike of his brother-in-law the crown Prince of Prussia.

A cable special to the Tribune, from London, 18, says that Tuesday's battle is a crowning proof of French falsehood and concealment. In the recent telegrams, Palikao declared in the corps legislative, that the Prussians had been forced to abandon their attempt to interrupt the French retreat, and that Bazaine was pursuing his road unmolested to Verdun and Chalons. While he was speaking, the Prussians were attacking the French flank, and at nightfall, one portion of the last of Bazaine's army had been forced to abandon the road to Verdun, and were again shut up in Metz.

It is more than ever plain that no considerable part of the French army has ever succeeded in getting far on the road from Metz to Verdun. Their delay, to whatever cause due, gave the Prussians time to come up, and they were able, on Tuesday, to attack with a vanguard strong enough to arrest the French retreat, and bring four French corps into action. When Bazaine found that he could not shake off the Prussians' pursuit he clearly resolved to crush the single corps before its support could arrive.

For hours a Prussian corps, while supported only by a cavalry division, was compelled to bear the brunt of a vigorous onslaught from twice or thrice its own numbers. Toward the close of the day, reinforced by the tenth and part of the eighth and ninth corps, the Prussians resumed the offensive, and, when night fell, the French army was greatly divided, and it is doubtful whether either of the main roads from Metz and Verdun remains to Bazaine. Three French corps, heretofore unscathed, belonging to Froessard's division, and the imperial guards, were brought into action, which, on the French side, was a general engagement, while on the Prussians' side the large part of the two armies of Steinmetz and Prince Frederick Charles were not on the field, and apparently not a single battalion of the Crown Prince, who is believed to be advancing steadily for Chalons.

BINGHAMPTON, 19.—The bodies of two of the three burglars, who murdered young Merrick, on Wednesday morning, were found in the Chenango river; both were injured in the encounter, and were drowned in attempting to cross the river.

Prussian Sanitary and Aid Convention.

CHICAGO, 19.—A national convention of delegates from the various German Sanitary Aid Societies in the United States was held here yesterday; delegates were present from sixteen cities East and West. Ex-Gov. Samuel Salomon, of Wisconsin, presided. A preamble setting forth the cause of the war between France and Prussia, and declaring it to be the duty of the Germans in America to sustain the cause of the latter, not only with words but deeds, and resolutions proposing the details of a systematic plan of operations for carrying out the object of the society, were unanimously adopted. One principal city in each State is made a central point for the collection of contributions from local societies throughout the State, and from which the contributions are to be transferred to the central agency in New York. San Francisco, Portland, Oregon, and Olympia, Washington Territory, are central agencies for their respective States.

Additional details.—Journals suppressed.—Statements of French Victories.—Concentrating on Chalons.

PARIS, 18.—The following additional details of Tuesday's battle, near Orlu Court and Brionville, have been obtained from official sources: Prince Frederick Charles attacked our right, and was firmly met. The corps of General Argard, at Rezonville, hastened into action, which ceased only with night. The Prussians repeatedly attacked, and were as often repulsed. Towards night fresh corps sought to turn our position, but were beaten off. Our losses were serious. General Bataille is wounded. By eight o'clock in the evening the enemy was repulsed along the entire line. He had 120,000 men engaged.

Algeria proposes to send 5,000 volunteers to France. General Sarras takes the place of Maj.-Gen. Le Bouffe, who has resigned.

The Journal des Dates prints an absurd story that the King of Prussia, desiring to be consecrated Emperor of Germany by the Pope, has offered His Holiness an asylum in Germany.

The journals this morning say that nineteen Prussian spies have lately been arrested and after trial and condemnation by a council of war, they were shot at Fort de Maltrouge. Among the executions were five officers who were arrested some days since, in the plain of Saotony, near Fort de Iveris. Three spies were dismissed, and were taking notes of the plans of the fortifications.

The publication of the journals Centre, Gauche and Cloche has been suspended by order of the military authorities. There were additional arrests of Prussian yesterday.

The private gardens of the Tuilleries have been turned into an out-door military hospital, under the superintendence of Dr. Nelaton.

The concentration upon Chalons is being accomplished, and if nothing unexpected happens our forces will be there in three days.

In the Corps Legislatif last evening Count de Palikao, Minister of War, in response to an inquiry, made an explanation in regard to the fact of General Trochu being declared Governor of Paris. The Government regarded it as a wise movement, he said, to confide the defense of the city of Paris to a person eminently qualified to increase the security of peace in the mind of the citizens. General Trochu will be replaced in the command of his corps. The reserves were formerly under his command. The Count then informed the Corps that certain corps of the Prussians had suffered much. Their centre had been especially crippled. They had tried to retreat to St. Michael, but were unable to effect a junction with the Prince Royal. The entire right of the white cuirassiers, under the command of Count von Bismarck, was totally destroyed near Schlestadt. The French peasantry attacked a detachment of Prussian dragoons and made them prisoners. The Count then dwelt upon the fact that dispatches from Prussian sources made no mention of these French victories. The remarks of the Minister were received enthusiastically by the deputies.

The London Times, in its article on the situation, says the road to Paris is open to the Crown Prince, who may leave Charles Frederick to watch Marshal Bazaine.

A Hamburg letter says the people there are quite reconciled to the blockade, adapting their business to its requirements.

The Morning Post says, semi-officially no peace negotiations are afloat; the government is satisfied that France will not treat until she is done treating. All turns on the capture of Paris. The Post also denies the story recently published of the presence of Prince Murat in England.

The Times publishes a special telegram from Berlin this morning, which contains the following intelligence: "The French army has been separated by the victory of the Prussians in the Moselle. Four of the main bodies brought to a stand by the first and second German army, under Prince Frederick Charles and Gen. Steinmetz. The road is now open to Chalons for the Crown Prince, who has only General Trochu and some fragments of Marshal McMahon's corps, to encounter on the way. A decisive event is impending."

PARIS, 19.—The Journal Officiel publishes the following as having been approved by the Emperor: "The ports of Cherbourg, Brest, l'Orlent, Rochefort and Guillon having been declared in a state of siege, if the letter of the provisions of the decree of October 13, 1863, were to be strictly followed, the powers entrusted to the military authorities, by virtue of the state of siege, should devolve on the generals commanding the territorial divisions, within the limits in which they are found, of these five ports. As these powers are not entrusted to any marine authorities by the terms of the 28th article, except in case of an unforeseen attack, the present circumstances and the general interest in the defense of the country demand the abolition of said article; therefore, after having had consultation with the Minister of the Marine, I have the honor to propose to your majesty to decree that the maritime preference be invested with the extraordinary or superior commander of all the troops stationed within those five military posts." (signed) PALIKAO.

Humored Flight of the Entire Napoleon Family.—Fighting on the 16th and 17th.—Prussia will listen to no propositions outside of Paris.

LONDON.—Prince Marrat has not yet returned to the army. He continues to pass between the Duke De Grammont and Gladstone, having already crossed the channel several times. There is no doubt that he is the bearer of dispatches which look for peace. The junction of the armies of Bazaine and McMahon is expected to take place at Vitry le Francaise, near Chalons, where the French expect to make a stand. The commandant at Metz, on account of the deficiency of food, drives away the fugitives who through the city. Indiscreet Prussians have been mobbed at Bordeaux. The Gironde says that firemen, to the number of 100,000, have been enlisted as soldiers. They wear their brass helmets.

We have it on high authority from Paris, that it is the universal conviction that Napoleon's dynasty is ended, and that the Empress, having packed up and dispatched all her valuables, including pictures of value, has left for England via Belgium. It is also believed that the Emperor is on his way to this country by the same track; he does not dare to return to Paris. Prince Napoleon has fled to Italy with his family.

The Times says a dispatch from Berlin states that the French armies were separated at Mas la Tour, and the main army at Metz was checked by the first and second arms of the Prussian army. The Crown Prince, with two corps, is marching to attack Froessard at Chalons. The dispatch adds that Bazaine must cut his way through the German army, or be forced to capitulate.

Part of the French army has been sent back to Metz; the position there is regarded as very critical. It is believed that the preliminary negotiations for peace are under discussion here.

There was fighting all day on Thursday, near Marsenourt. The latest French dispatches are full of expressions of confidence of victory. The following additional facts of Tuesday's conflict have been received: A battalion of the 73d French regiment of the line destroyed the armament of the German lanciers, capturing their colors. There were several brilliant charges by the French, in one of which General Le Grande was killed. It is reported that Prince Albert, commanding the Prussian cavalry, was killed, but this is not confirmed.

After the close of the conflict the French occupied the Prussian position. It is said that the French force engaged numbered 150,000. There was severe fighting on the 17th near Gravelotte. The Emperor is still at Rheims.

The ground between Metz and Verdun has been a scene of constant carnage since Sunday.

LONDON 19.—It is certain that Prussia has refused the proposition recently made, looking to an armistice; she will discuss no proposition outside of Paris.
